High Prices And Blame Give Senate Hot Session

Republicans Agree To Study Inflation But Stick to Plan For Quick Windup

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Congress yesterday pitched into a bitter blame-pinning contest on the No. 1 special session issue of high prices, as GOP leaders ordered House and Senate committees to take a limited look at the inflation problem.

After a Senate floor fracas, in which Democrats and Republicans charged each was to blame, these two GOP proposals turned up:

1. Senate Banking Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) invited producers, manufacturers and distributors to use his committee as a sounding board for voluntary methods of curbing inflation.

2. Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.) introduced a resolution for a Banking Committee investigation into the high price of meat, saying: "We can only prepare for the time when a new administration will interest itself in high prices instead of politics."

Leadership Plan Approved

A conference of all Senate Republicans meanwhile approved the GOP leadership declaration released Tuesday agreeing to some committee action on housing and price control and possible "emergency" phases of other problems but calling for adjournment "as soon as possible."

Senate GOP Conference Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (Colo.) said no adjournment time was set but the concensus was the session would wind up in two or three weeks.

The full House Republican membership is expected to okay this GOP strategy at a conference this afternoon.

First formal airing of the Administration's price-control case is slated today before House and Senate Banking committees.

Porter to Testify

Paul Porter, former OPA chief and Mr. Truman's adviser on price measures, will testify before Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott's House Banking Committee this morning.

Senator Tobey slated hearings before his Senate Banking group on possible credit and monetary controls, but reported trouble finding Administration witnesses.

He tried in vain to get Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder and Thomas B. McCabe, chairman of the Federal Reserve System board of governors, to testify today.

McCabe was said to have insisted that he couldn't testify before next week, and Snyder to have said he would testify after McCabe.

Marriner S. Eccles, a member of the Federal Reserve Board, will be the first witness before the Tobey committee today. He agreed to testify as a private citizen but not as an Administration spokesman, it was said.

Mr. Truman's eight-point inflation-control program itself meantime was expected to be unveiled in one or a series of measures by Senator Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.), the President's vice presidential running mate.

1 Killed, 3 Hurt In Contact With 6900-Volt Line

Frederick, Md., July 28 (AP).—A 52-year-old farmer was electrocuted and three others injured when a pump they were pulling from a well brushed against a live power line carrying 6900 volts.

The accident occurred on the farm of Marshall Sharrer of Rocky Ridge, near here.

Paul Valentine, Sharrer's father-in-law, who lived at Toms Creek, Frederick County, was killed.

Sharrer, his brother, Kenneth, and a neighbor, George Grownsnickle, were injured.

Grownsnickle and Marshall Sharrer suffered burns on their hands and feet. Kenneth Sharrer was knocked down by the charge and suffered a broken shoulder.

At Special Session

Senate GOP Rule Kills Hope For D. C. Employes' Pay Raise

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Hope of a pay raise at this special session of Congress for 17,000 District employes practically disappeared yesterday.

Along with it went hope for all other pending local legislation.

A Senate Republican conference decided it will consider only measures of a national emergency nature.

The conference decision was a death verdict for the interdependent pay-raise and sales tax bills, both passed by the House in the regular session earlier this year.

At the conference Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.), chairman of the Senate District Committee, and Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), chairman of the District Committee's fiscal affairs subcommittee, put up a plea for the pay raise.

But after it was pointed out that new funds would have to be raised to meet the $330-a-year hike in pay proposed for District employes, the conference turned thumbs down on the measure.

"This is very sad news," Senator Cain commented, in disclosing the conference decision to local reporters. "It, of course, means the District's financial troubles are piling up.

"However, the Republican conference listened carefully to the statement of the District's situation, and I can not find any complaint with its decision."

Only the remotest of possibilities was left for favorable Senate action on the combined pay raise and sales tax bills.

If the Senate manages to dispose of the antipoll tax bill, facing the threat of a long filibuster by the Southern bloc, if the Senate Republican conference decides to go ahead with other business, and if it is determined that the District's fiscal problems is of a national emergency nature, then something might be done.

That was the extent of the hope held out by Senator Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.), chairman of the Republican conference.

Shortly after the Republican conference, Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) announced he was introducing a bill to increase compensation of District government employes on the same basis as the Federal workers. A similar bill was introduced on the House side on the first day of the special session by Representative Edward H. Rees (R., Kans.). Both bills will die of inaction in view of the Sen-

GOP Congress Leaders Blast Truman Call

Mass Radio Assault Staged on Summons For Special Session

Republican congressional leaders last night "poured it on Harry" in a mass radio assault on the President's special session call and his price control and housing proposal.

Senate GOP Steering Chairman Robert A. Taft of Ohio led off with a charge that Mr. Truman is "demagoguing" on the inflation issue. Taft said price control and rationing "won't work in America in time of peace."

House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana followed up with a defense of the Eightieth Congress' "record." Halleck charged Mr. Truman is directing at Congress the same "vicious" attack Franklin Roosevelt once aimed at the Supreme Court.

Representative Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois called the President's message a "paradox." Dirksen said Truman measures to relieve inflation will actually increase it. He charged the Truman-recommended housing program will "project the Government so far into this field as to jeopardize the very program which is actually producing houses."

Acting Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) termed it "appalling" that the President was silent on foreign policy" and not once did he mention the threat of communism at home. He referred to the President as "Candidate" Truman and said he "is floundering in the quicksands of a ruined political fortune."

Top Republicans in both Houses underlined a Tuesday decision by the joint Republican leadership, confirmed yesterday by a full Senate Republican Congress, to adjourn Congress quickly after a rapid study of the Truman measures for possible "emergency" needs.

But Taft, in his radio speech last night, denied any emergency exists and indicated the session will close down in "perhaps" two weeks. Taft said Congress "would be fully justified in adjourning at once until the election is over."

The Senate's GOP steersman blamed the inflationary spiral on Roosevelt-Truman policies and told radio listeners:

"The President does not lack power to reduce prices. The fact is he doesn't want to reduce prices, certainly not before the election period. He wants votes from the farmers for high prices. He wants votes from the workmen for high wages."

He said congressional committees "will look over the field and see whether any other reasonable powers can be given him by

Southerners Map Plans For Filibuster

Republicans Ignore Compromise Offer On Poll Tax Bill

Post Reporter

Dixie Democrats have mapped their plans for a poll tax filibuster today which can tie up President Truman's "Turnip Day" Congress interminably.

A lengthy talkathon with sufficient support to continue for days became almost a certainty after Republican leaders ignored a tentative compromise offered by the Southern Democrats, and scheduled the House-passed anti-poll-tax bill for consideration today.

Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), leader of the 21-member Southern bloc, explained on the Senate floor that there would be "no extended debate" if the Democratic and Republican leadership would agree on submitting the anti-poll-tax issue to the States in the form of a constitutional amendment.

Only one Southern Senator favored a poll tax anyway, he said, but the group felt the issue was whether the Federal Government by statute could regulate elections in the States.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) was decidedly cool to the proposal. He said on the floor that the House-passed bill was entirely constitutional, and that Congress had the power to regulate elections of its own members and the President and Vice President of the United States.

Acting Senate Majority Leader Kenneth S. Wherry of Nebraska told reporters after the session yesterday that the GOP would go right ahead with its plans to take up the statutory measure to ban poll taxes as a requirement for voters in Federal elections.

Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.), regarded as Senate spokesman for GOP nominee Thomas E. Dewey, said he personally felt the Congress should proceed with the House bill.

This move will unquestionably shelve President Truman's program until the filibuster is broken but that aspect appeared of no concern to the GOP leadership.

It is obvious that Republican leaders are not going to be in a rush to break up the filibuster. Wherry said no night sessions have been scheduled.

After a meeting of 16 Southern Senators last night, Russell disclosed that both the Republican and Democratic leadership had been entirely silent on the compromise constitutional amendment proposal.

Taft-Hartley Act Sticks

Ban on Political Expenditures By Unions Upheld in U.S. Court

New Haven, Conn., July 28 (AP).—In a decision of major importance in this election year, a Federal judge today upheld the Taft-Hartley Act ban on political spending by labor unions.

Refusing to dismiss indictments against an AFL union local and its president, Judge Carroll C. Hincks, of the United States District Court here, asserted:

"In the light of the legislative history of the act, in silhouette against the contemporary background, I hold, first, that the act was well within the limits of Federal legislative power and, second, that it was not invalidated by its incidental effect in restraint upon the freedoms protected by the First Amendment."

The union, Local 481, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of Hartford, and its president, John R. O'Brien, had sought dismissal of the indictments on the grounds that the challenged section of the Taft-Hartley law violated the guarantees of free speech and a free press in the First Amendment.

O'Brien and his local were indicted last March after they had openly challenged the law by spending union funds for a political advertisement in a Hartford newspaper and to buy radio time for a political broadcast.

Both the advertisement and the broadcast were directed against the presidential aspirations of Sen-

RESCUE WORKERS SEARCH SHATTERED FARBEN PLANT FOR DEAD AND INJURED

New Blasts Rip Wrecked Plant Where 22,000 Were Employed

(Related Stories, Pictures, Page 9)

By Richard O'Regan

Ludwigshafen, Germany (Thursday), July 29 (AP).—New blasts ripped the wrecked I. G. Farben Chemical Co. plant here early today in the wake of yesterday's explosion which killed more than 300 and injured 6200, according to a United States Army estimate. German police said between 500 and 800 were killed.

The Army said there were 300 known dead, presumably from a count of bodies during rescue operations, and that an undetermined number of dead still remain in the blazing wreckage.

A United States Army statement said 2700 persons were treated for injuries suffered in the plant when the first blast occurred yesterday. At least 3500 others were injured by falling walls and flying glass and debris outside the plant, the Army said.

Many Die in Hospitals

Hospitals reported that between 30 and 40 injured persons had died since the first blast.

Because new explosions boomed through the night and flames raged through the wreckage, it was impossible for rescue squads to approach some sections of the factory in a search for bodies. Other estimates of casualties ran up to 1000 dead.

The entire area was evacuated late last night of all except firemen and rescue workers. More than 18 buildings were destroyed.

The plant is in the French occupation zone.

Six hundred American troops were on the scene, laying hose and working in the glare of the flames and searchlights. It was estimated that 1000 doctors and nurses were giving aid to the burned and injured. They came from all sections of western Germany. The injured were taken to hospitals in towns as far as 60 miles away.

Rescue Workers Brave Blast

American, French and German rescue workers braved the minor blasts, flames and fumes early today, 10 hours after the first explosion, as they continued bringing survivors out of the inferno.

The blast and resultant fire, which sent flames and smoke towering miles into the air, came just 15 minutes before the plant's 22,000 workers would have gone home for the day. Clocks for miles around were stopped by the concussion at 3:45 p. m. (9:45 a. m., EDT).

[United Press Reporter Arthur Watt declared that French authorities said they did not suspect sabotage.]

The disaster, probably the greatest in Europe since the end of the war, was described by Lord Mayor Valentin Hauer as worse than the explosion in a Farben plant in suburban Oppau in 1921 which took 565 lives. The last serious explosion in the Ludwigshafen plant occurred July 29, 1943, when 73 were killed.

The explosion is believed to have occurred in a six-story build-

Rumors Stassen Will Head U. of Pa. Are Revived

Philadelphia, July 28 (AP).—Rumors that Harold E. Stassen will become president of the University of Pennsylvania were revived today with an announcement that the school's board of trustees will hold a special meeting Thursday and Friday.

They had no confirmation, however. Robert T. McCracken, chairman of the board, refused comment. He also denied a report he had said, "An announcement probably will be made tomorrow."

Other university officials were either silent or unavailable, including 68-year-old Dr. George McClelland, who is planning to retire from the presidency for reasons of health.

At his home in St. Paul, Minn., Stassen was quoted as saying he had no comment to make today.

3 Allies May Propose Talks On All Europe

Proposal Reported Contingent on Ending Blockade of Berlin

By R. H. Shackford

London, July 28 (U.P.).—The United States, Britain and France in an urgent attempt to improve their relations with Russia, plan to offer talks on Europe as a whole, it was said authoritatively tonight.

The offer will be made to Soviet Foreign Minister Viacheslav Molotov by the ambassadors of the western powers in a verbal communication to be delivered probably Thursday evening, it was said.

It will be made plain to Russia that any four-power talks could come only after she had lifted the blockade to Berlin and recognized the right of the western powers to be in the German capital.

But if Molotov accepts, authoritative British sources said, the western allies may agree not only to hold four-power talks but to suspend their plans to set up a separate unified regime in their occupation zones of Germany.

[The Associated Press cited "a responsible British official" as authority for its story that new talks "on a general European settlement" will be offered Russia.]

Following conferences here at which the text of a written communication to Molotov was agreed on, the Allied plan is understood to be as follows:

In Police Chief Dispute

LOUISE SCHROEDER
Berlin's Fighting Mayor

Frau Schroeder Refuses to Recognize One-Power Command

Berlin, July 28 (AP).—A 61-year-old woman took on her frail shoulders tonight the giant East-West struggle for Berlin.

In a turbulent city where thousands jammed in front of banks attempting to exchange marks for new Soviet-sponsored money, Mayor Frau Louise Schroeder defied a Russian order to dismiss the anti-Communist deputy police chief.

Backed by the three Western commandants, the fighting Socialist mayor, known as the "Mother" of Berlin, told the Russians that Berlin was under four-power rule—she couldn't obey a one-power command.

Frau Schroeder was thrown into the heart of the struggle two days ago when the anti-Communist city government which she heads fired Police Chief Paul Markgraf. Markgraf, a Moscow-trained German war hero, was accused of abducting Berliners and purging the police force of anti-Reds.

Red Sits Tight

The Russians refused to recognize the order, saying it needed approval of the four-power Kommandatura from which they walked out a month ago and said had ceased to exist. Markgraf sat tight in his office in the Russian sector.

He said he had Red army backing and would carry out Soviet orders to fire Johannes Stumm, Socialist deputy chief, who had been appointed by the city government as Markgraf's successor.

Frau Schroeder, who has been governing the city of 3,250,000 Germans for more than 14 months, defied an order from Soviet Commandant Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotikov to fire her deputy police chief and said she could not accept his contention that Markgraf still was in office.

She also refuted Kotikov's allegation that the police had been "split" by the order firing Markgraf.

"Actually," she replied, "it has been the unilateral and reckless measures of Markgraf which have been splitting the police."

U. S. to Begin Survey On Price Collusion

The Justice Department yesterday announced a new Nation-wide survey by its Antitrust Division aimed at collusive action on food, clothing and housing prices.

Attorney General Tom Clark said he is establishing new field offices for the Antitrust Division in Philadelphia, Jacksonville, Fla., and Kansas City, Kans., and additional personnel have been assigned to the antitrust field offices in Boston, New York, Cleveland, Chicago, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

Soviet Blocks Vienna Exits To British

Action Covers All Save One Road in Austrian Capital

Vienna, Austria, July 28 (U.P.).—The British disclosed today that since last Saturday the Russians have blocked all rail and road travel by British personnel from Vienna except by one route leading into the British zone itself.

American authorities said the Russians were still permitting United States personnel to use several routes out of Vienna, depending on the destination.

Like Berlin, Vienna is a four-power "island" surrounded by the Soviet zone.

The British said that since Saturday the Russians have refused to validate 120 applications for four-power travel permits authorizing British subjects to pass through the Russian zone to such points as the American and French zones, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and other places.

A British spokesman said the move might have resulted from British delay in acting on a Soviet request to enlarge the Soviet reparation commission in the British zone. The spokesman said the request had been forwarded to London and there was "no reason to believe it won't be approved."

D. C. Officer Denies Russian Bribe Story

Berlin, July 28 (AP).—The Russians, through their official press, claimed today that two American officers tried—and failed—to bribe their way through the Soviet blockade of Berlin. The accusation said the officers offered guards watches, cigarettes and money.

One of the Americans named promptly called the Russian statement "a fantastic lie." He was Lieut. Arthur Walters of Washington, D. C.

One Crewman Survives

Globe-Circling B-29 Crashes Off Arabia; 16 or More Dead

Aden, July 28 (AP).—One of three B-29 Superfortresses on an around-the-world flight crashed in the sea within sight of this port on the south coast of Arabia last night. At least 16 American crewmen were believed lost.

Only one man rescued.

(The exact number of men aboard the crashed plane could not be ascertained. Although 18 were aboard when the plane left Tucson, Ariz., it was possible that some members of the crews of the other two planes were aboard the crashed plane. Strategic Air Command headquarters at Andrews Field, Md., said 17 out of 18 men aboard had been lost but a message from the American consul at Aden said 19 out of 20 were lost.)

Authorities here imposed restrictions on outgoing news of the crash.

Five bodies were recovered from the sea during the day and were buried with full military honors in a funeral attended by the crews of the two remaining B-29s.

The crash occurred at 7 p. m. local time (12 noon EDT Tuesday) shortly after the three planes took off for Ceylon.

Cause of the disaster still is unknown. Eyewitnesses said the plane was airborne when the motors suddenly became silent.

The other planes returned to Aden and are awaiting instructions.

United States Consul Charles Gidney and the consulate staff were present during rescue operations all through last night. Divers are working on the wreckage, which is visible about a mile offshore at low tide.

The three planes carried a total of 53 men, according to an announcement when they left Tucson, Ariz., on the flight. The customary complement of a B-29 is 9 men but two of the globe-girdling planes carried double crews while the third carried 17 men.

The lone survivor, identified only as Sergeant Gustafson, was picked up by local fishermen. He was reported resting comfortably in the RAF hospital.

(Gustafson said he was thrown clear when the plane crashed, the United Press reported. When he bobbed to the surface, he said, none of his shipmates was in sight.)

The three big bombers left Tucson six days ago on the first around-the-world attempt for B-29s. The Air Force called it a "routine long distance training" flight.

They reached Tampa, Fla., the same day and Lagens air base in the Azores the next day. They reached Aden Monday morning

'Adequate,' Says Commander

Cox and Myers Split in Row Over D. C. Guard Equipment

By Howard Dutkin
Post Reporter

Brig. Gen. Albert Cox, commander of the District National Guard, and Col. Charles M. Myers, Second Army officer in charge of training guardsmen at Camp Pendleton, Va., yesterday were at loggerheads over the term "essential equipment."

The general, in a statement issued yesterday, declared the guardsmen "were issued equipment essential to the completion of the two-week summer training period."

On the other hand, Myers charged Tuesday that the approximately 900 men and officers arrived early Monday ill-equipped, with some 200 minus either messkits, uniforms or combat boots.

This, Colonel Myers asserted, was the result of "utter breakdown of supply" and "district staff inefficiency."

General Cox in his statement yesterday emphasized that "the term essential . . . may have a different meaning to different individuals, but that he (Cox) is satisfied that all District National Guard units sent to camp are capable of self-sustained field training."

Cox pointed to the "additional equipment" sent by plane "which

Marine Hero Who Turned Racket Buster Well on Way to Arkansas Governorship

A Marine hero who turned into a racket-busting prosecuting attorney for Arkansas, Sidney S. McMath, is likely to be the Wonder State's next Governor.

McMath, 36, yesterday led six other opponents in the initial Arkansas Democratic primary by 28,000 votes. If he can hold his lead in the run-off primary August 10, he will be the Democratic nominee—tantamount to election in Arkansas, where the Republicans have not as yet decided whether they will even enter a candidate for the governorship.

McMath's political career is a postwar development. After graduation from the University of Arkansas and its law school, he practiced law until he went to war as a Marine Corp Reserve officer.

The story goes that in an idle moment at Guadalcanal someone asked him what he was going to do when the war was over. "I don't know; run for Governor, maybe," he dreamily replied.

In the Pacific, besides ideas, he acquired the Silver Star for heroism at Cape Torokina during the Bougainville invasion.

He also acquired malaria and was shipped back to Marine Headquarters here about 1944.

SIDNEY S. McMATH

Working on the Hill was Miss Anne Phillips of Slate Springs, Miss., a friend of McMath's first wife, who had died while he was overseas.

It was not long before the pretty blonde and the trim Marine were married.

On January 31, 1946, McMath was relieved from active duty, with the permanent rank of lieutenant colonel in the Reserve.

McMath went back to Hot Springs with his wife. He became prosecuting attorney on a GI ticket.

For 20 years, Hot Springs, a resort town with a race track, had run wide open. Lucky Luciano and other big time toughs were frequently seen. In this atmosphere, McMath went to work. When he was through the atmosphere was noticeable purer, a former city attorney had gone to jail, and seven indictments had been brought against former Mayor Leo McLaughlin. One has been dismissed. McMath is pledged to follow through on the others, win or lose in the November election.

In the midst of this civic ventilating came personal tragedy for McMath and his wife.

McMath, who as a boy picked cotton and carried newspapers, came of poor parents. His father was a barber and farmer. His mother has worked most of her life.

Hal McMath, according to his son, had been drinking heavily for several years. In August, 1947, during a drinking bout, the elder McMath maltreated his daughter-in-law. Several days later he began abusing a show horse at the McMath ranch home. When Anne remonstrated, Hal flew into a rage, threatening to kill the horse and harm her. Hysterical with fear, Anne shot her father-in-law with her husband's old service revolver.

A grand jury cleared her of blame. Her husband said it was "the greatest tragedy of our lives."

In the Democratic primary campaign, one of the minor candidates at a rally played "Pistol Packin' Mama" and Annie Get Your Gun." It won sympathy for McMath, who kept his temper.

McMath's campaigns have been run with energy and military thoroughness. He has not hesitated to use existing political machinery available to him. But he is not considered a machine tool.

Canny in expressing his political views, he is thought of as a liberal. His ideas often parallel those of Senator J. William Fulbright. Labor and Negroes give McMath heavy support. McMath has refused to be drawn into an expression of opinion on the Dixiecrat revolt. His reticence has not damaged him materially with liberals.

Jack Holt Seems Sure Of Arkansas Nomination

Little Rock, July 28 (AP).—Jack Holt apparently clinched tonight a runoff berth in the Arkansas Democratic gubernatorial primary August 10, with youthful Sid McMath of Hot Springs.

Holt, 45, former State attorney general, trailed McMath, a prosecuting attorney, by 27483 votes on the basis of virtually complete returns compiled from yesterday's preliminary primary. He led third place James (Uncle Mac) Mackrell, Little Rock radio entertainer, by 3420 votes.

Two incumbent Congressmen were renominated by clear majorities. They are Representative Oren Harris of El Dorado, Seventh District, and Representative E. C. (Took) Gathings of West Memphis, First District.

ator Taft (R., Ohio), one of the authors of the Taft-Hartley law, and called for the defeat of Connecticut Congressmen who voted for it.

Judge Hincks held that the case differed from that of the CIO and its president, Philip Murray, in which the Supreme Court ruled last month that unions could spend their funds for some political purposes.

The CIO case, Judge Hincks pointed out, involved "only expenditures by a union to meet the costs of publishing an issue of a weekly union periodical containing expressions of political advocacy and opinion in connection with a congressional election and distributing the same . . ."

In the Hartford case, the judge said, "Union monies were expended for publication of expressions of political advocacy intended to affect the result of the election and the action of the convention in an established newspaper of general circulation and for a broadcast by a commercial radio station . . ."

"The congressional history of the act," Judge Hincks said, "makes it abundantly plain that the expenditures upon this prosecution is based were of that very kind which Congress intended to forbid."

The union had announced that it hoped to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court, but persons familiar with court procedure said it was doubtful that a final test could be made before the elections.

ate Republican conference decision.

It was a one-man filibuster against the sales tax by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), which originally blocked the pay raise for municipal employes here. The conference decision merely delivered the coup de grace.

To meet the anticipated increase in payroll of six million dollars a year, as well as to provide funds for other District expenses, the House approved a bill which would tax local retail sales—excepting food, medicine—2 per cent. The bill also provided a special income tax on incomes of $8000 or more.

The Senate conference decision also wiped out even the barest theoretical chance of survival for the Auchincloss home rule and reorganization bill. After months of study and consideration, this bill got but a single day of actual floor debate on the House side last session.

Even if the home rule bill does come up in the House—which is doubtful—and even if it passes the House—which is more doubtful—it can't come up in the Senate in line with the decision laid down by the Republican conference yesterday.

GOP to Study Prices Issue

the closed Senate Republican conference said the sentiment was that the special session, however brief, might find time to vote some limited credit control powers and make some minor additions to the restricted housing legislation passed last session.

The Senate row on the inflation issue got hot after Senator Baldwin charged Mr. Truman has not made use of the voluntary price powers and fact-finding procedure voted by the last GOP-controlled Congress.

"The President should have used his agencies to determine a precise, detailed program so that the American people and the Congress could have some confidence that this serious matter was being approached realistically," said Baldwin.

He asked if the President can say "this is a law but I don't like it, and I'm not going to comply."

O'Mahoney hotly cut in to charge that the Republican Congress failed to provide funds or laws for an effective fight on inflation.

Galleries applauded when O'Mahoney charged: "This Congress has preferred to serve the profiteers rather than the people."

O'Mahoney Advises Gallery

The chair admonished the galleryites that no demonstrations were permitted and O'Mahoney wisecracked that they should "withhold their demonstration until they cast their ballots next fall."

Baldwin said the voters would have little difficulty "knowing what Democrats to vote for."

O'Mahoney termed Republican measures for inflation control "utterly inadequate," and said Republican leaders were now proposing some "polite postponing."

Baldwin charged President Truman and some Democrats are proposing what amounts to "general, overall buckshot means of dealing with inflation," and declared Senator Barkley himself opposed rationing last session.

Barkley vehemently denied this. The Democratic leader said he introduced the inflation control measures proposed last session by the President and said there would now be no problem if Congress had passed them.

New DP Act Proposed

Three bills dealing with other phases of the President's 11-point legislative program meanwhile were dropped into the Senate hopper:

Senator J. Howard McGrath (R. I.) Democratic National Chairman, proposed a new displaced persons act, admitting 402,000 refugees over the next four years, without regard to quota limitations, and free of alleged racial and religious discriminations in the present act.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) and five other GOP Senators, introduced an amendment to the present Displaced Persons Act, changing the date of eligibility to admit DP's who entered the camps by April 21, 1947, instead of December 22, 1945. Smith said this would make eligible 180,000 DP's who entered our German and Austrian zones after 1945, practically all of whom are Jews who fled anti-Semitism in Poland.

The others authors are Senators Ferguson (R., Mich.), Saltonstall (R., Mass.), Cooper (R., Ky.), Morse (R., Oreg.) and Ives (R., N. Y.).

Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) introduced a States rights Federal-aid-to-education bill authorizing the RFC to make up to 300 million dollars in loans and 300 million dollars in grants to the States to build elementary and secondary schools. The bill provides no Federal strings on the curriculum taught.

Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.) cited Republican cuts in Bureau of Labor Statistics appropriations as one reason the President couldn't get all the factual data needed, but Baldwin said lack of appropriations was just a "dodge."

Barkley backed up Kilgore, saying, "They didn't get enough money to do the job." He said BLS would have trouble even borrowing personnel from other agencies since Congress "meticulously" earmarked its appropriations.

Baldwin said he offered his meat-investigation resolution because the Administration "failed to take the action Congress gave it the opportunity to take." He said Congress now "is unfortunately required to use its own meager facilities to try to find out the facts."

GOP Congress Leaders Blast Truman Special Session Call

which he can restrain the expansion of credit, but I feel quite confident he will never use them before November.

Taft said Mr. Truman neglected to mention income data in his message and cited statistics to show increases in earnings had far exceeded the price rise.

Arguing that the President claims credit for higher wages and higher farm income while blaming Republicans for the other side of the picture, high prices, Taft shouted:

"Such a claim cannot be characterized otherwise than demagoguery."

The Ohioan said price controls "choke production instead of increasing it," and quoted Mr. Truman's own reference to "police state" methods.

"Nobody," said Taft, "knows enough to do the job of control as well as it is done by natural economic law."

In conclusion, he pinned inflation on the Administration's lapel and said:

"An Administration which has been in power for 16 years cannot escape the results of its own action. It has the powers to check inflation today. We may grant additional powers, but the only real recourse of the people is the election on November 4."

Halleck accused Mr. Truman of a "petty" political attack on Congress and recalled the Roosevelt "court-packing" fight.

"Then the Supreme Court stood against a one-man Government," he said. "Today Congress stands against a one-man Government.

"Today, the Congress stands as an independent branch of the Government, rightfully rejecting executive domination, recognizing its obligation to all the people to legislate in the best interest of the Nation as a whole."

Halleck's radio assignment was the GOP "Record," and he traced Eightieth Congress accomplishments from budget to tax cuts, from "exposing the Communists" to passage of the Taft-Hartley Act, then he tallied outlays for national defense.

He listed aid to Europe as one of Congress' achievements and said, "High prices resulting from such foreign aid programs should not be charged to the Republican Congress to get votes as Mr. Truman seeks to do."

Dirksen said the President presented Congress with three programs in one, a "must," program, an "urgent" program and a "spare time" program.

In Congress spent all the President asked, Dirksen said, it would be like "trying to put out the fire (of inflation) by throwing gasoline on it."

Dirksen's radio assignment was housing. Citing the 356,000 housing units started by private builders in the first five months of this year, a 28 per cent increase over 1947, he said the GOP House believes "private enterprise, private builders can lick this housing problem better, faster and cheaper than any Government agency if it has a chance."

Dirksen said no one denies we need houses "but we're moving toward the million-a-year mark to meet it and the production of houses will grow as materials and manpower become available in greater supply."

"Certain it is that this Federal program which the President proposes will not increase the supply," said Dirksen. "What it will actually do is to intensify the competition for what material and manpower are now available and instead of reducing the cost of a house it will increase it."

Senator Wherry repeated the joint leadership pledge to enact "any legislation found to be of an emergency character," saying it will be sent to the White House "where I hope the legislation will be shown like consideration."

Like his colleagues, he made it plain he didn't think much of the program, however, and aimed most of his fire at the President.

He said he called Congress back "at a time when he should be thinking of the unity of the people and of the seriousness of the situation at home and abroad."

"The President," said Wherry, "came before the special session in an emotional appeal and staked his case upon the living cost, appealing to the housewives in the hope that he can fool them and distract their attention from the failure of the Administration in handling these vital issues."

U. S. Loyalty Check To Be Investigated

A sweeping inquiry into the operation of Federal loyalty boards is planned by the House Civil Service Committee, Chairman Edward H. Rees (R., Kans.) said last night.

Rees said the FBI has done its part to carry out the President's loyalty order. He added, however, that aside from 438 employes who resigned during the FBI investigations, "the program has been ineffective."

He said that while no date has been set for the investigation, it will get under way during the special session.

With about half of the two million Federal workers checked to date, Rees said FBI investigations have raised doubts as to the loyalty of 5510 Government employes. But, he said, "there is no information available as to what action has been taken by the numerous loyalty boards with respect to these cases."

"The American people are entitled to know whether this program is being carried out as intended by Congress," he added in a statement.

The Kansas lawmaker contended that President Truman showed a "lack of cooperation" in ordering agency heads not to turn over confidential material in their loyalty board files to congressional committees.

Mr. Truman took this action last May to bar Commerce Department records on Dr. Edward U. Condon to the House Un-American Activities Committee, which had charged the Bureau of Standards director with being "one of the weakest links in our atomic security."

Public hearings on the charges, which Condon repeatedly has denied, are expected to get under way shortly before the Un-American Activities group.

Rees indicated his committee's inquiry will be of a more general nature. He said Government departments will be asked to furnish information on the "policies, procedures and accomplishments" of their loyalty boards.

Dauntless D. C.

Legislators To Get Home Rule Plea

The Central Suffrage Conference of D. C., Inc., last night adopted a resolution urging Congress to act favorably on the District home rule and reorganization bill in the special session.

The resolution, adopted in the face of a decision yesterday by a Senate Republican conference to consider only measures of a national emergency measure, will be carried by hand to Republican leaders Friday "to make sure it gets to them."

Meeting at 700 Jackson pl. nw., officers and trustees of the suffrage conference agreed informally that Wilbur S. Finch, president, should inform Representatives Auchincloss (R., N. J.) and Dirksen (R., Ill.) of the group's willingness to support their efforts in behalf of District home rule.

The group also named Vice President Guy A. Caponnetto to the chairmanship of a committee which will select "persons in key positions" to be added to the board of directors.

Southerners Map Filibuster

vice presidential running mate of President Truman, had given no sign that he was any more interested in the compromise than the GOP.

The 16 Southerners at the meeting arranged that Senator John C. Stennis (D., Miss.) would lead off today, followed by Senator Tom Stewart (D., Tenn.) or Senator Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.).

Those absent from the meeting were Senators J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) and Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) who are out of town, and Senators W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel (D., Tex.), A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) and John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) who had other engagements. Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) was not invited, although he sided in floor debate yesterday with other Southerners on the question of the constitutional amendment.

A filibuster conducted with such a large number of supporters can continue for a much longer time than the recent one or two-man versions which the Senate has seen.

The first round of the talkathon will start today when a motion is made to lay aside pending legislation and take up the antipoll tax bill.

This motion is open to debate, and cloture, the method why which debate can be shut off if two-thirds of the Senate agree, cannot be involved on it.

Later, if the Southerners tire and this filibuster is stopped, another one can be started over the bill itself. This would be subject to cloture.

The Southern compromise suggestion on how to rid the remaining seven States of poll taxes was first broached on the Senate floor by Senator Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.).

Hayden said that if the Republicans really wanted to get something done and go ahead with the session, he could tell them how to pass poll tax legislation in a day and a half. Russell told reporters later he didn't believe it would even take a day and a half if the constitutional amendment idea were acceptable.

He read a long list of Republicans, including Taft and Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) who declared in favor of a constitutional amendment proceeding in 1944.

The Civil Rights Congress, an organization which has been branded a Communist front, announced yesterday that it will stage a march on Washington of 2000 persons Thursday in connection with Civil Rights legislation.

NAACP Hits Bradley

Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, yesterday expressed the association's "shock" at the Army Chief of Staff's assertion that 'the Army will keep racial segregation as long as the Nation does.'

Gen. Omar Bradley gave the Army's view on segregation Tuesday in an interview at Fort Knox, Ky.

"We are deeply shocked at General Bradley's statement," White said at his office at 100 Massachusetts ave., nw.

"This statement by the Chief of Staff less than 24 hours after the Commander in Chief of the Army, Navy and Air Force had issued an executive order to eliminate racial discrimination and inequality in the armed services is unbelievable. It is another illustration of how men who have been isolated in the Army for many years from contact with the outside world are unable to understand or even be aware of the growth of enlightened public opinion."

Draft Machine Taking Shape

The District's peacetime draft machinery, expected to register about 56,000 men from 18 through 25 beginning August 30, will begin taking shape today.

District Draft Director William E. Leahy and Frank D. Norton, head of the D. C. Office of Selective Service Records, will meet with wartime draft officials at 8:15 p. m. at headquarters, 1901 D st. nw., to "go over the new law and talk over the whole situation."

The wartime draft leaders, members of the 14-man board of directors of the D. C. Selective Service Association, have pledged their assistance in the forthcoming draft and will have much to do with present policy making.

Leahy also announced yesterday that, while all men 18 through 25 must register, those clearly exempt from the draft may not have to fill out questionnaires.

Tonight's meeting, Leahy said, is to "discuss our contemplated plans, the background of our planning and our thoughts on operation."

Virginia State draft director, Mills F. Neal, announced yesterday that Alexandria and Arlington and Fairfax Counties will have one board each. He said the Alexandria and Arlington boards will probably share offices in Alexandria for economy purposes.

3 D. C. Men Commissioned

Fort George G. Meade, Md., July 28 (Spl.).—Seventy ROTC men, three from Washington, pinned on the gold bars of Army Reserve second lieutenants today in the first postwar summer training graduation here. The men were from 48 colleges and universities.

The three Washingtonians were Henry N. Bono, 23, of 3947 Harrison st. nw., from Syracuse University; Elmer Gray, jr., 24, of 4528 Fessenden st. nw., University of Pennsylvania, and William M. Rumsey of 37 Florida ave. ne., Wilberforce University.

In all, 848 ROTC cadets from 28 states, the District and other countries, participated in the review and graduation exercises. The 70 who were commissioned have completed four years of ROTC work, while the others have another year of college to go before they receive their commissions.

Army Hopes New Training Will Make 'Friends' of Men

Fort Knox, Ky., July 28 (U.P.).—Young men going into the Army under the new draft will find things much different from those who went in a few years ago—the result of lessons learned in World War II and in the universal military training experiment recently carried out here.

Already the lessons learned in UMT have been applied to the Third Armored Division, which is essentially a replacement training unit at Fort Knox.

High ranking Army officers are studying the UMT methods as used in the Third Armored Division to learn how these can be applied in training the thousands of men soon to be drafted.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. Omar Bradley visited the training center Tuesday and told training officers "the petty annoyances that sent many World War II veterans away hating the Army must be removed."

The Army practically greets its new recruits with white gloves—and not those worn by tough military policemen. As Bradley says, the first officers and noncoms dealing with recruits must be the Army's finest.

The recruit immediately is taken to an orientation room where he is told his address, how long he will be in the camp, and other matters small to the Army but important to the individual. Then he gets a $5 partial payment so that he won't be broke his first few days in the Army.

A merit and demerit system has been adopted and a trainee court composed of trainees is used to handle minor disciplinary infractions. Under the system, 15 demerits cancel a weekend pass. Demerits may be worked off by voluntary fatigue details during off-duty hours.

To develop pride in the unit and the individual accomplishment, the outstanding trainee of the day is selected to act as a member of the division commander's personal staff. And the division commander writes a letter to the parents of the recruit complimenting them on the superior soldierly ability of their son.

Bradley said the aim of the program is to send recruits back to civilian life as friends of the Army.

He believes this can be done if the men are kept busy and know why they have been taken from civilian life. He has ordered that recruits be told the "why" behind everything they do.

"The transition from civilian to military life is the most important part in a soldier's life, and we want our best men working in this program," General Bradley said.

"Probably the most outstanding innovation, and one of the most important, is the activity of our chaplains," Maj. Gen. Ray T. Maddocks, commander of the Third Armored Division, said.

Army Hails Big Surge in Enlistments

The Army's chief of personnel expressed great satisfaction yesterday over an upsurge in enlistments, with its resultant cut in the number of men to be drafted.

He conceded in response to a question that "if we get enough volunteers we probably won't need to draft anybody"—but draft plans went right ahead.

Lieut. Gen. Willard S. Paul made his comments to reporters in announcing that, during the first two weeks of July, 18,085 volunteers entered the Army and the Air Force. This is more than half the 30,000 average that the services have estimated they need monthly.

10,689 in Second Week

In the first week of July—after enactment of the draft bill on June 22—the services received 7396 men, of whom 5100 went to the Army and the remainder to the Air Force. In the second week, 10,689 signed up, with 7798 going to the Army.

In June, when passage of a peacetime draft act became reasonably certain, about 32,000 volunteers joined up.

Paul noted that three-year reenlistments that came at the end of the war in 1945 are now expiring and that about 240,000 men are involved. He said the Army is making an intensive effort to get at least part of these experienced, trained soldiers to sign up again.

While offsetting such losses the Army must build toward its authorized strength 790,000. When the draft bill was passed it had only about 542,000.

The Army, which also has been concerned over a shortage of officers for its expanding troop strength, now reports that applications by reserve officers for active duty are being received in greater numbers.

Figures Coming In

Nation-wide figures are just now coming in on enlistment of 18-year-olds. These youths can enlist for a year of training in the United States, then become members of the reserve for a protracted period and thus be exempt from induction when they reach the 19-year draft age. In the first three days after the Army began accepting 18-year-old enlistments, 759 youths signed up.

During the day Army Secretary Royall said there had been a misunderstanding about a statement at Fort Knox Tuesday by General Paul. Paul was quoted as saying that the Army might find it necessary to furlough a "number" of new draftees as soon as they are inducted because housing and training arrangements may not be complete. Royall said that Paul was incorrectly quoted and that "the Army will be ready to accept all selectees as assigned without any necessity of furlough or other delay in actual induction."

Cox and Myers Split on Guard

was engaged in a routine training flight" to the camp Monday.

Besides that, Cox's statement said, "th equartermaster Second Army, has agreed to make available to the District Guard all facilities of Fort Eustis, Va., supply."

Cox cited a last minute rush of recruits as straining Guard supply facilities.

Defends Bernsdorff

He defended Maj. Fletcher Bernsdorff, purchasing and disbursement officer, who had also been subjected to criticism, by stating that "requisitions (mess gear and footgear) were submitted and it is assumed they will be filled by the "Department of the Army at the earliest time possible."

Maj. Gen. Myron C. Cramer, chief of the National Guard Bureau, Army Department, flew to Pendleton yesterday and made an inspection of the encampment, interviewing troops as to food and equipment.

After a conference with Myers, Col. LeRoy Mann, commander of the encampment, and other officers he declared that he was "satisfied that the officers had overcome" shortages and that the training had not been seriously affected.

Meantime, Col. Merle R. Thompson, of the organization and training division, Army Department General Staff, continued his probe of the shortage at Camp Pendleton.

Thompson will report his findings to Maj. Gen. Harold R. Bull, chief of the division, upon his return to Washington probably Friday, the Army Department said yesterday.

U. N. Entry Rules To Be Examined

B. M. McElway M. C. Sheild James H. Rowe, Jr.

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Marshall yesterday named a three-man committee to determine whether subversives have been entering the United States in the guise of United Nations employes.

Marshall told a news conference the committee, composed of Washington citizens, would be asked also to recommend steps to close loopholes in existing laws and regulations should any be found. He named to the committee:

Benjamin M. McKelway, editor of the Evening Star.

James H. Rowe, jr., lawyer and former Assistant Attorney General.

Probe Rights Challenged

Hot on the heels of his announcement came a denial from Arkady A. Sobolev, Russian acting secretary general of the United Nations, that the United States or any other nation has the legal right to investigate U. N. officials or conduct an inquiry on U. N. property.

An Associated Press dispatch from Lake Success quoted Sobolev as saying the United Nations "welcomes any public discussion of this matter" and "has nothing to hide."

He insisted, however, that any investigation such as Marshall proposed must be confined to the United States Government's own files.

Neither in his news conference statement nor in his letter asking the committee members to serve did Marshall indicate any intention of investigating individuals or anything beyond laws and regulations governing entrance into the United States. He made it clear he was concerned with laws and procedures and not with persons.

His action yesterday followed recent charges before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee that the U. N. and other international organizations had been used by several hundred foreign agents to carry on activities inimical to this country.

Facts Open to Committee

He told his news conference he had received no reports of such activities and that a very careful check of all visa affairs had revealed none. He said he would give the investigating committee all facts they wanted and ask it to report whether anything injurious to the security of the United States had taken place. The committee, he added, would be requested to say whether there was any lack in the basic laws which provide protection against infiltration of undesirable aliens.

In answer to a question, Marshall assured his conference he had access to all information available to the State Department officials who testified before the subcommittee. He added that he had received no official communication from the U. N. Secretary General on the matter and knew of no U. N. protest or complaint.

His letter to McKelway, Rowe and Sheild said he intended: ". . . to have a careful study made and all the relevant facts analyzed and published as soon as possible so that a determination can be reached as to whether the Government possesses and has exercised all necessary powers to protect the public interest."

Specific Points

Specifically, he said, he wished the committee to examine and report on whether:

1. Existing international agreements and United States laws prevent exclusion of persons "whose presence is inconsistent with our national security."

2. Existing administrative practices and their basic laws adequate to exclude those whose admission is sought in connection with work of international organizations "but whose presence would be inconsistent with our national security."

3. Such persons have been admitted in the past and whether adequate procedures exist for their deportation or future exclusion.

State Department officials said the investigation would cover all classes of persons who were connected in any way with the United Nations. Among these are some 3000 members of the secretariat, about half American and half alien; staffs of U. N. members; representatives of the press, radio and other newsgatherers, including photographers; members of specialized agencies as the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, and those who visit here on special U. N. business.

Bevin Charges Bulgars Erase Red Opposition

London, July 28 (U.P.).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin accused Bulgaria again today of violating the peace treaty by wiping out opponents of communism.

He told the Commons during a question period, "I quite agree that the opposition in Bulgaria have been wiped out, as indeed, if the Communist Party could get power here, the life of many members on my side of the house would probably be shorter than on the other side."

Greeks Ready For Changes In Command

Athens, July 28 (AP).—Informed sources said tonight opposition apparently had collapsed in the Greek supreme defense council to changes in the Greek military set up recommended by American officers.

These sources said the United States military mission to Greece, headed by Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, asked that Lieut. Gen. Panos Kalogeropoules be replaced as commander of the second army corps and that other changes be made.

Kalogeropoules will be replaced, the sources said, by Maj. Gen. Stylianos Kitrilakes, who planned the Grammos Mountain operation.

Kalogeropoules was commander of six divisions which started the Grammos drive more than five weeks ago and which now is far behind schedule.

Berlin Policy Set, Marshall Admits

Hoffman's Idea

U. S. Experts For Britain Draws Jeers

London, July 28 (AP).—Conservatives and indignant leftwingers joined today in throwing rocks at Sir Stafford Cripps' plan for American technical advice to British industry on how to increase production.

Winston Churchill, Conservative leader, asked in the Commons if Britain's efforts toward recovery might not be "prejudiced" by accepting a plan suggested by "a friendly but foreign government from whom we are obrrowing money."

Communist Willie Gallacher charged the plan was a "sell out" to America.

For more than an hour Cripps, Britain's economic chief, parried attacks. The plan — outlined in Paris after a conference with Marshall Plan Administrator Paul Hoffman—would set up an nAglo-American council of industrialists and trades union leaders to consult on British production.

He said other Marshall Plan nations should follow Britain's lead and borrow some American know-how. He said some countries already had done so, including Soviet Russia.

He denied such an advisory council would mean American interference in British affairs. It was decided to hold a full-scale debate tomorrow.

Despite criticism, there appeared little doubt the council would be established. The powerful Trades Union Congress today announced full support.

The three Western Powers have agreed on their next move to meet the crisis in Berlin, Secretary of State Marshall said yesterday, while declining to reveal any details of such a step.

He hoped, Marshall said wryly, that Great Britain and France would maintain the same degree of secrecy. He added that there already had been too much speculation about what the Western Powers intended doing.

The frailty of his hope was indicated by receipt of press dispatches from London while he was speaking which quoted British Government officials as saying the three powers would offer to open talks with Russia on "a general European settlement as a whole."

U. S. Won't End Blockade First

Heretofore the United States position has been that the Western Powers would insist on an end to the blockade of Berlin as a necessary prelude to talks on the German situation.

Marshall declined comment on reports from Paris that the three Western Powers had drafted a joint note to Moscow which was discussed yesterday at a French cabinet meeting. This note was described in dispatches as opening the way to direct talks with Russia on the future of Berlin.

He had seen one press dispatch from abroad, Marshall said, which purported to give details of an agreement reached by the Western Powers. This report, he declared, was not correct but he declined to say wherein it was incorrect, except to point out that it had Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith en route to Moscow with a note when Smith was still in Paris at the time.

Basic facts about the Western agreement appeared to include these:

When Smith returns to Moscow he probably will seek a personal conference with Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

The Western Powers at this conference would insist on lifting of the Berlin blockade and would make it clear the Western Powers were ready to negotiate on other German issues where a basis for negotiation could be found.

These talks might lead to another conference of foreign ministers. Such a conference at London last winter made no progress toward agreement on a German peace settlement.

Schuman Tells Of German Compromise

By Walter Kerr

Paris, July 28 (NYHT).—Former Premier Robert Schuman, attending his first cabinet meeting as a Minister of Foreign Affairs, reported today an agreement whereby there will be neither a "constituent assembly" nor a "provisional constitution" for western Germany.

This understanding, somewhat contrary to the London accords, was reached in Frankfurt last Monday by American, British and French military governments and the leaders of the 11 German states in the western zones.

The new formula is a compromise to avoid embarrassing the minister-presidents in German eyes.

Instead of a "constituent assembly" there will be a "parliamentary council," composed of delegates either appointed by the 11 State governments or elected. The Allies, according to Schuman, have agreed to accept a "law" instead of a "constitution," a fine point that pleases the French.

Today's meeting was the first of Premier Andre Marie's new administration. Out of it came the official prices to farmers for wheat —2300 francs (a little less than eight dollars) for a quintal (220 pounds) of wheat.

Last year the price was only 1860 francs. The price of bread will not change.

Berlin Mayor Defies Reds

Russian commander that "I am convinced your letter was based upon misunderstandings which could have been cleared up if you had consulted the city government in advance."

Frau Schroeder was backed up by Col. Frank L. Howley, the United States Berlin commandant who wrote her: "A leading, citywide official clan only be dismissd by the unanimous decision of the Allied Kommandatura. The Allied Kommandatura has not been consulted on this matter and the Soviet order is therefore invalid."

Th Western commandants also countermanded another Russian move to spread Communist influence by installing a trusted man as deputy chief of the food department—one of the city's vital posts.

The battle over the police overshadowed for the moment the larger issues of the blockade crisis.

The United States Ambassador to Moscow, W. Bedell Smith, was closeted today with United States Military Governor Gen. Lucius D. Clay for talks before Smith returns to Russia Thursday.

Continued sunny skies gave the United States Air Force its biggest day yet in the supply line over the Soviet ground barriers. In a 24-hour period, 294 two and four-engined transports landed at Tempelhof Airport with 571 tons of food and 993 of coal.

The city's currency snarl sparked disorder in the Soviet sector. Firemen quelled several stampedes with hoses when disturbances broke out among crowds waiting to change old Russian-sponsored money for the new issue before tonight's deadline. The exchange was reported going along more smoothly later today when the Russians opened 500 additional exchange offices.

Allies May Offer 4-Power Talks on Europe

Bevin will make a statement in the Commons Thursday before the Allied ambassadors visit Molotov. This statement, it is intimated, will lay a basis for the steps to come.

2. The western envoys in Moscow will call as a group on Molotov at the Kremlin. They are Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, American Ambassador; Yves Chataigneau, French Ambassador, and Frank Roberts, Bevin's principal private secretary, who left London today on his mission.

[Correspondents of the New York Herald Tribune in London and Moscow reported the three envoys woul dsee Molotov separately to avoid the appearance of acting as a bloc.]

3. The western envoys will present their case for the lifting of the blockade and a friendly settlement of the Berlin crisis, in personal conversation with Molotov, and will listen to any comments he cares to make.

4. The western envoys then will leave with Molotov a written aide memoire, a sttement of their case which will constitute an unofficial note. It was this aide memoire which was drafted and agreed on here in conferences earlier this week.

It is expected that the Western envoys will point out that the Berlin blockade is an extreme form of coercion and is contrary to the United Nations Charter. They are expected to add that they are always willing to negotiate and to talk to the Russians on any common problems, but not under duress.

At this point, according to information here, the Western envoys probably will suggest that four-power discussions of Europe as a whole would be possible if the Berlin blockade were lifted unconditionally. It was added that the envoys would not go into details but would await Molotov's reaction.

Further, it was said, the European problems which might be discussed, besides those on Germany, probably will not be specified. But among them are the question of an Austrian treaty, Trieste and the final disposal of Italy's African colonies.

This authoritative outline of Allied intentions indicates the Western nations have agreed to bend backward to be conciliatory toward Russia and give her a chance to get out of the Berlin situation gracefully.

Marshall Says Accord Reached on Next Step

Secretary Marshall yesterday said this country, Britain and France had agreed on their next step in the Berlin blockade. He kept secret the nature of the step, adding that he hoped the other two countries would do the same.

There is to be no showdown and the Western Allies plan a long exchange of diplomatic communications.

An authoritative source said: "This verbal note may set the course of future developments for a long time. That is why so much care and time have gone into its preparation. That is why so much intense attention has been given to Allied plans by all branches of the United States Government."

Britain's Special Envoy Roberts will fly to Moscow via Berlin. He was accompanied as far as Berlin by Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British commander in chief in Germany, who came here for the Russian talks. From Berlin, Roberts will accompany American Ambassador Smith to Moscow. Smith flew to Berlin yesterday and remained over to talk to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American commander in chief.

Charles E. Bohlen of the U. S. State Department, who flew here for high-level conferences on the Berlin situation, left by air tonight for Washington.

Shave Mustache, Win South, Dewey Advised

Mobile, Ala., July 28 (AP).—Presumably the Republicans' presidential nominee, Thomas E. Dewey, is now weighing his mustache against Southern votes.

J. W. Lord, Mobile businessman, said he wired Dewey he would carry the South if he shaved his mustache because Southerners are partial to clean-shaven men.

Lord said today he received a letter from the candidate's secretary saying Dewey was giving the suggestion "careful consideration."

Murder Injected Into Tito Quarrel

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

M/SEPGT. S. R. GUSTAFSON, 32, is reported to be the only survivor after the crash off the Arabian south coast of one of the three Air Force B-29 bombers flying around the world

B-29 Crashes Off Arabia

after a stop at Whellus Field, Tripoli. The original flight plan called for them to be back in Tucson August 5.

The flight was intended to train B-29 crews in the techniques of long over-water flights and "to acclimate personnel with worldwide regional conditions," the Air Force said. An informal explanation was that the flight was intended to show the present condition of wartime bases in faraway places.

The Davis-Monthan Army Air Base announced the names of fellow crewmen of Gustafson at the time the bomber left there last Thursday. The base said it was possible there had been some interchange of crew among the three planes and emphasized the list could not be considered a list of victims.

On Gustafason's plane when it left Tucson were:

Lieut. Col. Charles C. Pulliam, Huntington, W. Va., commander.

Capt. Hugh E. Gommel, Indianapolis, Ind., co-pilot.

First Lieut. Stanley L. Fleming, Downey, Calif., navigator.

Burma Leader Accuses Reds

London, July 28 (AP).—Burma's foreign minister, U Tin Tut, asserted today his government could prove that Communist risings in the Far East emerged from a carefully timed master plan worked out at a Calcutta conference last year.

He said documents seized in Burma established links between Communist-led guerillas operating in Malaya, "Free" China, Viet-Nam, India and Indonesia, besides Burma itself.

U Tin Tut said the new Burmese republic is able effectively to deal with its Communist opponents and that "there is no danger or popular desire" of Burma's going Communist.

He charged that a conference of Communist leaders from several Far Eastern countries met in Calcutta last March.

"Soon afterwards their campaigns of attrition began," he added.

27 Dead in Korean Floods

Seoul, July 28 (AP).—The Korean Pacific Press reported today 27 persons were drowned and 254 missing in flash floods in south Cholla Province.

Conspiracy Seen

Slavs Accuse U. S., Britain On Trieste

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 28 (AP). Murder was injected into the Yugoslav-Cominform quarrel today.

The Yugoslav information office charged that the secretary of the Yugoslav Legation in Budapest, Zhovko Boarov, had been arrested by the Hungarian government in connection with the murder of Milos Moic. The Hungarian government was accused of openly violating Boarov's diplomatic immunity and of deliberately using the murder to embitter Yugoslav-Hungarian relations. Yugoslavia has filed an official protest, it was announced.

Budapest dispatches said Hungarian government authorities refused to admit that Boarov had been arrested.

Final Step of Defiance

The final step of defiance of the Cominform was taken in the Yugoslav Communist Congress today when it adopted unanimously and with cheers for Marshal Tito a resolution declaring the Cominform charges "untrue, unfair and unjust."

The resolution declared that "everything possible should be done to liquidate the dispute" and the Cominform encouraged to see that its accusations were baseless.

The central committee was broadened from 28 to 63, and an alphabetical list of candidates, including all the old members, was adopted unanimously.

Marshal Tito, whom the Cominform wants thrown out, presumably will be reelected leader of the party.

Rift Appears Widened

Pravda, Communist Party newspaper in Moscow, charged the Yugoslav Legation in Budapest of harboring the "assassin of Milos Moic" and declared the slaying was part of "low terrorist plans of international reactionaries." Moscow observers said the incident appeared to have widened the rift between Yugoslavia and her sisters in the Communist Information Bureau.

Pravda said Hungarian authorities had unquestionable evidence that Moic, 30, who had sharply criticized "the nationalist anti-popular position" of Marshal Tito and the Yugoslav Communist central committee, was killed in his apartment by Boarov the night of July 10.

Moshe Pijade, vice president of the national presidium, announced to the Yugoslav Communist Congress that plans for a future Balkan federation with two other neighboring Communist countries, Bulgaria and Albania, have been dropped "owing to changes in relations" with those two countries.

Lake Success, N. Y., July 28 (U.P.). Yugoslavia accused the United States and Britain today of conspiring to incorporate the western zone of Trieste into Italy and demanded that the United Nations act before world peace is endangered.

The appeal to the U. N. Security Council was the first major international step taken by Marshal Tito's regime since it was accused by the Cominform of flirting with "Western bourgeois imperialists." However, it marked no apparent change in the Eastern bloc's position in the Trieste issue.

The Tito government said the United States was planning to bring Trieste into the Marshall Plan, that Italian money had free circulation in the zone, that uniform postal rates had been established, that custom barriers were eliminated and that Italy had agreed to finance the western zone's administration thus putting it "in a debtor relationship with Italy."

Yugoslavia said these actions were an attempt by the Western powers to achieve in a roundabout manner their open proposal in April to turn over Trieste to Italy.

Little Assembly Votes To Extend Its Life

Lake Success, July 28 (AP).—The United Nations Little Assembly agreed unanimously today to recommend an extension of its life.

The delegates decided to let the General Assembly determine the period.

The United States, original sponsor of the Little Assembly plan in the 1947 Assembly, had proposed a one-year extension. This was indorsed by John Foster Dulles, Republican policy adviser, in a news conference just before the vote.

Chinese Units Retake Points Near Taiyuan

Peiping, July 28 (AP).—Counter-attacking government troops have killed or wounded 2000 Communists in recapturing strong points around Taiyuan, besieged Shansi Province capital, press reports said today.

Among the strong points was Paichiachuang, a coal center 12 miles to the southwest. Warplanes bombed and strafed Red positions west, southwest and southeast of Taiyuan.

In Nanking, the Central News Agency said fresh government troops under Gen. Hu Tsung-nan had gone into action after long delay on the front some 250 miles southwest of Taiyuan.

These troops were reported to have reached the area where the borders of Honan, Shansi and Shensi Provinces touch.

Appeals Court Denies Bail for Gen. Meyers

The Court of Appeals denied bail yesterday for Maj. Gen. Bennett Meyers, former Army Air Force procurement officer, pending action on his appeal from a conviction of inducing another person to testify falsely.

Meyers was sentenced to from 20 months to five years in March.

Finn Cabinet To Skip Reds

Helsinki, Finland, July 28 (U.P.).—President Juho K. Paasikivi tonight authorized Premier-Designate Karl Fagerholm to exclude the Communists from his new government.

The President was careful not to single out the Communists, but he told Fagerholm the cabinet did not have to include all the Nation's top three parties—the Agrarians, Social Democrats and Communists.

Fagerholm, a Social Democrat, immediately announced that he would first try to form a coalition of Social Democrats and Agrarians. If that failed, he said he would attempt to line up a cabinet composed entirely of Social Democrats.

Two Attorneys Named to Handle 'Tokyo Rose' Case

By the United Press

The Justice Department yesterday announced assignment of two attorneys to prosecute its treason case against "Tokyo Rose."

The department's "Tokyo Rose" is one of six English-speaking Japanese women who broadcast over Radio Tokyo between 1943 and 1945. Her right name is Iza Ikuko Toguri D'Aquino. United States troops used the same nickname for all the women. The others were Japanese citizens.

The two attorneys are Thomas G. DeWolfe and John B. Hogan, both of the department's criminal division.

"Upon her return to the United States, they will present such evidence as they have gathered to a grand jury," the announcement said.

When that will be, Justice Department officials could not say. She has not yet been arrested in Tokyo.

Chief of MacArthur's Labor Section to Quit In Protest of Ban on Government Strikes

Tokyo, Japan, July 28 (U.P.)—James S. Killen of Falls Church, Va., chief of the Allied headquarters labor section, said today he plans to resign because of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's new labor policy forbidding Japan's 1,842,000 unionized government employes to strike.

A few hours after this announcement, nearly 2500 government-paid professors at Japanese colleges and universities went on strike, despite a warning from a cabinet minister that they were flouting MacArthur's orders.

Killen, who is vice president of the AFL Pulp and Papermill Workers' International Union back in the States, said he was quitting after 15 months here because MacArthur's new policy denied government employes the right of collective bargaining.

The supreme commander wrote a letter several days ago to Premier Hitoshi Ashida strongly suggesting that Japan's public service law be amended to ban strikes by government employes, who comprise one-fourth of the Nation's organized labor force. MacArthur quoted the late President Franklin Roosevelt as saying that a strike by Government employes would be "intolerable."

Already beset by labor troubles, Ashida interpreted the suggestion as a direct order, and the letter was credited with saving his shaky government from collapse.

Killen, who planned a more detailed statement before his expected resignation within the next 48 hours, said, "there is no issue on the question of strikes in government service, that issue having been satisfactorily resolved in England and other countries through formalized collective negotiations and arbitration procedures."

Killen's decision to resign reportedly came after a four-hour debate in MacArthur's presence between the labor adviser and Brig. Gen. Courtney Whitney, government section chief.

Killen Is Official Of Pulp Workers Union

James S. Killen, 40 years old, has been a member of the Pulp Workers Union since 1933. He is the union's eighth vice president and its international representative.

Born the son of a minister in Port Townsend, Wash., in January, 1908, he is a high school graduate. He is married and has three children. His home is in Falls Church, Va.

During the war Killen was an official of the War Production Board specializing in the paper and paper products production and allocation divisions.

One top AFL official remarked that Killen "is a pretty solid fellow, and if he threatens to resign he must have a good reason."

Killen has been regarded as a labor moderate. He has attacked Communist influence in Japanese labor unions and has conducted campaigns to educate members in ways of avoiding dictatorial control of unions.

Dorn Vs Waring

Remarriage Of Judge Questioned

J. WATIES WARING

By The Associated Press

Representative Dorn (D., S. C.) said yestreday in the Congressional Record "Judge J. Waties Waring has not been, and is not now, qualified from ability or temperament for the high office of United States district judge." Judge Waring recently ordered the Democratic Party in South Carolina to enroll Negroes.

Waring is judge of the Eastern District of South Carolina.

On Tuesday Dorn introduced a resolution in the House calling for an investigation of the "conduct in office" of Judge Waring. He mentioned the judge's second marriage.

Dorn said:

"If Judge Waring is guilty, as I believe he is, and as I now charge, or usurping the rights of the free citizens of South Carolina in attempting to force down their throats his own ideas of governmental matters, it will be the duty of this Congress to prefer articles of impeachment.

"If a Federal judge can do that to the Democratic Party, then some Federal judge in some other State of the Union may attempt to dictate to the Republican Party or to Henry Wallace's new party or to the Socialist Party or to the Prohibition Party or to the Democratic Party of any other State the principles that each of those parties must subscribe to. . . .

"If a judge can set the hours of day that the books of a party must close, he can set the hours of the day that we must go to church, to school, and to work. . . .

"Judge Waring failed to state in this order, as he had said before, that a man or woman voting in the primary election in South Carolina of the Democratic Party did not even have to say that he was a Democrat. . . . Even a Communist, if he possesses the constitutional qualification in South Carolina, can vote in a Democratic primary under the ruling of Judge Waring.

"Under the orders of Judge Waring, . . . it will be a primary under the dictation of a Federal judge.

"According to all reports, his (Waring's) conduct at Richmond, Va., last year alone is sufficient grounds for an investigation.

"The State of South Carolina has no divorce law. The people of that State would like to know how Judge Waring could obtain a separation from a lady to whom he had been married 30 years, remarry and serve on a Federal bench in that great State."

Senator Maybank (D., S. C.) told the Senate yesterday that Alan Johnstone, Newberry, S. C., who is running against Maybank for the Senate, had asked him to start impeachment proceedings against Waring. The Senator reminded Johnstone that any such action must begin in the House of Representatives.

Maybank told the Senate:

"I have previously condemned Judge Waring for his actions in reaching beyond the jurisdiction of his court and I still feel that he exceeded his authority in his orders to the Democratic Party of South Carolina. There is no precedent in South Carolina for his actions in a civil case."

Judges Differ In Rulings On Alien Cases

Justice Alexander Holtzoff of District Court ruled yesterday that in deportation hearings there need not be "neutral" examiners as required by the Administrative Procedure Act of 1946.

The decision is apparently in direct contradiction to a ruling rendered two months ago by Justice T. Alan Goldsborough of the same court in a deportation case involving Gerhart Eisler, onetime top Communist agent, and four other left-wingers.

Thus whether hundreds of aliens now awaiting deportation will be sent out of the country is up to the United States Court of Appeals here.

Justice Holtzoff ruled that it was proper for immigration service inspectors to preside in hearings involving deportation of aliens. That is the present procedure used by the Government to determine whether deportations are advisable.

It was in a case brought by a Chinese seaman, Wong Yang Sung, 656 Pennsylvania ave. se., who allegedly jumped ship in 1946. His attorneys, Leo J. Michaloski and Thomas A. Farrell, cited Justice Goldsborough's prior decision during the case.

The Administrative Procedure Act of 1946 provides for hearing by neutral examiners, and Justice Goldsborough earlier had ruled that such a hearing "is an integral part of the Deportation Act."

The Government, in Wong's case, was represented by Assistant United States Attorney Oliver O. Dibble.

Wong's attorney said they would appeal.

Guild to Vote On Red Again

The Washington Newspaper Guild last night voted to hold another membership referendum to decide whether the local guild will or will not "prosecute to the utmost" the dismissal of Thomas G. Buchanan, reporter of the Evening Star discharged after he admitted membership in the Communist Party.

Members of the guild, meeting in the board room of the District Building, 14th and E sts. nw., voted 64 to 27 in favor of the referendum on the motion of Murrey Marder, a reporter for The Washington Post.

Basis of the Marder motion was a decision by the American Newspaper Guild in its recent San Francisco convention that the "Buchanan firing should be resisted to the fullest."

The guild members also adopted a resolution calling on Maryland judges "to defend the rights of a free press and free speech" and to eliminate any court rules that "would gag the press of Maryland."

The resolution referred to recent proposals to make State-wide restrictions on crime news reporting now imposed by Baltimore courts.

ing known as the "nitrate building."

The plant had been producing industrial chemicals, drugs and dyes. However, unconfirmed reports in recent months said the French also were using it to make high explosive propulsion fluids for experiments with V-1 and V-2 rockets.

Strong fumes from burning chemicals sent survivors reeling about the streets like blind men tonight.

Others—even in Mannheim, American zone city across the Rhine—were injured and dazed by falling brick walls and shattered glass.

Americans in Rescue Work

American soldiers sped across the rickety wooden bridge connecting Mannheim and Ludwigshafen and undertook rescue work. Some wearing gas masks plunged through smoke and fumes to disconnect railway cars containing highly explosive chemicals and move them out of range of the fire.

Others operated bulldozers and tractors to open paths through wreckage.

An estimate of "thousands" dead was posted in the United States Army information room at Heidelberg tonight, but the Army said the bulletin was "unofficial."

Police on the scene gave their estimate of 500 to 800 dead after being told of the posted bulletins.

One source said the plant, largest in the French zone, was about 80 per cent destroyed.

The casualty toll even included rescuers. Two persons were killed in a collision of two vehicles rushing to the disaster scene.

Special efforts were made tonight to prevent the flames from reaching underground storage tanks, reported to contain highly volatile chemicals.

War-time bombing raids of the giant industrial works caused nothing like the damage of today's explosion and fire.

Tonight it presented the scene of an inferno, with intermittent explosions toppling what little was left standing of the red brick buildings.

American generals from U. S. Army headquarters in the nearby university city of Heidelberg came to Ludwigshafen tonight to offer the Army's services in any way possible.

Helmeted French troops carrying rifles held back crowds of weeping relatives who tried to inch their way nearer the flaming wreckage and find a trace of the missing.

Rhine Banks Crowded

On the American occupied side of the Rhine other crowds lined the banks to watch the flames and the hovering column of smoke that had a base a half-mile square.

An automobile driver said he saw the smoke column when he was 20 miles from Ludwigshafen.

An American military government official said "from my window here in Mannheim, the smoke cloud over the plant seems to be about a half mile square. Several buildings apparently have blown up but it is impossible to tell definitely because the smoke obscures everything."

The plant, a branch of the I. G. Farbenindustrie before the giant industrial combine was split up by four-power order, is the main factory in Ludwigshafen. It covers several acres.

5 Pickets Hurt As Police Win Univis Battle

Dayton, Ohio, July 28 (AP).—Police won a violent skirmish with pickets today in the third day of the battle with a CIO union over the reopening of the Univis Lens Co. plant. Five pickets were injured.

Witnesses said heavily reinforced squads of police swung clubs and cracked heads in again forcing a path through a picket line at the entrance to the plant.

Some 340 nonstriking employes scurried through the corridor in a back-to-work movement that started Monday.

Tonight, the Montgomery County CIO Industrial Union Council—threatening a county-wide labor holiday against "police brutality"—threw its support tonight behind the strikers. The council ordered a mass picket line of leaders and available workers from the second and third work shifts of various Dayton industrial plants.

Among the injured was Lou Kaplan, international organizer of the CIO United Electrical Workers. He was treated at a hospital for a bashed head and then jailed.

CIO leaders immediately raised a cry of "police brutality" after going to city hall to protest police action before Mayor Louis Lohrey and four other city commissioners.

The Univis plant reopened Monday under police protection. Several hundred employes crossed the picket line in response to a back to work call issued by M. H. Stanley, company president.

In a National Labor Relations Board poll last Friday the workers voted, 302 to 272, not to retain the union, Local 768 of the CIO's United Electrical Workers as bargaining agent. Stanley announced employes not back at work by Thursday would be fired. The strike, starting May 5, developed out of a wage dispute.

Police Capt. M. C. Kirkpatrick reported the 150 policemen at the scene had the situation under control after the brief but most violent skirmish so far this week at the picket line. The captain had blood on his shirt.

Union leaders declared they had not given up the battle.

Bethlehem Workers Spurn 'Package' Raise

Camden, N. J., July 28 (AP).—The CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America today rejected Bethlehem Steel Co.'s package wage increase offer of 9½ cents.

The package offer included a 7-cent, across-the-board increase for the company's production workers in 9 yards in the Boston, Baltimore, New York and Hoboken, N. J., areas.

Union publicity director Milton Murray said the Bethlehem Atlantic Coast Committee, comprised of union representatives, will meet tomorrow in New York and will request another meeting with management.

Mine Victim Burials Set

Princeton, Ind., July 28 (AP).—Sorrowful families today gathered up the bodies of 13 coal miners killed in yesterday's explosion at the King's Mine and prepared to bury them in a series of funeral services that will extend through Sunday.

State inspectors sought to determine what set off the gas blast which blew a huge concrete seal from a corridor or "run," as the miners call it, which was closed last week after the coal vein had been "worked out."

The shower of debris killed the 13 men and injured four others, two of them critically.

Charles A. Herbert, chief of the United States Bureau of Mines Office at Vincennes, Ind., and Griffith Morris, secretary of the State Board of Mines, agreed that a gas explosion caused the tragedy but neither would or could say what touched it off.

About 160 men at work in other parts of the underground workings left safely when an alarm was sounded.

Ludwigshafen, Germany, July 28 (U.P.).—Explosions and fires which wrecked the Ludwigshafen plant of I. G. Farbenindustrie chemical trust continued late tonight and flames licked toward a big ethylchlorol tank seven hours after the first blast.

Germans, Frenchmen and Americans fought side by side by the light of the raging flames to save the many injured still buried in wreckage.

American Army chaplains and other clergymen went in with the rescue teams to give last rites to the dying.

Though the plant was under French-American direction, no American casualties were reported.

About 8000 Germans were in the compound when an earth-shaking blast stopped clocks in Ludwigshafen at 3:44 p. m.

The cause of the blast may never be known because of the extent of damage. It was believed, however, that a fire started in a lacquer-making section spread swiftly to the methyl violet works.

As I write, rescue workers and fire fighters, covered with purple dye from methyl violet and wearing gas masks, were going into the flaming areas.

The rescuers reached one man, still conscious, who was pinned under a 5-ton piece of twisted machinery. They could not free him. A surgeon amputated a leg. Then he was lifted out. An inch from safety, a girder slipped and, striking him on the head, killed him.

The dead lay in rows along the streets until it was possible to remove them.

An American officer said he saw looters rifling the pockets of some dead.

One chaplain said he gave the last rites to at least 51 persons while other chaplains were busy nearby.

Streetcars, buses and private automobiles were requisitioned to take away the injured.

Blasted I. G. Farben Plant One of World's Greatest

Mannheim, Germany, July 28 (U.P.).—U. S. Army authorities said tonight that the Ludwigshafen plant was one of the greatest in the world. With one other plant, it was said, it produced 60 per cent of Germany's nitrogen and 40 per cent of its methanol in World War II. Both these products are used in making TNT and other explosives.

Also, with one other factory, the Ludwigshafen unit produced about 76 per cent of Germany's ethylchloride for tetraethyl lead in gasoline.

Ludwigshafen and another factory were said to have produced 90 per cent of Germany's sodium cyanide for transparent plastic used in planes.

During the war Ludwigshafen produced alone 300,000 tons of nitrogen a year. Its postwar capacity was 180,000 tons.

At the time of the explosion, Heidelberg reports said, the factory was turning out dyes, paints, lacquer, plastics, nitrogen, sulphuric acid, assorted chemicals and various tanning agents.

Reports to the Army said up to 60 per cent of the buildings had been destroyed by seven explosions and resultant fires which sent sheets of flame racing through the buildings, filled with highly inflammable chemicals.

The Ludwigshafen plant, it was said here, is under control of the American and French military governments.

The plant, which is in the French occupation zone, consists of a number of compounds or sections. The compound virtually destroyed today contained 18 buildings. Most of the dead were believed in the destroyed compound but workers throughout the plant were injured by falling debris, broken glass, fire and fumes.

Farben Vital In Germany's War Effort

By The Associated Press

I. G. Farbenindustrie Aktiengsellschaft, the gigantic German dye trust, along with the Krupp munitions works formed the backbone of Nazi Germany's industrial war effort. It was also the largest industrial combine in prewar Germany.

The explosion which shattered Farben's big Ludwigshafen chemical works Wednesday came on the eve of the general judgment today by a U. S. war crimes court on the war guilt or innocence of 23 top Farben officials and directors. Individual verdicts and sentences will be read Friday.

The big plant in the chemical City of Ludwigshafen was blasted several times by U.S. and RAF bombers during the war.

At the height of its power, the Farben combine controlled 400 firms in Germany and more than 500 throughout the world.

One top Farben official, in statements introduced by the prosecution when the war crimes trials opened last August, said the trust had obtained more than $1,220,000,000 in credits and subsidies from the Nazi government for its part in Hitler's four-year plan of war preparation. These sums were applied to such projects as development of explosives and poison gas, as well as synthetic rubber and gasoline.

A "top secret" record of a directors meeting in November, 1941, showed that Farben officials coldly discussed how helpful the slave labor at the Oswiecim (Poland) concentration camp was for the production of synthetic rubber for the Nazi war machine.

"One thousand men are living in the hutted camps, and further huts for 4000 are to be finished by the end of the year," the secret report showed. "In 1942 the camp must be increased to provide room for 10,000 to 12,000 men."

Evidence was introduced to show that Farben, while barring experiments with animals, used prisoners to test poison gases.

The indictment charged Farben leaders with using cartels to carry on propaganda, espionage and fifth column activities outside Germany and to weaken efforts of the United States to aid Nazi-opposed democracies in the days before Pearl Harbor.

Stretching out its tentacles toward the United States, the indictment claimed, Farben managed through its cartel arrangements to retard the "production within the United States of certain strategic products, including synthetic rubber, magnesium, synthetic nitrogen, tetrazen, atabrine and sulpha drugs."

Many Farben plants in Germany have been demolished by the occupying powers in the demilitarization program. Some of the plants went to Russia as reparations. Plans for breaking up the many-headed monster involved 17 different units, each controlling many plants.

Souther Seeks Smith's Position on Truman

Arthur F. Souther, Democratic candidate for Congress in next Tuesday's party primary, last night called on incumbent Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) to tell whether or not he will support President Truman.

In a telegram to Smith, Souther, an Arlington businessman, said Virginia Democrats "have a right to know" the Congressman's stand.

French Cabinet

It is difficult to believe that the government of incongruous elements that M. Andre Marie has finally succeeded in forming in France will be very long lived. The best that can be hoped is that it will be able to survive until the political situation has been clarified at the municipal elections next October. The question was even raised before it weathered its first test in the Assembly whether it would be able to survive the attack that the Communists launched against it. The focus of their attack was the assignment of the portfolio of finance to M. Reynaud. This, of course, was a necessary concession to the non-Gaullist members of the Right, whose support is necessary to any government that does not include the Communists.

In other words, the new Marie government will encounter precisely the same difficulties which ultimately overthrew the government of M. Robert Schuman. These difficulties arose from the necessity of the Socialists to maintain at all costs their status as a radical party. After their somewhat belated discovery that cooperation with the Communists in popular fronts meant the sacrifice of their political independence, they are fearful that cooperation with the Right will mean the sacrifice of their continued existence as a major political party. The Socialists have suffered heavy losses recently to both the Communists and the M.R.P.; they cannot hope to retain their remaining strength among the working class without insisting upon a radical and revolutionary program of reforms.

Now, after being obliged to quarrel with the severe fiscal policies of M. Mayer, thereby disrupting the Schuman government, they are confronted by M. Reynaud with the same portfolio of finance. They will find him even more difficult to swallow, since he is more orthodox and conservative in his economic views than M. Mayer. Premier Marie has sought to coat the pill for the Socialists. The structure of the new government which gives the Socialists the same representation as the M.R.P., leaving the balance of power with the Radical Socialists and Independent Republicans, seems to represent a concession to the Socialists for the appointment of M. Reynaud.

The present indications are that the Gaullists have no immediate intention of opposing the Marie government and that if the Communists succeed in creating a breach among the Socialists the Gaullists will rally to its support. This, of course, means that the government will exist by sufferance of General de Gaulle. M. de Gaulle is evidently biding his time until he is given a mandate so plain that it will enable him to demand the constitutional reforms he has proposed. There seems now to be no doubt that in the event of another serious crisis like that of last autumn M. de Gaulle will receive the call he has been awaiting.

Segregated Army

If General Bradley's offhand remarks at Fort Knox Tuesday on racial segregation in the Army are indicative of how the President's antidiscrimination order is to be applied, that program is likely to be a hollow one indeed. President Truman called for "equality of treatment and opportunity for all persons in the armed services." General Bradley asserted, however, that "the Army is not out to make any social reforms. The Army will put men of different races in different companies. It will change that policy when the Nation as a whole changes it." In fairness to General Bradley, it must be explained that he had not seen the President's order at the time he delineated Army policy, but the unfortunate effect remains.

That the Army's mission is not social reform is indisputable. The fallacy in General Bradley's formula lies in the assumption that there can be equality of opportunity under segregation. Inevitably, no matter how similar the physical facilities, the minority group is discriminated against if for no other reason than denial of association. Equality of opportunity is still a fiction when advancement is limited largely to segregated jobs. Even the partial integration of Negro companies into white battalions, as recommended in the Gillem report, still leaves relationships on a racial basis.

The Army's concern with racial problems cannot be doubted, and many attempts have been made to better relationships. The trouble with these efforts is that they have been made within the framework of the status quo, namely, segregation. It is a mistake, we believe, to think that the Army has to follow the so-called national pattern. What is the national pattern? Certainly not universal segregation. Indeed, in the few instances where integration has been tried in the Army, it has been carried out with a lessening of prejudice.

As long as Negroes are concentrated in separate units, relationships are on a racial basis. This newspaper firmly believes that the problem can be solved only through progressive integration. The ratio of whites to Negroes in the Army is approximately 8 to 1. A policy of gradual dispersion of Negro units and individual reassignments throughout the Army, carried out without fanfare, would lessen the possibilities of racial strife, would tend to increase military efficiency, and would certainly be less costly than the maintenance of duplicate facilities.

Gradual absorption is the policy that the armed forces will have to adopt if the full meaning of the President's order is to be realized. It would be encouraging to have the great stature and breadth of vision General Bradley has exhibited on so many occasions devoted to meeting this problem squarely.

Following Through

The Republican leadership has decided to bring up the anti-poll-tax bill in the Senate today. The object, of course, is plain—to let the special session peter out with the Democrats quarreling among themselves. No doubt the temptation is very great to let the potential filibusterers among the Southerners turn Congress into a circus. The President certainly invited a game of who shall put whom on the spot. But we suggest that the spectacle would do a lot of damage to the prestige of Congress in the eyes of the American people at a time when the danger of war is uncomfortably close. Party as well as national interests would suffer from the stratagem. We dare say that before the exhibition was over the people would be crying a plague on both the parties.

This newspaper has chosen to regard the President's program at face value. But words and actions still have to be joined, and Mr. Truman still has to demonstrate his own seriousness. What happened last November is fresh in congressional memory, even if it has been forgotten by the electorate. The heart of the war on inflation is credit control. Yet the President did nothing after his message last November to show a sincere belief in his own recommendation. Is he now prepared to implement his own program? That remains to be seen. So far as we can make out, not a member of his Administration has been prepared to give Congress a plan to realize the credit proposal. Senator Tobey, chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee, one of the few Republicans ready and anxious to consider the Truman program, will have a hard job, judging from experience, in getting any testimony from Administration spokesmen on new controls over bank credit. If there is any repetition of the procrastination of last year, we hope that it will be exposed. Nothing can be more reprehensible than the way in which both parties have been playing politics with the cost of living.

Let no legislator on the Hill make any mistake about it—the cost of living is a vital issue in every American household. It is now at an all-time high. It has gone up by 30 per cent since price controls were dropped two years ago. This is no argument for the return of comprehensive controls, and the housewife, struggling with her budget, is, in our opinion, too individualist to think of such controls in any terms other than, as the President himself once put it, the thin end of the wedge of the police state. But the housewife does expect to see the Congress take steps to recognize the condition of the Nation's dollar. She does expect to see the condition treated as a challenge. Congress, after all, was elected to safeguard the dollar as well as other American institutions, and it is an obligation that of late years has been ducked, with a result apparent in the increasingly lowly stature of the dollar in the marketplace.

Governor Dewey seems to realize this. He is reported to feel "that the Congress should stay in Washington and give careful consideration to whatever is proposed in the President's message." The accent of statesmanship is in the Dewey statement. We fail to find it, however, in much of the congressional comment on the Truman message. We hope the GOP standard-bearer will seek to inculcate his view among the Republican following on Capitol Hill. Judging from the comment of Senator Baldwin, who said it will be tragic to refuse to legislate, the New Yorker may have substantial support among the more progressive Republicans. We all stand to lose by the politicking that is threatened, and, if Republicans want to put the Administration on the spot, they can do so and at the same time benefit the country by seeing that the President follows through. There may have been a good deal of the phony in the Truman recommendations, but the situation to which they were addressed is by no means phony.

Unbalanced Prices

In his address to Congress, President Truman said that the rise in industrial prices "threatens to destroy a fair balance between industry and agriculture." He added that "it [the rise] can only end in catastrophe if it is allowed to continue." The President's assumption that the country now has a balanced price structure conflicts with the evidence. As a matter of fact inflation has brought about a dislocation between the prices of agricultural and industrial products that has resulted in a highly unstable price structure. For advances in farm products and food prices have far outstripped increases in the prices of manufactured products, and it is the increases in the former that are chiefly responsible for the living price squeeze that the President emphasizes.

BLS wholesale price indices testify to the imbalance between prices of farm products and commodities other than farm products and foods. The former are 98 per cent above the level of the base year 1926, while the latter are only 50.4 per cent higher. The rise in case of manufactured products alone averages 63.4 per cent. Why, then, does the President put all the emphasis on the necessity of restraining further advances in prices of goods that have shown a less than average increase and fail to stress the more spectacular rise in agricultural prices that is particularly significant and oppressive from the viewpoint of low income families that spend a larger proportionate amount of their incomes for food?

In a study of The Structure of Postwar Prices, published by the National Bureau of Economic Research, Frederick C. Mills points out that the present price structure is "a very recent creation." He concludes that, as conditions of supply and demand are stabilized under peacetime conditions, "modifications may be expected to bring agricultural and industrial prices somewhat nearer to the relations of the interwar period." Of course it does not follow that those relationships will be identical with prewar patterns in view of the many changes in underlying conditions that have occurred in recent years. However, some adjustments are inevitable, and The Washington Post believes that they are now in process of being effected, since larger crops and curtailed world demand for our agricultural products make for a lower level of agricultural prices, while prices of some industrial products will inevitably rise to allow for increases in production costs.

Such price adjustments will, of course, bring protests both from those producer groups adversely affected by price declines and from industrial and consumer groups forced to pay higher prices for industrial raw materials and manufactured goods. But it is price instability rather than the high level of prices that is the chief menace to continued high production and general prosperity at the present time. Consequently, if corrective advances in prices of industrial goods can be kept within bounds—in other words, if they are not increased to such an extent as to initiate a new round of wage and price increases—the country may emerge from the present period of inflation with a somewhat lower and more stable price structure without experiencing the feared price collapse that has heretofore followed inflation.

Union Shop Election

Representative Hartley, co-sponsor of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, has come out in support of legislation repealing the requirement that NLRB elections be held before a union shop can be set up under a collective bargaining contract. Experience has shown, Mr. Hartley points out, that such elections are costly and usually result in an overwhelmingly large vote in favor of the union shop. Top-ranking officials of the NLRB have been urging Congress to abolish union shop polls for some time for similar reasons. There is an abundance of evidence to support their view that the NLRB has been seriously handicapped by the necessity of conducting these elections. Moreover, since the great majority of workers want the union shop, they do not need to be protected by a poll against forced acceptance.

While any general revision of the Taft-Hartley Act at this special session is out of the question, there is no reason why Congress should not repeal the union-shop election requirement. Bills calling for such repeal were introduced in the House and Senate at the last session. Action on these bills relieve the NLRB of a mountain of unfinished business and make it unnecessary to press the charges of unfair labor practices brought against John L. Lewis for by-passing the union-shop-election requirements. Hearings on those charges are now in progress and a final decision probably will not be reached for a good many months. With the mine workers known to be in favor of the union shop and currently working under a union shop contract, prompt revision of the law enabling the NLRB to discontinue the Lewis hearings would save time and money that the NRLB could use to better purpose.

Woman In The Case

Now the mystery of Marshal Tito's fall from Cominform grace has been cleared up. The woman tempted him—a bourgeois woman, of course—according to Czech Communists. In Prague the report is printed that Olga Nincic, the beautiful designer of Tito's magnificent gold uniforms, diverted the marshal's attention from true Marxism. Tito, for all his love of the exploited masses, was attracted, according to the Prague Communists, to a former member of the Jugo-Slavian aristocracy, the daughter of King Alexander's foreign minister. One Prague article described her as the "somewhat snobbish star of the new regime," with "bourgeois tastes" and "love of luxury and intrigue." The Cominform, it was indicated in the article, was aware of this "decadent" influence on Tito when it launched its ideological charges against him.

Whether the Russian Communists will accept this theory that 56-year-old Tito was corrupted ideologically by a bourgeois girl friend remains to be seen. It would be most inconsistent for them to do so. For they recently ridiculed the American State Department's charge that 21-year-old Sergt. James M. McMillin, cryptographer in the American Embassy in Moscow, renounced his country as a result of being exploited and seduced by a young Soviet agent, Mrs. Galina Dunaeva Biconish. It was distaste for American capitalism, not passion for "Galya," that caused Sergeant McMillin to decide to stay in the Soviet Union, the Russian Communists maintained. However, they probably would argue that Tito's case was different, for while there is no such thing as a proletarian temptress, according to Marx, everyone knows that the world abounds in bourgeois ones.

Public Housing

Speaking of the failure to pass the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill, a man said to me the other day, "Congress cut out the part of the low-rent, slum-clearance housing bill which would have made the United States Government a construction agency, and passed the rest of it so that the Government only acts as a bank."

Doubtless there are many people who think thusly. The true, simple fact is that in this work the United States Government assists local housing authorities, which are to be found in cities, towns and rural areas, to build dwellings to rehouse families who formerly lived in slums. The Government lends funds to these authorities, and like every good lending agency, receives payment for this loan, as well as having a portion of the loan repaid annually.

However, to assist the tenants to live in decency, who previously had barely existed in slum habitations, the Government pays a "subsidy," so that the rentals paid by tenants may come within their limited incomes—the subsidy amounting to a small sum which permits the housing project to meet all costs of maintenance and operation, so that it may be run without a deficit.

The private investor is not concerned with building construction and maintenance which derives no profit. The private builder has much right now to keep him occupied, for a large fraction of the homes of our Nation's middle-income group are outmoded, and with age fast reaching the slum class. To rehouse the middle-income group, which can afford to pay fair rentals within their means and still permit Mr. Private Builder to make a handsome profit for himself, there is sufficient work to keep him thriftily occupied for decades to come.

"Atom Toys"

Too often the American press distorts news items toward destructiveness and sensationalism when a constructive approach would not only be more factual but would also give our people a better perspective on world problems. A case in point is your editorial, "Atom Toys," of July 23. The facts pertaining to this item are as follows:

Since 1915 the company of which I am president has made and distributed several million chemistry outfits. These outfits are designed to interest boys and girls in chemistry through a series of carefully selected interesting and harmless experiments.

The manufacturers of these chemistry outfits have recently worked out a section on radioactivity and atomic energy which is being included in the larger sizes of their outfits. This section includes a small sample of uranium ore with which the young experimenter can repeat the classical experiment of Henri Becquerel, namely marking unexposed photographic film with the radioactive emanations. A spinthariscope is included in which can be seen the flashes caused by the alpha rays from radioactive material striking a sensitive screen.

When the experimenter has performed these and other harmless experiments he reads in the manual a simple description of subatomic particles, radioactive atoms, nuclear fission and the cyclotron, chain reactions, atomic energy in nature, and the future of atomic energy. Less than one page of this 32-page manual is devoted to the atomic bomb, and this is a simple description of the action and effect of this instrument.

The toys of today are an important factor in molding the men and women of tomorrow. Is the future of our country brighter with the people in ignorance and fear of new scientific developments, or will knowledge give us confidence and enable us to direct our newly found powers into constructive channels?

Pershing Stamp

In due time there will be a commemorative postage stamp in honor of the late General Pershing, but there is no hurry about it. Between July 31 and December 9 there will be issued 22 commemorative stamps and facilities at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing are rushed beyond measure. Such a stamp for General Pershing will be a popular one and at the same time it should be the best engraving that it is possible to manufacture. Let the work not be performed in a hurry, for there is no need of such a rush job.

Armed Forces Pay

The last session of the Congress was notable for its disregard for the welfare of armed forces personnel. While other Government employes received a "cost of living" increase, the inaction of the Congress resulted in a decrease of pay for the armed services commencing January 1, 1949.

I refer to the failure to pass the $1500 income tax deduction previously allowed. This, in effect, requires a larger income tax payment on the same salary—hence, less "take home" pay.

It is quite difficult for "old timers" to swallow, since back in 1932 when the "hard times" 15 per cent reduction went into effect for all Government employes the ruling was made that "members of the armed forces are Government employes."

I believe that if the mounting tide of resignation and voluntary retirement are to cease and our military establishment retain some semblance of efficiency, certain moves are imperative. They are: Immediately restore the $1500 income tax deduction for 1949; grant an "increase of living" addition at least equal to that granted the Government employes; expedite the current study of a new wage scale and act on it, and pass legislation to take care of the families of personnel after their death.

India's Interest In Hyderabad

As my July 2 letter has brought a communication on July 18 from Mr. Razvi, a citizen of Hyderabad, I hope you will publish the following comments:

1. If there is any difference of opinion between the United States and the Union of India on economic and commercial matters, that has nothing to do with the Kashmir and Hyderabad situations which are India's internal affairs.

It should be clearly understood that India's attitude to the United States is most friendly; but India has her own economic policies, as the United States has hers. Indo-American economic cooperation will be of mutual benefit and it will be welcome to Indian statesmen, provided American industrialists wish to cooperate with Indian businessmen and the American Government cooperates with the Government of India, not merely in matters of exchange of goods, but along the lines of developing Indian industries for the purpose of raising the standard of living in India.

2. The foreign policy of India is based upon furthering India's national interests and the promotion of world peace in cooperation with the United Nations.

India's possible change of attitude toward Britain and other members of the British Commonwealth will be solely dependent upon their actions—favoring or hurting India's national interests.

To avoid any misunderstanding, I wish to make it clear that it is a mistake to think that to be friendly with Britain it is necessary for India to be a part of the British Commonwealth.

3. Hyderabad is not a sovereign independent state. Any effort on the part of Hyderabad to assert its independence will justly be regarded by the Government of India as a movement for secesson, and the government, after exhausting all means of peaceful settlement, will be justified in adopting any means of coercion if need be to protect the interests of 300 million people and national interests and territorial integrity of the Indian Union.

4. It should not be forgotten or overlooked that more than 88 per cent of the total population of Hyderabad, is demanding a democratic and responsible government and the accession of Hyderabad to the Union of India. The Nizam, and the feudal barons representing the Moslem minority are not only opposed to all forms of democratic government but are trying to assert Hyderabad's independence.

But the government of India, through Lord Mountbatten, while he was the Governor General of the Indian Union, offered a most generous proposition to Hyderabad which, according to the proposed agreement, would enjoy the same kind of autonomy as Bavaria enjoyed within the German Empire after 1871; but it has been rejected. It is known that the Nizam's government has been engaged in securing arms and officers through Pakistan to oppose the demands of the Government of India; thus the government of India, instead of taking armed action, has taken economic sanction to induce the Nizam to establish a popular government in place of the existing Fascist and totalitarian regime.

5. Mr. Razvi has dragged the name of Mahatma Gandhi and his teachings of nonviolent ideals into his discussion of the situation in Hyderabad. Is Hyderabad practicing nonviolence, when it is a known fact that Hindu villages have been destroyed and innocent people demanding popular government have been brutally treated and even killed by the armed police of Hyderabad?

As things stand today, partition of India has not brought peace, but has been a forerunner of a national calamity. It is unthinkable now that the Government of India will again follow a mistaken policy of appeasing a force which is plotting to disrupt the Indian Union.

New Trend In Birth Rate

By Malvina Lindsay

More "College" Babies

WITH THE BABY business picking up among the better educated, the rich and the city dwellers, some national social and political changes may be in the offing. These groups, frequently censured for having few children or none, have been found by the Census Bureau to be increasing their families. The most striking increase in births was among college educated women—77 per cent between 1940 and 1947.

While farmers, poor people and the non-college educated still have by far the largest families, yet their monopoly on human breeding seems to have been broken to a degree within the last seven years. This upturn in births among the high school and college educated and the higher income groups has set sociologists to asking: why?

One reason of course is that there has been more marrying among college and higher income people, as well as among all other groups. In fact there has been a big marrying and child bearing trend all over the world—as today's hunger and population problems attest.

ORDINARILY those most able to marry and rear children are most cautious about doing so. They hesitate to risk lowering their living standards—a precaution that seldom keeps low income couples away from the altar. Also the college people are likely to marry later in life. However, the emotions and risks of war, as well as the general social trend of recent years, set college men and women to marrying earlier and to having children younger.

Perhaps they, like all other young people, have felt in the face of catastrophe man's primal urge to perpetuate his kind. High employment and general prosperity also have encouraged marriage among those who ordinarily want to wait until they see a safe road ahead financially. In marked contradiction to the 1920's, when there was a general psychic flight from responsibility—accompanied by a drop in the birth rate—young couples of even the most sheltered backgrounds have been boldly starting to rear families in a most uncertain and menacing world.

Changing social custom has been another influence speeding up marriage and child bearing. Many young women trained for careers have not, as in the past, been pursuing them first and marrying afterward but have been carrying them along with marriage and children. Many others are falling in with the general tendency to marry early and have children early and devote the later years of life to careers or to public service.

NO ONE can tell how long this so-called upper class spurt in propagation will continue or how it will affect the birth rate in the long run. It may be part of a general trend toward medium sized families which would replace the old set-up of two extremes—big families at the bottom of the economic ladder, and only-child ones at the top.

If children were better distributed among a large number of families it might mean more stable social and economic conditions. It would mean that more children could have good home and educational advantages, a good environmental start in life. Since studies have shown that the educated and the upper income groups do more voting and take more civic responsibility than other groups, greater propagation in those classes could mean better citizenship, better functioning of democratic government. And business men see this trend as a wider distribution of wealth, more customers for middle and higher priced merchandise.

Yet even if the educated and the well-to-do continue to reverse the propagation trend, no results could be expected for a long time. For the Census Bureau found that in 1947, as well as in 1940, the trend was still predominant for the number of children to increase as schooling went down.

Coe's Reviews

Please, Mr. Washington Post and Mrs. Washington Post and Mr. Eugene Meyer and Mrs. Meyer, sons, daughters and sons-in-laws, please don't let Richard Coe get away. Don't let the New York Times have him, or the Herald-Tribune, or even the New Yorker. Most of all, don't let Hollywood, or Sir Arthur Rank of our own theaters "get" him.

Maybe they don't want him—I mean maybe they don't want him writing intelligent pieces about the slop they have been showing us when we go so hopefully to the movies either to escape our own thoughts about war and inflation and such, or just to be entertained. A report in the New York Times says the whole entertainment business is in "the worst slump in years." I don't think Coe is responsible for all of this, nor are the few other critics who possess something that can be recognized as a mind, some penetration and rare courage. Fawners don't help writers or producers; I think the Coes do.

At any rate, please, etc., and let us maintain the adulthood and some of the metropolitan atmosphere that Mr. Coe has led us to.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

How Serious And How Sincere?

THERE IS a simple test by which the public can find out who is trying to deal sincerely and intelligently with the inflation. Does the candidate begin or end his oration with a clear explanation and a stern warning that if his program is effective it must be painful to farmers, wage earners, businessmen and bankers? Does he say that to stop the inflation is to stop the boom, that in order to bring down prices it will be necessary to reduce prosperity, profits, business expansion, public works, sales and the market for labor? Does he put the people on notice that they cannot continue to enjoy the benefits of inflation—that is to say full employment, high wages, booming markets, high profits—and at the same time be able to buy at lower prices everything they are trying to buy?

LIPPMANN

If the public man says none of this, if he believes or pretends to believe that he can reduce the prevailing prices without reducing the current incomes of farmers, workers, and businessmen, if, in other words, he talks as if the people could have their cake and eat it too, he is deceiving them or he is deceiving himself.

THE INFLATION is due to the fact that while American production is just about at maximum capacity, the purchasing power at the disposal of consumers and investors is being increased. It is impossible to increase the production of goods. Steel, mining, textile, oil, paper, durable goods plants, the construction industry, are operating at about their capacity. Production could be increased only if there were more labor, if there were more steel, more raw material, and more transportation. There is no more available, and in the short run, more cannot be made available.

Therefore, the high-price level cannot now be reduced by increased production. It can be reduced only by decreasing the demand. But measures to decrease the demand will be painful to those whose spending power is reduced, and they will, no matter what the sentiment against the high cost of living, be extremely unpopular. To reduce spending power it would be necessary to raise taxes, to reduce consumer credit, that is to say installment buying, to reduce bank loans which finance business expansion and inventories, to arrest public works by the cities, the States, and the Federal Government, to make money dearer, to lower the support of farm prices, to raise the ceiling on hours of work and lower the floor under wages.

BECAUSE a policy of disinflation is inherently painful, unpopular,—and dangerous in that it may get out of hand and bring on a deflation.—no free government is able to disinflate except with the united support of its leading political parties. A disinflation can be carried out only if both parties share the responsibility, only if neither party can exploit the consequences against the other. No one, therefore, who is serious and sincere about it, would make it a partisan issue on the eve of an election.

The very fact that he made it a partisan issue is almost conclusive evidence that he does not expect to deal with the realities of the problem, and that he merely wants a talking point. Thus if Mr. Truman expected to act at once and if he knew what the effects of action would be, his first concern would be to make sure that he had an agreed program to which the Republicans were committed.

FOR NO ONE would want to break the boom on his own responsibility alone. But a candidate would be only too glad to create the illusion that he could have reduced the cost of living without breaking the boom.

To create that illusion he must ask for powers which he will not have to use. The way to ask for them without getting them is to ask for them in such a way that the other party is almost certain not to grant them—that is to say by making it a personal triumph for himself and a public humiliation for them if they do grant them.

IF MR. TRUMAN wanted the powers because his first concern was the public interest, he would recognize that to get them he must conciliate, not antagonize, the Congress. He would make it plain that to use those powers when he got them, he would need the full cooperation of both parties and the whole people.

In dealing with foreign affairs that is what he has done. There the intention is sincere and public spirited, but as regards inflation he is pursuing an exactly opposite course, making demands on Congress which are formulated and posed in a way which makes agreement improbable, which makes national unity impossible.

That is because on inflation his intentions are partisan, are directed not to a remedy for inflation but to the making of a campaign issue.

The President's Calling List

President Truman yesterday saw the following White House callers:

11 a. m.—Senator Kilgore (D., W. Va.)

11:15—President receives coordinating committee of Conference on Industrial Safety.

11:30—Paul D. Bagwell, president and Frank Fister, vice president, Junior Chamber of Commerce.

11:45—Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, chief of Air Force.

Noon—Dr. Albert F. Zubiria, Uruguay's Minister of Interior.

Decree Rule for Peru

Lima, Peru, July 28 (U.P.).—President Jose Luis Bustamante moved today to govern Peru by decree because of the refusal of the right-wing minority of the Senate to permit the installation of Congress by calling off its year-old "strike."

'Chain Reaction' in VD Case Reached at Least 12 Others

How one person infected with a venereal disease can start a chain reaction of VD, shadowing the lives of as many as 19 others, is illustrated by the chart which accompanies this article.

This is an actual case study, which started when a 16-year-old boy presented himself at a District Health Department VD clinic for treatment of syphilis last August.

Nurses received from the patient the name of a 15-year-old girl friend with whom he had had sexual relations.

Field workers for the VD bureau of the Health Department located her and persuaded her to be examined. She was found to be infected and treated.

Then investigators secured from her the names of six intimates.

And so on down the line, investigators laboriously traced contacts, those persons potentially infected by this one VD chain which stretched across the Northwest section of the city. Twelve out of the 20 were found to be infected, and were treated and cured.

One of the victims was an 18-year-old girl, discovered just in time. She was an expectant mother. Because she was treated before delivery, the infant, when born, was saved from being blinded or maimed.

This technique of tracing contacts of VD patients is applied only in syphilis cases. Victims of the less vicious gonorrhea have become too numerous for the Health Department staff to check.

So, in gonorrhea cases, patients are relied on to persuade contacts to apply for examination and, if infected, for treatment.

The current District drive to curb gonorrhea is aimed at informing the public about symptoms and dangers of gonorrhea—so that the victims will recognize their infections and apply for treatment.

Officials hope this winter to improve the system of investigating syphilis contacts by application of the Kinsey method of investigation.

Dr. Alfred Kinsey, author of the report on the "Sexual Behavior of the Human Male," has been asked to explain his investigation technique to nurses and field investigators at VD clinics here.

The Kinsey method involves tracing the pattern of sex behavior of an individual from childhood. This system, officials here believe, may aid investigators in ferreting out contacts of VD patients. Currently investigators ask patients only about sex relations during the period of his or her VD infection.

Officials report Dr. Kinsey is tentatively expected here in November. His system is now being applied in one other community, "with some signs of success." The plan, however, has stirred some voices of disapproval within the United States Public Health Service.

Migraine Aid Reported

Relief of migraine headaches with octin, a drug long used to ease muscular spasms of the intestines, has been reported by a Washington physician, Dr. Alvin Seltzer, 2025 I st. new.

The splitting headache, called the granddaddy of all headaches by its sufferers, however, still continues to defy a one-shot sure cure for all its variables.

Dr. Seltzer, consultant in allergy for the Veterans Administration, reported his findings in the current issue of Medical Annals, monthly publication of the District Medical Society.

Emphasizing the report was but prelimonary to more conclusive experimentation, Dr. Seltzer wrote of obtaining seven "good effects" and five "questionable to poor effects," in administering octin (methyl-iso-octenylamine) in 12 case of typical migraine. In four cases of histamine headache, he reported two good and two questionable to poor results.

He found no benefit in use of the drug for relief of "functional" headaches of patients in "anxiety state," observing that it "does not favorably influence the psychogenically affected patient with its 'power'."

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Flaws In The Record

IN THE ROWDY game of political chess being played out between Republicans and Democrats at this special session of Congress the President's message is now the field of action. Republicans are finding the weaknesses in the President's line and bringing up their strength to try to win the first round.

Chil.

The weaknesses are pretty obvious. It doesn't take a political divining rod to find them.

In my opinion, Mr. Truman would have been better off if he had taken a somewhat less righteous approach. You can imagine him saying in a subdued confessional tone that at one time or other everyone has been wrong on prices and inflation. But now the moment has come in a chastened spirit to try to correct those wrongs. That is perhaps too much to expect of any candidate for high office in an election year.

The most glaring weakness in the message was in the long paragraph dealing with the relation of wages to prices. The President seems to be saying, "Don't look now, but I'm going to have to talk about wages and you know how touchy that subject is."

After recommending price control for scarce commodities, he says that "noninflationary wage increases can and should continue to be made by free collective bargaining." A Congress of economists might debate the definition of a "noninflationary wage increase" for as long as the medieval theologians discussed the question of how many angels could stand on a needle point and not come any closer to a final answer.

THE PRESIDENT rests his claim for noninflationary wage increases on the same base that organized labor has used since the end of the war. Many profit margins, he said in his speech, have been adequate to absorb wage increases without the price increases that have followed.

Theoretically, this may be true. Profits have been fantastically, unconscionably high even after phenomenal sums have been set aside for reserves.

But it is impossible to compel management to take a wage increase out of the profit margin. That would mean economic controls, which are not politically possible. Such controls would be likely to alter the nature of the free enterprise system far beyond the intentions of Mr. Truman and most of the labor leaders who have demanded higher wages without rising prices.

Mr. Truman also proposes that the excess profits tax be reestablished. This is a practical proposal within the framework of our system. The fact is, however, that three years ago Mr. Truman recommended repeal of the excess profits tax, and this Congress will certainly not put it back on again.

THE MOST glaring omission in the message is the failure to face up to record high farm prices supported by a subsidy system in a year of record-breaking crops. That is even more touchy ground, politically speaking, than wages. Just before adjourning in June the Congress passed a makeshift agricultural bill extending the subsidy-loan system until 1950 and the bill was signed by the President.

Last year the price-support subsidy on potatoes alone cost the Government 40 million dollars by Department of Agriculture estimate. Other estimates have put it as high as 90 million dollars. With a larger crop this year, the cost so far has been 17 million dollars. What it finally will add up to the department doesn't guess.

This is an outright loss, since the potatoes are destroyed or fed to animals. The Government last year loaned farmers nearly 60 million dollars on wheat at an average loan level of $1.85 a bushel. This year, with the loan level at an average of $2 and a bumper crop, the total may be 200 million to 300 million dollars. The Ariculture Department has hopes of recovering this if demand is sustained and if prices do not fall too far below the loan level.

That is the catch—if prices stay up. Whether food prices would be affected by rationing and price control without a rollback to a lower level is a debatable question. But in any event it is pretty academic, since this Congress will do nothing about the President's specific proposals on inflation and price control.

One of the President's recommendations had a curious sound—"that the Federal Reserve Board be given greater authority to regulate inflationary bank credit." It so happens that Mr. Truman demoted Marriner S. Eccles, who as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board was advocating as strongly as he could just that course.

Recommendations and professions of good intention are inevitably measured against past performance. That is the penalty of having been President through three incredibly difficult years.

Protest Planned in Citation Against 5 Radio Stations

James Lawrence Fly, former head of the Federal Communications Commission, will protest the contempt citations against five Baltimore radio stations, on behalf of the American Civil Liberties Union.

This was announced yesterday by the civil liberties group, in declaring that the Baltimore contempt charges—which grew out of the Eugene H. James case involving the murders of Marsha Brill and Carol Bardwell—"represent an abridgment of freedom of speech and press."

The five radio stations and a Baltimore newscaster were cited for broadcasts, not yet disclosed in detail, allegedly in violation of a Baltimore court rule prohibiting disclosure of statements an accused makes after his arrest, and restricting other crime news. James reportedly confessed murdering Marsha Brill in Baltimore, July 6, and killing the Bradwell girl here June 27.

To Challenge Code

Fly, FCC head from 1939 to 1944 and now a New York attorney, will challenge the legality of the Baltimore code at the contempt hearing set for October 1, the ACLU announced in a statement from New York.

The American Newspaper Publishers Association, through its counsel, Elisha Hanson, and the National Association of Broadcasters have already interested themselves in the case.

On Saturday, the board of governors of the Maryland Press Association and representatives of Maryland's daily newspapers will meet in Baltimore to discuss proposed extension of the crime news restrictions to the entire State.

This extension has been recommended by a standing committee of the Maryland Court of Appeals, and has been vigorously opposed by the press associations of Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, and other groups.

Point-by-Point Reply

In a point-by-point reply to the contemplated extension of the Baltimore code, Oscar Morris, managing editor of the Salisbury (Md.) Times, said the State-wide restriction "could become a curtain drawn against public scrutiny of the police and the courts."

He also attacked the argument that the rules would assure an accused a fair trial, in a letter he sent to Chief Judge Levin Claude Bailey of Maryland's First Judicial Circuit. Judge Bailey, chairman of a committee of judges studying Statewide application of the Baltimore rules, had invited comment.

Newspapers, said Morris, cannot keep faith with their readers under the proposed code, which he said would be misinterpreted by many police officers and prosecutors, and virtually seal off legitimate and vital public information.

In a recent rape case in Somerset County, in which the accused confessed, publication of this confession averted mob violence, said Morris. Imposition of the rule, he pointed out, would have prevented publication of this news.

Mental Test Law Invoked

A District Court order was signed yesterday permitting a mental patient to go directly to St. Elizabeths Hospital for examination rather than to go first to Gallinger Hospital for preliminary tests.

It was the first case under a law signed June 30 permitting bypassing Gallinger Hospital in certain cases. The law designed to benefit those who feel that St. Elizabeths facilities are preferable in their cases. Overcrowding in Gallinger prompted the legislation for the most part.

Justice Alexander Holtzoff signed the order for the involuntary commitment of a 42-year-old former Interstate Commerce Commission stenographer after reading affidavits of relatives, coworkers, and a physician, that the woman was suffering from schizophremia, hebephrenic type.

Under the order, the woman must be examined at St. Elizabeths within five days after her commitment. She may stay there for as long as 30 days.

A stamp vending machine which will sell stamps at their face value, instead of a price which allows the vendor a profit, will be part of the equipment. Such machines have been installed in the lobbies of postoffices in the past, but this is the first such machine to be installed in a private commercial establishment.

The store will carry a full line of variety goods and will also contain a beauty shop, a shoe department and a shoe repair department, a restaurant, a bakery and a delicatessen counter.

Alvin R. Rothschild, who has been associated with Neisner Bros. for 19 years, will serve as manager. The store occupies a new four-story building on a lot 100 by 128 feet.

Zinc, Lead Prices Reach All-Time High

New York, July 28 (AP).—The prices of zinc and lead, soared today to all-time highs, exceeding even the uncontrolled World War I days.

Producers said zinc was up 25 per cent to 15 cents a pound at East St. Louis, and lead up 11 per cent, to 19½ cents a pound at New York, by rising production, material and labor costs.

Dealers said the rise reflected the world scramble for scarce metals, the new American dollars in the coffers of European Marshall Plan nations, and the United States Government's pressing desire to stockpile strategic materials against the possibility of war. Commercial demand, both here and abroad, continued high, in spite of the usual summer slump in fabricating.

Copper, the third of the big three non-ferrous metals, held for the time being at least at 21½ cents a pound, Connecticut Valley, well below the record price of 26 cents in 1916.

So tight has supply been in recent weeks that American consumers had paid as high as 19 cents for Australian lead, 20 cents for a delivery from Europe and 22¼ cents for lead recovered from scrap.

Scarcity of lead scrap has led United States primary refiners to eliminate the 2 cents a pound smelting charges to attract scrap supplies.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 28 (AP).—Grains mostly ended with small advances on the Board of Trade today. Much of the market's early strength was lost when selling expanded in the last hour. Trading was quite active.

During the first half of the session prices spurted upward briskly. Corn set the pace, largely because of an urgent demand and sharply higher prices in the cash section. September corn advanced more than 3 cents at one time.

Rye again lost ground, influenced in part by a break of 10 cents, the daily limit, at Winnipeg. Trading in this grain has just started here. The market is still thin and likely to be widely influenced by small buying and selling orders.

Wheat closed ⅛ to ⅜ higher, September 2.28¾@2.28⅞; corn was 1⅛ lower to 2 cents higher, September 1.74⅛@1.74¼; oats were ⅜ to 1 cent higher, September 75⅛@75⅜; rye was 4 cents lower, December 1.76, and soybeans were 1 to 6 cents lower, November 2.82@2.81.

The cash corn market moved ahead for wide gains. Spot prices advanced 6 to 9 cents, with No. 1 yellow corn bringing 43 to 44½ cents a bushel more than the September delivery. Most of the urgent demand appeared to come from feeding interests.

Bids sent out to the country for to-arrive grains also were advanced, dealers said. This brought out more grain, bookings being placed at 126,000 bushels.

Mills bought a little wheat early in the day. Flour sales were made overnight to the Production and Marketing Administration for export through Atlantic Coast ports. The Northwestern Miller said domestic flour sales volume had declined in the past week.

Ex-Princess Asks for U. S. Citizenship

A former Afghanistan princess yesterday applied for American citizenship to match that of her spouse of a month.

In so doing, Mrs. Louis P. Reeves, temporarily of Hotel Mayflower, divulged an era of romantic adventure that might easily rival that of old-time story-book princesses.

The 37-year-old brunette, by filing citizenship forms in District Court, sought to renounce her 18-year title as Princess Dolores of Afghanistan. In effect, she did this initially when she applied for divorce last year from the exiled Prince Obeidullah of Afghanistan—now reportedly in Rome.

Reeves, 46, former Army colonel who served as chief of communications for Austria after the war, said his bride applied for her first and second papers simultaneously—anticipating final action within 30 days. He said that where an American veteran is employed outside the country in international commerce the law provides speedy citizenship for his wife.

Reeves is now manager in Rio de Janeiro for the Standard Electric Co., a subsidiary of the International Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Born in Leipzig, Germany, of German and Italian parents, Mrs. Reeves married the Mohammedan prince, son of the late King Habidullah, in Rome. During the war, she said, because of her knowledge of German, French and Italian, she was able to work "in the underground for the Vatican."

She remarked of the Germans: "I like their culture but I could never agree with the Nazi poison."

The Germans "recognized I was working against them," Mrs. Reeves said, and she was forced into hiding. After the war, while working with the military government, she met her husband, Mrs. Reeves related.

Of him, she said, "He is husband, father, mother and brother to me . . . I love him with all my heart . . . and I thought I could never be happy in my life . . ."

Recommending Mrs. Reeves for citizenship were Thomas D. Blake, former White House press assistant who is now with I. T. & T. here, and his secretary, Mrs. Ruth H. Livermore, 1424 Chapin st. nw.

Ruling Deferred

A. B. & W. Fare Boost Plea Heard

Richmond, Va., July 28 (AP).—The Alexandria, Bancroft and Washington Transit Co. laid its request for passenger bus fare increases before the State Corporation Commission today and an official said if the overall request went through the company would realize about $95,000 net profit annually.

This figure was contingent upon approval, too, by the Interstate Commerce Commission of a similar application now pending.

The company, whose intrastate and interstate operations in Northern Virginia and the District of Columbia are virtually inseparable, is asking authority to increase its present five-cent fares to a dime, with bus tokens at two for 15 cents, and boost its 10-cent fares to 15 cents subject to the use of a 7½-cent taken plus a nickel. The company said that virtually the entire effect of the increase would be 2½ cents since its was not trying to sell tokens in quantities by offering them at two for 15.

The Virginia Commission took the request under advisement.

The AB&W's general manager, Beverley C. May, said the company's total revenues for the first quarter of this year amounted to $644,311 and the total expenses were $688,728.

Three Judges to Hear CTC Plea Monday

A three-judge tribunal will sit here Monday to hear the suit brought by Capital Transit Co. in its fight against the low-rate jointfare system between Washington and nearby Virginia points.

The tribunal will consist of Justices Wilbur K. Miller of the United States Court of Appeals, and Alexander Holtzoff and Edward A. Tamm of the District Court.

Rockville Mayor Fears Epidemics

Warning of possible epidemics, Mayor G. LaMar Kelly, jr., of Rockville, yesterday branded as "stupid and politically shortsighted" the recent refusal of the Montgomery County commissioners to extend sewer lines to three communities adjoining Rockville.

The commissioners last week refused to approve a $500,000 bond issue, which has been authorized by the State Legislature, for extending sewer facilities to Lincoln Park, Croyden, and Harriet Park.

Kelly called overflowing septic tanks in the three areas a "health menace," declaring most of the 1000 affected residents obtained their drinking water from privately owned wells.

"It is inconceivable that the commissioners would spend $2000 for engineering surveys and then shelve this direly needed utility," Kelly declared.

The survey, financed jointly by Rockville and Montgomery County, found that sewer service could be provided the three areas if the Rockville disposal plant were enlarged.

At Lincoln Park High School, he charged, a septic tank overflow "has for years run down the public highway." He said the board of education would be required to spend large sums to correct the situation independently.

S. Africa Faces Controls

Pretoria, South Africa, July 28 (AP).—Unless South Africa curtails its imports from dollar currency areas, the government will be compelled to introduce some form of import control, Dr. M. H. Dekock, governor of the South African Reserve Bank, said today.

Heat Put on Police

Cambridge, Mass., July 28 (AP).—Sweltering desk officers could swear steam was rising from police headquarters' radiators today. And they were right. The janitor had turned on the oil burner to get hot water to mop the floors.

Olney Glitters With Wilde Wit

By Richard L. Coe

IT HAS BECOME commonplace to remark on the still glittering Wit of Oscar Wilde's too few comedies 50-odd years after their first performances. But it remains the extraordinary fact.

This season brought "Lady Windermere's Fan" to the stage of the National and "An Ideal Husband" to the Capitol screen. And now the greatest of his comedies, "The Importance of Being Earnest," is being given a worthwhile production at Olney. If you know the play, you'll enjoy its lasting brilliance again; if it's new to you, sharpen your ears for a lasting theatrical memory.

For "The Importance of Being Earnest" remains one of the brilliant plays of the last century. Its story is bedeviled nonsense, its characters so shrewdly observed that in their few days' adventure you see them from cradle to the grave. And the lines have a succinctness of wit that still eludes all who would follow in Wilde's deceptively facile path.

It is good to report that under Gerald Savoy's direction, the Olney company, headed by Jose Ferrer and Viola Roache, are keeping the gossamer spinning with capable elan. For several reasons, this in itself is high praise.

In the first place, John Gielgud's production of the comedy, seen in Baltimore and New York during the spring of 1947, was so nearly perfect a melange of performance and setting that its very memory comes close to defeating any future productions.

For years, Gielgud's will remain the classic's definitive production. In the second, the very Britishness of the play is a hurdle for other nationals, and the set-up of our American theatrical scene is such that few players ever have the opportunity to indulge in the style which is the essence of Wilde's wittiest work.

Found in a Handbag

Here you have completely artifical people trapped in a wildly absurd plot. A man, found as a baby in a handbag at Victoria Station, wishes to marry the daughter of a social gorgon. Several subordinate romances are woven into the plot and through all sparkles satirical observations on all that snobbism stands for. The lines must be read exactly as Wilde put them together; shifting any of sentences or using synonyms for the precise words is fatal to the structure. And every word must ripple out with the detachment of these hothouse creatures. Overplaying it is fatal, but not a word must be missed.

On opening night this concept of style seemed to me exactly grasped by Frances Reid, as the citybred daughter of Lady Bracknell, Gwendolyn Fairfax. It is a choice part, created in this country by the late Viola Allen. Miss Reid has the conniving artifices of Gwendolyn in superb control. Curiously enough, one touch of the Gielgud production, so brilliant when Pamela Brown did it, doesn't come off with Miss Reid. Her annoyance with sunshine and birds in her second act scene is somehow unnecessary. But she shrewdly lets you know that her Gwendolyn will grow up to b ea gorgon just like her mother. Here is fine high comedy.

Too, Miss Roache is excellent as that frightful mother. I'd been afraid she'd play her too broadly, but no. The temptation would be to wrestle for every laugh, but Miss Roache usually manages to make Lady B. the lady she so insists she is.

Star Ferrer Scores

In the choice of playing Algy or Worthing, Star Jose Ferrer takes Worthing, quite in tradition as it has been for everyone from Henry Miller to Gielgud. The virtue of this admirable actor's performance once more is in its underplaying; a raised eyebrow, a changed position of the feet express humor that a less knowing performer might flail. William Nichols' Algy speaks his epigrams acceptably and Phyllis Hill is fine, beautiful and well-spoken as the precocious Cecily.

While Donald Stevens plays the canon more as ginger ale than the old port which that stuffy man actually is, and though Sara Seegar is not the parched old maid Laetitia Prism should be, the performance as a whole is far better rounded that one would expect from the limited rehearsal schedule of a busy summer theater.

And laughing at Wilde's lines in an audience headed by Secretary of State Marshall, one couldn't help being amused at the change that has come over society since Wilde wrote his lastingly witty observations. The first performance in America, by Frohman's Empire Theater Company, lasted a single week. The very fact that Oscar Wilde had written it (newspapers refused to print his name) was too much for the pre-Kinsey era of 1895.

New Dehumidifier Helps Drive Dampness Out of Darkroom

By Ollie Atkins

HERE is the answer to damp darkrooms during humid summer months. It's the new Frigidaire Humidifier. It will drain the moisture out of the air in your photographic lab and eliminate one of the most pressing problems of photographic technique during Washington's humid summer.

Moisture in the air rusts iron and steel, corrodes electrical equipment, causes leather camera cases to mold and mildew. And why are darkrooms damp in warm weather? The humidity in outside air is higher in that warm air. Basements and other insulated buildings are usually 5 to 10 degrees cooler than the outside air. Cool air cannot hold as much moisture as warm air can. This results in the inside room having excess humidity which is responsible for rust, mildew, dripping pipes and clammy surfaces.

Exhaust fans are not the answer to this dampness problem. Especially in a basement they should be run only at night, when cool air can be sucked in where damp air has been exhausted.

Darkrooms in addition to being damp because of building location are always spotted with open chemical trays which evaporate moisture into the heavy air.

I have personally tried moisture absorbing chemicals to cut down darkroom humidity. Although they do pull some water out of the air you can never tell the difference. Bush and Zentz Co. in Arlington is letting me try out one of the new Frigidaire dehumidifiers and I shall report further on this subject after I have given it a complete testing.

The machine consists of a refrigeration mechanism which cools a series of coils to temperature pre-set below room temperature. Air is drawn over these coils by a fan and cooled thus causing its moisture to condense on the cool surface of the coils. The moisture is then disposed of by dripping down into a removable bucket.

It is powered by a small metermiser motor and is precision built backed by a five-year protection plan. It is not the purpose of this column to promote any product or manufacturer but this mechanism is unique and the first real answer to a much needed item in modern photographic darkrooms.

TED SHANE advises me that he is holding an outing of all of his some 50 models down at Drum Point Beach on August 22 and the girls will not only eat hot dogs but will wear their fanciest swimming togs so both press and amateur photographers can have a whole Sunday of snapshooting the cuties. Ted has a couple of contests in mind for the best pictures made and the girls pose gratis, of course. So mark this down on your calendar. We'll give you a reminder the Thursday before the outing is scheduled.

Henry Schloss asks information of camera clubs in Washington which offer complete darkroom facilities. To our knowledge no such club exists.

Bell and Howell announces a new development making it possible to photograph both sides of a document with one exposure. A mirror reflex system reflects the two images to an automatic camera which records it as two 8 mm frames on a 16 mm film. Developed for recording bank and financial documents, the machine is called the Design 190 Microfilm Recorder.

A machine which can tell blue from other blues and red from other reds has been developed by scientists in Binghamton, N. Y. An electronic color analyzer so sensitive that it will detect color differences too small to be seen by the average human eye was announced there today by Ansco.

The instrument can measure 1/100,000,000 of the light emitted by an automobile headlight. It is expected to play an important part in cancer research, although it was designed primarily for photographic color work.

Sponsorship Extension Urged

The Washington Exchange Club yesterday offered to put the local plan of sponsors for parolees of the National Training School for Boys on a national basis.

The offer was made at the first luncheon get-together of local sponsors, held in the offices of Attorney General Tom Clark. About 50 attended.

Under the present system, local citizens are acting voluntarily as sponsors each for two or three boys, either inmates of the school or parolees, who are still in Washington.

Harold E. Mott, president of the Washington Exchange Club, pointed out, however, that boys from all over the country are brought to the institution. Many of them return to their home towns after they are paroled, and their sponsors here can no longer keep up with them, he explained.

Mott says he intends to approach the National Exchange Club with this plan:

When a boy from out of town is eligible for parole, he will come before a committee of the local club and name for them the community where he would like to make a fresh start plus the type of job he hopes to get.

The local club will notify the national organization which in turn will notify the club in the community where the boy plans to live. That club will then sponsor the boy, helping him to get a new start in life and serving as his adviser in time of need.

Yesterday's luncheon was given by Maurice Bisgyer, executive secretary of National B'nai B'rith and a sponsor of boys at the training school for several years. Both he and Attorney General Clark urged the sponsors to get their friends and business associates to become sponsors. At present there are only between 60 and 70 citizens working with some 350 to 400 boys at the school.

10 Police Officers Win Promotions

Promotion of 10 Metropolitan Police officers, one of them a woman, effective August 1, was announced yesterday by the Commissioners.

Six of the advancements were made to fill vacancies resulting from the retirement August 1 of veteran detectives, Lieut. Dewey L. Guest and Sergt. Samuel Scott.

Precinct Detectives Ernest R. Amos, jr. and Benjamin D. Clark were made detective sergeants with a pay increase of $812.59 a year each, to fill the vacancies left by Scott and Guest, respectively.

Probational Detectives Robert V. Gary and Walter E. Grove will become precinct detectives with $325.03 annual pay increases, to succeed Amos and Clark.

Privates Shirley F. O'Neill and Thomas E. Williams will become probational detectives with a $163 a year raise, to succeed Grove and Gary.

Four temporary promotions were made to vacancies resulting from the temporary advancement to lieutenant of John J. Boyd and Thomas C. Kelleher last July 1.

Corpls. Frances M. C. Bird and Joseph V. Osterman will become temporary sergeants at $3872 a year to fill the vacancies left by Boyd and Kelleher.

Privates John M. Thot and James B. Pruitt will fill the temporary corporal vacancies left by Bird and Osterman. Their salary will be $3669 a year.

Pomeroy Duel in Rome Called Off

LIVINGSTON POMEROY

Livingston Pomeroy, handsome 32-year-old former Washington newspaperman who all but fought a duel over a girl, announced through his seconds in Rome yesterday that recourse to rapiers won't be necessary after all.

Spokesmen told the Associated Press that the former Princeton student, reporter and OSS operator has settled a questions of honor between himself and a Roman nobleman with words, not lances.

Pomeroy's seconds explained at a news conference which they called that he "placed himself" at the "disposition" of Marchese Emmanuele De Seta after De Seta had taken exception to remarks about an unnamed woman which he considered offensive. Pomeroy once was engaged to the sister of De Seta, war ace and scion of one of Italy's oldest families.

The incident was closed, the seconds said, after De Seta wrote a letter explaining that he "had no reason whatsoever to provoke Pomeroy's offenses." The incident reportedly took place two weeks ago at the home of a mutual friend.

Eugene C. Pomeroy, 1255 New Hampshire ave., father of Livingston, said his offspring isn't "interested in any woman so far as I know." He described his son, now studying art in Rome to illustrate his articles and books, as a "really very steady person . . . not at alll flighty and in no respect wild."

Eugene C. Pomeroy, jr., brother of Livingston, who was killed during the war, formerly was a reporter for The Wahington Post. He once wrote a long piece on fencing. Both young men were aaught fencing as boys by "one of the greatest masters in Europe," according to their father.

Germ Warfare Planned

Moscow, July 28 (AP).—Red Star said today the Japanese during the war planned a large-scale germ warfare against the Allies. A specil correspondent of the Soviet army paper, Col. A. Galkin, said Soviet authorities uncovered a special bacteriological warfare station to develop bubonic plague and other diseases for war uses.

Book Says So

Colonel Buys Island for Its Treasure

Not satisfied with such mundane hobbies as raising petunias or collecting first editions, a retired Arlington Army colonel has one of his own—he's searching for buried treasure.

Col. Gardner

In fact, Col. H. A. Gardener, 2175 N. 21st st., Arlington, has bought himself a 250-acre island in Mahone Bay near Chester, Nova Scotia, where he now is busily tracking down legendary pirate loot.

According to his wife, Mrs. Ruth Gardner, the 61-year-old retired Quartermaster Corps officer, who served on General MacArthur's staff in the Philippines during the past war, is using a modern instrument in his hunt, a surplus mine detector.

According to a book in the library on treasure hunting which the colonel has accumulated, Oak Island, which he now owns, has been the site of countless treasure hunts since the first one was organized and failed in 1795.

Hunting for treasure supposedly buried by buccaneers, so the book says, various parties dug in the island's "money pit" to a depth of 109 feet, finding oak timbers at various levels but no treasure.

Each time rising water in the pit ended operations.

Admittedly "not much of a treasure hunter" herself, Mrs. Gardner is tolerant of her husband's pastime: "I'm glad he has a hobby," she says.

Chicagoan Shot to Death By Gangsters

Chicago, July 28 (AP).—A wealthy industrialist was killed today by three gunmen who pulled alongside his car in rush hour traffic and fired a shotgun blast which blew off the top of his head.

The gunmen's car raced away after the shooting on busy Pershing rd. on Chicago's south side. Killed was Nathan Gumbin, 56, owner of the General Fiber Co. Gumbin was riding with his son, Owen, 19, who was not touched.

The son told police that the gunmen's care pulled up alongside his father's Cadillac and someone fired into Gumbin's face.

Owen said he and his father were returning from a meeting at the plant.

Police said the meeting concerened labor problems there. They added that no apparent motive for the slaying had been uncovered as yet.

A maid in Gumbin's south side home said the family had been preparing to celebrate Gumbin's birthday anniversary tonight.

Moten to Head Legion Arlington Council

Election of C. B. Moten, retiring commander or Arlington Post 139, American Legion, as commander of the Arlington Council of American Legion Posts, was announced yesterday.

Others named were: Burnette Brooks of Post 194, county vice commander; Elmer J. Blackmer, jr., of Post 312, county adjutant and finance officer; R. C. Davis of Post 319 as county chaplain. The new officers were installed by District Vice Commander Pete Dolan, in ceremonies at the clubrooms of Post 139.

Reno Leaders Fight Opening Of Brothels

Reno, Nev., July 28 (U.P.).—Battle lines were forming today for what promises to be the hottest fight in the history of wide-open Reno.

The issue was whether to permit legalized prostitution in addition to 'round-the-clock gambling and drinking, easy-to-get six-weeks divorces and five-minute (40,000 a year) marriages.

Reno's notorious stockade, near the heart of the business district, was closed at the outset of World War II at the demand of the military. Three weeks ago, a judge ruled that the war emergency was over as far as vice was concerned and prostitution was again free to flourish.

Prostitution had been permitted ever since Reno was born some 80 years ago.

The stockade, a horseshoe-shaped affair lined with brick huts with open windows where the girls used to sit and give their sales talks to passing men, has not yet reopened.

Rosselli in Jail on Parole Charge

Los Angeles, July 28 (AP).—John Rosselli, 41, convicted associate of Willie Bioff in the million-dollar film labor shakedown case, is in the Los Angeles county jail tonight after surrendering under a Federal warrant charging parole violation.

Immediately after he surrendered, his attorneys, Otto Christensen and Frank Desimone, filed application for a writ of habeas corpus.

Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick set next Tuesday for a hearing on the writ and ruled that Rosselli must remain in jail meanwhile.

Christensen said a congressional committee demanded the termination of paroles of Rosselli and four others.

Christensen said revocation was sought on the ground that Rosselli had associated with unsavory characters and had failed to comply with a Los Angeles county ordinance requiring felons to register.

Rent Increases Recommended

Rent increases of approximately 7 per cent were recommended for 130 units of two Northwest area apartment houses yesterday by District Rent Control Administration examiners.

Examiner Denis K. Lane recommended boosts amounting to 7.01 per cent for 131 units of an apartment house at 900 19th st. nw. He said they would hike monthly rents for one-room-and-bath apartments from $35 to $37.45, for five-room-and-bath units from $100 to $107.

Average 7.52 per cent boosts were recommended by Examiner William F. Mansfield for 99 apartments at 2515 K st. nw. Monthly rents for two-room-and-bath units would go up from $38 to $41, for three-room-and-bath apartments from $$77.50 to $83.25, he said.

Lane also continued until August 16 a public hearing on the request of Waverly Taylor, Inc., for rent hikes on 400 units of Good Hope Hills Apartments, a Southeast housing development.

Lane said he granted the delay at the request of J. L. Burch, attorney for approximately 300 tenants, who maintained information in the increase petition was inadequate. Lane directed the operators to supply additional information and, with their consent, gave the tenants permission to go over company books prior to resumption of the hearing, he said.

Units of the development, Lane said, are in the 2800 block of 28th st. se., the 3000 block of 30th st. se. and the 3100 block of Buena Vista ter. se.

—With Shirley Povich

FROM DOWN MEXICO way comes the Gerente General of Publicidad Organizada who is not a military man at all, nor even a Mexican. Despite the length of the new title he is unfurling, the Gerente General is easily recognized by the fight mob and others of his acquaintance as Teddy Hayes, Jack Kearns' partner in the management of the two old champs, Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker.

POVICH

Senor Hayes has acquired the proprietorship of Publicidad Organizada, Mexico's highest-powered public relations firm, and a rambling hacienda 50 miles from Mexico City and you'd have to say he's come a long way from the resin of the prize ring apron and the ammonia bottle. He's pally with President Aleman and is on the point of buying Mexico City's only English written newspaper.

Right now he's doing the public relations job for the Mexican Government's International Sweepstakes that hopes to fetch some American dollars below the border to bolster the devalued peso. They staged their first sweepstakes last December and took a beating like novices will at any business. Not that they didn't sell enough tickets in Mexico, says Hayes, but they got a royal run-around from some Irish lottery promoters.

NOT ONLY DID they pattern their Mexican Sweepstakes after the Irish Sweeps, but they hired some Irish people to supervise and distribute the Mexican tickets in America. That was Mexico's mistake, says Hayes. The Irish did a slip-shod job of servicing the Mexican sweeps in an attempt to kill off competition in America, Hayes says, and have now been booted out of the Mexican Sweepstakes picture.

The profits of the Mexican sweeps are dedicated to the improvement of education and hospital facilities, says Hayes, and are not to be confused with the thrice-weekly Mexican state lotteries. "Those lotteries serve a purpose, too," says Hayes. "You never see any able-bodied beggars or panhandlers in Mexico. Only the cripples are allowed to ask for handouts. Any able person without a job can get subsistence if he sells lottery tickets."

He says the Mexicans will conduct their own sweepstakes sales this year without the dubious help of the Irish, and points to the proud record of the pay-offs last December despite the fact the receipts failed to equal the prize money and expenses. "America will soon prefer the Mexico sweeps to the Irish sweeps," he says confidently.

IN HIS THREE years in Mexico, he's been impressed, he says, with the growing baseball mindedness of the Mexicans and the American game is threatening bull fighting as the favorite sport below the border.

"Three years ago when I used to drive from my home to Mexico City, I used to see the Mexican lads out on the country lots playing matador and waving their scarves at imaginary bulls. On those same lots today they're swinging baseball bats.

He credits Jorge Pasquel, Mexico's No. 1 baseball impressario, with the popularity of the game. "He has spent freely of his own money to organize the Mexican League and bring American players in, but he's too rabid a fan, if anything. He insists on having a hand in the operation of all the clubs in the league.

"Like when Pasquel's Vera Cruz team, his favorite, was getting licked one night because of bad pitching. Pasquel got on the phone to Mexico City and in 36 minutes he had Max Lanier in Vera Cruz by plane and out on the mound for his own club. The fact that Lanier was in the middle of a pitching performance for Mexico City's team that night didn't make any difference to Pasquel."

HAYES ISN'T SURPRISED that Mickey Walker, the old middleweight champ, has retired to the easel and canvas of an artist's life. "Even in training, he was always grabbing a brush and wanting to paint scenes," says Hayes. "We always knew he had a lot of artist in him. But he was never temperamental like artists are supposed to be. Mickey never got mad at anybody, even when he was fighting 'em.

"He didn't even get mad at Paul Swiderski that night in Louisville on Derby Eve when Swiderski had him down twice in a nodecision fight, after we told Mickey it was just going to be an exhibition. When Swiderski hit Mickey after the bell, I broke it up by jumping in the ring and throwing my best right hand at Swiderski's chin.

"After the fight, Walker invited Swiderski to the hotel for some ale and they were pals again. He wanted to know one thing, Mickey said. 'Was Swiderski hurt when Teddy Hayes threw that punch at him?' Paul said he'd felt something brush his chin like a child playing patty-cake. 'Thanks,' said Mickey. 'That's all I wanted to know because this Hayes has been bragging for years about the right he could throw.'"

Colorful Ceremonies Today Open Greatest Olympic Event

By Gayle Talbot

London, July 28 (AP).—The mightiest sports carnival in history will open here tomorrow in colorful ceremonies bringing 5000 athletes from 59 nations together in Olympic rivalry.

Ten minutes of pageantry is all there is of the opening program. The only running will be done by men bearing the symbolic flame on its last lap from Greece. However, a crowd of 80,000 spectators is expected for the show.

A cheering weather forecast of "warm and sunny" touched off a last-minute rush of ticket buying today as staid old London yielded at last to the Olympic fever.

Crowds stayed awake to cheer the Olympic torch on its way toward London. The torch landed this evening at Dover after passing through seven countries.

If the timing is right, it will be borne into the stadium at precisely 4:07 p. m. (10:07 a. m., Eastern standard time) by a runner whose identity was still hidden tonight.

His arrival will climax those 10 minutes of ceremony into which will be packed all the colorful symbolism of the games—preserved through centuries and staged by the world's acknowledged masters of pageantry, the British.

King George VI will start the show at 4 p. m. (10 a. m., EST).

"I proclaim open the Olympic games of 1948 celebrating the fourteenth Olympiad of the modern era," he will say. Then 5000 bright clad athletes from all over the world will file past him in the traditional Olympic parade.

Just before the torch bearer races in and circles the bright red running track, 7000 pigeons will be loosed into the air as symbols of peace, and a 21-gun salute will be fired.

The ceremonies ended, the athletes will return to their camps to await the opening of competition on Friday morning.

America's powerful contingent of men and women stars gathered at Uxbridge tonight to rehearse their part in the parade and to decide in what order the various teams will march.

A final survey of the several American training camps failed to turn up a single injury or illness of any importance. Uncle Sam's athletes have reached a peak of form and condition after a week's intensive training under a hot sun, and they will have no alibis.

There has been a growing feeling in recent days that Harrison Dillard, the great hurdler who failed to qualify in his specialty, might spring a surprise in the 100-meter dash.

N. Y. Cubans Player Hit in Head by Pitch

Paterson, N. J., July 28 (AP).—Lorenzo Cabrera, first baseman for the New York Cubans of the Negro National baseball league, was struck in the head by a pitched ball in an exhibition game today and is in serious condition in Barnert Hospital.

Pieretti Sets Down Nats Again, 2-1

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Chicago, July 28. — Chico Pieretti, whom the Nats dispatched to Chicago because he couldn't win for Washington, won his sixth game for the White Sox today—a 2-1 decision over the Nats.

It was the third time since he was traded in June that the little right-hander showed the Nats they didn't do right by him.

While he failed to finish his two previous successes against his former club, Pieretti negotiated the distance this afternoon, but required a man-sized lift by the Nats to see him through.

Often the victim of Nat futility during his Washington regime, Chico benefited from it today. The Nats had the tying run on third with one out in the eighth and couldn't do anything about it.

In the ninth, they did even better when Gil Coan opened the round with a triple. He was still there when the 3168 customers were filing out of the park.

Fleitas Proves Helpful

Utility Infielder Angel Fleitas proved a Pieretti helper in the eighth. Fleitas took his time coming in from third base on Al Kozar's fly to center field and was nabbed at the plate with what would have been the tying run also.

Ralph Hodgin, replacing the ailing Taft Wright, batted in the White Sox runs, both coming at the expense of Sid Hudson who was tagged with his tenth loss against only three victories.

Pieretti was touched for seven hits, including triples by Mickey Vernon and Coan, while Hudson gave the Sox six safeties.

Pieretti's only walk cost him a shutout in the eighth. He passed Carden Gillenwater, batting for Johnny Sullivan to start the inning. Tom McBride's pinch single moved Gilly to third from where he scored as Eddie Yost grounded out.

Sox Crowd Bases

The Sox loaded the bases on Hudson three times, but were only able to produce two runs, which turned out to be enough. In the first inning, Hodgin dropped a single to left to score Floyd Baker, who had singled and advanced to third when Hudson issued two of the five walks he gave up.

The Sox struck again in the seventh when Hodgin hammered a double over Coan's head in left to score Luke Appling, who had singled.

With one away in the seventh, Vernon socked his triple, but Sherry Robertson and Jake Early popped up to leave him there.

Coan opened the ninth with a triple and languished on third as Eddie Stewart popped to short-center and Vernon and Junior Wooten rolled out.

Stranahan Adds Ohio Open Title

Toledo, Ohio, July 28 (AP).—Muscular young Frank Stranahan of Toledo, British and Canadian amateur champion, added another trophy to his well-stocked case today, winning the Ohio Open golf championship by six strokes.

Veteran Billy Burke of Cleveland claimed the $1000 for low professional.

In becoming the second amateur ever to win the Ohio Open crown, Stranahan toured the 6700-yard Sylvania Country Club course in 279 strokes, six blows ahead of Burke and five better than Byron Nelson's winning card in the event here in 1940.

Brooklyn Wins All-Star Game In 12th, 2-1

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Washington's All-Stars let a golden scoring opportunity slip by and it cost them a 2 to 1 12-inning defeat at the hands of the Brooklyn All-Stars last night at Griffith Stadium.

Ben Duvall, who pitched superb relief ball for 6 2/3 innings, finally was tagged for the game-winning hit in the twelfth by Don Zagardo, a single, it drove across Billy Behrens.

Brooklyn's Billy (No-Hit) Loes allowed six hits, fanned 15 and was the whole show. In the 11th, Manager Jim Munro's locals loaded the bases with none out but Loes extricated himself from that gaping hole and went on to win.

Sal DeGiorgi, who hit the left field wall on the fly for a booming double in his previous trip, let a pitch accidentally hit his bat. The ball trickled to Loes and was turned into a fast double play. Then Loes struck out his rival, Duvall.

Washington, boasting a 12-2 victory over the visitors in their first meeting, didn't score until the seventh when Billy Jones' single scored Bob Curtis.

Bill Witzel started for Washington and allowed only three hits until he had to step down after 5 1/3 innings because of a sore finger.

Giants Shutout Reds, Tie Cards for Third

New York, July 28 (AP).—The New York Giants tied the St. Louis Cardinals for third place in the National League pennant race today as Clint Hartung pitched the Giants to a 5-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds while the Cards were trounced by Brooklyn.

Hartung pitched one of the best games of his career, limiting the Reds to three singles. After Frankie Baumholtz singled in the first and Hank Saur in the second, Hartung held the Reds hitless until Grady Hatton whacked a one-bagger to right in the eighth.

Young Herm Wehmeier dueled on even terms with Hartung until the fourth when with two out the Giants scored twice. Walker Cooper walked, stole second and rode home on a double by Bobby Thomson. Thomson scored on a single by Buddy Kerr.

Manager Johnny Neun of the Reds was thrown out of the game by Umpire Dusty Boggess in the fifth inning for some uncomplimentary remarks from the dugout.

Feller to Drop Winter Tours

San Diego, Calif., July 28 (AP).—The San Diego Union said today that Bob Feller, Cleveland Indian hurler, will abandon his postseason barnstorming tours.

His decision, the paper said, was disclosed in a letter to Kent Parker, San Diego winter baseball promoter, who last year handled Feller's appearance here and in Mexico City.

The postseason barnstorming, with the travel-by-day, pitch-by night routine, have been blamed by some as a factor in Feller's pitching slump.

Fly Ball Hits Doby on Head, A's Win, 4-3

Cleveland, July 28 (AP).—Centerfielder Lary Doby of the Cleveland Indians got his head in the way of a fly ball today, aiding the Philadelphia Athletics in a 4-3 victory.

With the A's trailing by 3-2 and two men out in the eighth inning, Don White's fly to center bounced off Doby's head for an error which allowed Barney McCosky and Ray Coleman to score.

These two unearned runs enabled the Athletics to beat Bob Lemon, gain an even break in their two-game series with the Indians and regain second place from the Tribe.

The Tribe pounded tall Dick Fowler's right-hand offerings for 10 safeties, including Allie Clark's fourth homer of the season, which came after Lemon doubled in the third.

Zale and Cerdan May Box Sept. 23

New York, July 28 (AP).—Promoter Andy Niederreiter of the Tournament of Champions today announced September 23 at Ebbets Field as the tentative date for the Tony Zale-Marcel Cerdan middleweight title bout after a conference with Arthur Mann, assistant to Branch Rickey, Brooklyn Dodgers president.

The Twentieth Century Sporting Club is trying to line up an all heavyweight show for the Yankee Stadium, September 22. Sol Strauss, acting promoter, today talked by phone with Ted Broadribb, manager of Freddie Mills, newly crowned light heavyweight champion. Mills was offered an overweight bout with his pick of Jersey Joe Walcott, Ezzard Charles, Lee Savold or Joe Baksi.

2 Top Sea Bright Players Upset

Sea Bright, N. J., July 28 (AP).—Two top-seeded players, Bob Falkenburg and Dorothy Head, were eliminated today in the Sea Bright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club's 60th invitation tourney.

Falkenburg, Wimbledon champion, was upset by Harry E. Likas, jr., of San Francisco who turned in a thumping 13—11, 6—4 victory over the Beverly Hills player who was seeded fourth in the tournament.

Unseeded Mrs. Bunny H. Vosters of Secane, Pa., ousted top-seeded Miss Head of Alameda, Calif., in the first round of the women's singles division.

Boston Keeps League Lead By 4 Points

Detroit, July 28 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers put a violent end today to the 13-game winning streak of the Boston Red Sox, shelling three pitchers for 18 hits to submerge the American League leaders 13 to 0.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout stifled the Sox with six scattered singles—three of them by Dominic DiMaggio—as the Tigers pounded the Bostons to their worst lacing of the year.

The loss was the first for Joe McCarthy's gang since Detroit won a 3-to-1 decision in Boston July 17.

Keep First Place

But even in defeat the Red Sox clung to first place by a narrow margin of 4 percentage points over the Philadelphia Athletics, who climbed back into second by beating Cleveland.

Trout, collaring the Bosox with their fifth shutout loss of the season, permitted only one runner to go as far as third base and two others to touch second. Dizzy fanned four and walked three as he leveled his season record at 10 wins and 10 setbacks.

Off to Flying Start

Detroit, meanwhile, got away to a 3-to-0 first inning lead off Denny Galehouse and scored five more runs in the second, two of them on Second Baseman Eddie Lake's second homer of the season.

After Galehouse took his departure, charged with his fifth loss of the year, Detroit continued the rampage at the expense of Dave (Boo) Ferriss and rookie Charley Stobbs.

Tiger Center Fielder Hoot Evers drove in three runs with three singles and a double, and George Vico had three singles.

Petitions to Urge Cuyler as New Pilot of Tigers

Saginaw, Mich., July 28 (AP).—Petitions urging appointment of Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler as manager of the Detroit Tigers in place of Steve O'Neill will begin circulating in three cities Friday.

George Killmaster, Chesaning High School athletic director, said he would start the petitions here, in Chesaning and Flint.

Killmaster is a native of Harrisville, Mich., home town of Cuyler.

The man he backs for Tiger manager was a star major league outfielder for Pittsburgh, the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati over a 13-year span. He is now managing Atlanta in the Southern Association.

Killmaster said he assumed O'Neill's contract will not be renewed in 1949.

McGowan Suspended 10 Days for Temper Display, Starts Calling 'Em Again Friday

By a Post Reporter

Chicago, July 28.—A 10-day-without-pay suspension of Umpire Bill McGowan today by American League President Will Harridge was greeted by the Nats as the "just and proper thing to do."

McGowan was suspended as the result of charges of misconduct brought against him by the Nats during the Cleveland-Washington game in Griffith Stadium, July 20.

"If a ball player is fined and suspended for cursing and abusing an umpire, it's only fair that an umpire get the same punishment if he abuses a ball player," the Nats commented.

In announcing his decision here, Harridge said McGowan's suspension would cost him approximately $500 in salary.

It was the first time in his 17-year tenure as league president that Harridge has suspended an umpire and the league president made it clear that umpires, as well as players, must conduct themselves properly on the field.

"I acted as I would if the situation had been reversed and similar charges had been made by an umpire against a player," Harridge explained.

McGowan Is 'Ready, Eager to Go to Work'

Billy McGowan said at his home in Silver Spring, Md., last night:

"I'm ready and eager to go back to work. I still love my league, and have no hard feelings toward anyone."

McGowan said he has received instructions to resume umpiring July 30, when his 10-day suspension expires. He said he could not disclose where he will officiate on that date.

Concerning these charges, Harridge said:

Regretable Incident

"It is regretable that an umpire should be involved in a situation of this kind because he is the league representative on the ball field, clothed with absolute authority and should at all times realize and appreciate his responsibility to baseball."

McGowan was indefinitely suspended by Harridge on Tuesday, July 21, following a long-distance call to him here in Chicago by President Clark Griffith of the Nats.

The American League office here said it had received several complaints about McGowan this season but emphasized today's suspension was the result of the Washington club's complaint alone.

The Nats also accused McGowan of "riding our young players, particularly Al Kozar," and further claimed that he threw his celluloid indicator at Scarborough during a Washington-Chicago game.

Louis' Okay On Title Bout Sought Here

Eager to bill his Ezzard Charles-Jimmy Bivins bout at Griffith Stadium August 9 for the heavyweight championship, Matchmaker Gabe Menendez yesterday wired Joe Louis to ask if he plans to fight again.

Menendez, who booked the two outstanding contenders for the Variety Club benefit, took the action after an unsuccessful attempt to get the NBA to five title sanction.

Abe J. Greene, NBA president, replied that it was "impossible" because Louis still is champion and has not retired officially.

Greene added, "In event of Louis' retirement, you have a great fight which will be watched on a national scale."

In his wire to Louis, Mependez said, "We are desirious of having direct word from you on your viewpoint of Charles-Bivins bout and whether you will box again. NBA President Abe Greene wired us today that he could not sanction Charles-Bivins match for title inasmuch as you have not officially retired."

Both Jake Mintz, manager of Charles, and Leonard Shane, Bivins' pilot, have agreed to go the 15-round distance if a title match is approved.

Since Gus Lesnevich's crushing defeat at the hands of Freddy Mills, it's probable that the victor here will be considered the No. 1 heavyweight contender.

Billy Wolfe, Beach Shoot 76s to Tie

Richard Foster, 17-year-old captain of the Coolidge High golf team and District junior golf champion, yesterday shot a brilliant par 70 at Columbia Country Club to best a field of 29 in the sectional qualifying trial for the United States Golf Association's national junior championship.

Billy Wolfe, 14, of Capitol View, and Charles Beach, 17, of Fairfax, tied at 76 to gain berths in the championship tournament which will be played August 11-14 at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Bob Wolfe in Fold

Other members of the seven-man area team will be Bob Wolfe of Capitol View, who scored 77, Dennis Bolster of Gonzaga High and Eugene Wolfe of Capitol View, each with 78, and Bill Buppert of Loyola High in Baltimore.

Buppert won his spot by defeating John Eisinger of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High in an extra-hole playoff. Both carded 80 in regular play.

Foster at Home

Foster, playing on his home course, toured the first nine holes in 34 strokes, 1 under par. He lost a stroke on the par-4 twelfth hole, birdied the seventeenth and failed to set a new course record when he overshot the eighteenth green.

Other finishers in the order named were Stanley Mouser, 82; Pat Browne, 83; Rob Redick, 84; Eric Olav, 85; Charles Warden, 86; John Shilling, 87; Yelverton Cowherd, 87; Al Hobelmann, 88; Bob McKinley, 88; Don Kurth, 90, and John Furey, 91.

Redskins Plan to Keep Gilmer Out of All-Star Game in Chicago

'Bama Star Leaves Today For Coast

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

A ticket all the way to California, with no plans for a stop-over to perform in the Collegiate All-Star game in Chicago, will be held by All-America Harry Gilmer from Alabama today as the vanguard of the Washington Redskins entrains for its training base at Occidental College outside Lose Angeles.

As things now stand, said Redskin Owner George Marshall yesterday, Gilmer will not play in the August 20 classic sponsored by the Chicago Tribune and a pet aversion of Marshall's.

Why!

Sponsors of the game have not lived up to their contract as far as Gilmer is concerned, according to Marshall. That was all the information Marshall would give.

But Rookies Will Play

He would make no comment on the fact three other Redskins rookies are scheduled to see action at Chicago. They are Dan Sandifer, L. S. U. halfback; Sid Halliday, S. M. U. end, and Tackle Weldon Edward from T. C. U.

Twelve players besides Gilmer, led by Head Coach Turk Edwards and club officials, will leave Union Station at 5:30 EDT this evening, scheduled to reach their destination Sunday morning at 10:40 PST. En route additional players will be picked up at Harrisburg, Pa., Newton, Kans., and Amarillo, Tex.

Apparently the Redskins were not counting on taking Fullback Jim Castiglia along. Castiglia recently asked for permission to pass up the coast trip in order to stay here and attend to his Washington trucking business.

The Redskins said, in effect, that Castiglia would have to go along with the other players or be dropped from the squad.

Those in Today's Party

The players leaving here are featured by Gilmer, Dick Poillon, the Redskins' ace scorer of '47; Clyde Ernhardt and John Koniszewski, trying comebacks after a year layoff; Veterans Doug Turley, Ernie Williamson, Jim Hefti, Tommy Mont; and rookies Mike Katrishen, Gene Vellela, Mike Roussos, Roger Dughi and Roy McKay.

Slingin' Sammy Baugh and his Texas pal, Dick Todd, will climb aboard the Redskin special at Amarillo, and upon arrival in Los Angeles the squad will be joined by such proven stars as Fred Boensch, Bill Gray, Al Demao, John Sanchez, John Steber, John Adams, Don Avery, Tom Farmer, Sal Rosato, Joe Tereshinski, George Wilde and Howie Livingston, the latter obtained from the New York Giants.

On August 22 the team gets its first action in the annual intra-squad game at Long Beach, Calif. There will follow exhibitions at Los Angeles with the L. A. Rams September 2; with the Chicago Cardinals at Denver September 6; the Green Bay Packers at Birmingham, Ala., September 11, and the Chicago Bears at Baltimore September 19.

The team's first National League game is slated for Griffith Stadium September 26 against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

All-Navy Golf Title Won by Sergt. Broadus

Quantico, Va., July 28 (AP).—Junior Broadus, Marine master sergeant from Mobile, Ala., won the All-Navy East Coast golf tournament here today.

Broadus, who is stationed here, turned in a 72-hole total of 296 on the officers club course, staying even on par and outdistancing his nearest rival by four strokes.

Willard Gains Finals

Willard Hotel edged out the Wardman Park, 4-3, yesterday at the Polo Field to gain the Washington Hotel softball league playoff finals. Willard will oppose Carlton in the finals Wednesday at the Polo Field.

Army to Drop Road Linking Two Airfields

War Assets Asked To Make Disposal Of Project Which Cost 4 Millions

For sale—7 miles of parkway, including two-lane highway, one side of which is paved.

The Army which built the Suitland Parkway during the war to link Bolling Field with Andrews Field now wants to get rid of it.

John Nolen, jr., director of planning for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said at a press conference yesterday that the commission has been notified informally that the Army has declared the parkway surplus.

War Assets has been asked to dispose of the project which was built at a cost of nearly four million dollars.

While the National Capital Park and Planning Commission isn't worried about a private interest buying the property, it would like to see speedy congressional action on two bills to turn the parkway over to the National Parks Service. The strip is about 700 feet wide and steeply graded on each side of the road.

The half-finished roadway is the main artery between the still incompleted South Capitol Bridge and Suitland. While both lanes of the dual highway have been graded, only one has been paved. It now is used for both east and westbound traffic.

Plans for the parkway, originally drawn by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, were taken over by the Army when it became a war necessity to link the two airfields.

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission has proposed that the highway be extended to Chesapeake Bay to provide fast motor travel to salt water resorts.

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission, holding its monthly meeting today and Friday, will discuss the purchase of two proposed playground sites in northwest Washington, transfer of the Park View playground from a white to a Negro unit, and development of a playground for Negroes at Blow Elementary School.

Union Election

Split Slate Nominated By AFGE

Two of the three candidates of the anti-Yaden faction in the District lodges of the American Federation of Government Employes have been nominated for office of vice presidents in the national union.

Floyd P. Swiggett, jr., of the Navy Department, defeated James G. Yaden, of the Civil Service Commission, for the first nomination during a caucus of the local chapter at the Archives auditorium Tuesday night.

In a second vote, Charles F. Sharkey, of the Labor Department, defeated Harry Keller, who was seeking reelection as vice president. Both Swiggett and Sharkey were on the slate presented for nomination by the "Voluntary Committee."

Yaden came back in the third contest, however, to defeat George O. Isley, of the Naval Gun Factory.

Yaden is on record as opposing former president James B. Burns, who is expected to seek reelection at the national convention in Philadelphia August 30.

Neither Swiggett nor Sharkey would go on record yesterday as indorsing Burns. They pointed out that the "Voluntary Committee" which supported them was formed only because of the bad publicity resulting from Burns' resignation.

Both said they will not take a stand on the matter until they hear both sides of the story at the convention. Union members believe, however, that their nomination will help Burns.

Their nomination to all purposes insures their election at the convention as vice presidents to serve on the governing council of the national union for the next two years.

Dog Set Aflame, Seriously Burned At Seat Pleasant

The Prince Georges County Animal Rescue League reported a Seat Pleasant (Md.) dog being set aflame and severely burned.

The dog's owner, Mrs. Laura Brady, 509 70th st., Seat Pleasant, said "Toodles," a 4½-year-old poodle, came running home about noon Monday, his body enveloped in flame. The dog last night was in serious condition at a Brentwood animal hospital.

Mrs. Ralph Sheffer, president of the animal rescue league, promised full prosecution "if we ever find the one who did it."

50,000 Enter New Group Hospital Plan

The new group hospitalization insurance plan to cover doctors' fees in surgery and maternity cases here has attracted some 50,000 subscribers, it was learned yesterday.

The insurance plan, sponsored by the District Medical Society and handled through Group Hospitalization, Incorporated, prepay hospital care corporation, also has lined up nearly 900 participating doctors who have signed contracts to serve patient-subscribers.

Theodore Wiprud, secretary of the District Medical Society, yesterday said a drive is now under way in neighboring counties, Arlington, Va., and Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties, Md., to sign on more surgeons and obstetricians.

The plan, begun here on April 1, limits complete liability of surgical and obstetrical fees to individuals making less than $2500 yearly, and families with yearly incomes of less than $4500. Those having incomes above these classifications pay higher rates agreed upon between doctor and patient.

Patients are free to choose their own doctors, explained Wiprud. Even those doctors who have not signed contracts but are willing to render service under the plan may participate, he said.

The schedules provide the following plan liability for subscribers: $85 for appendectomy; $75 for pregnancy with normal delivery; $50 for tonsillectomy with local anesthesia, and $10 to $35 for administration of anesthetics. Rates for other surgical services are comparable.

ROYAL SLAP—There was no diplomacy whatever in this court. "King" Tony Young, 3, of 3120 R st. nw., and "Queen" Dolores Thayer, 2, of 516 Rittenhouse st. nw., ruled over the Georgetown Playground wading pool festival yesterday, but not without some words between them. The above pictures tell the story. While this little tiff was in progress other youngsters played games and raced in the wading pool before a cheering gallery of spectators—children and adults

Prosecutions On Auto Deals To Be Dropped

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King announced yesterday he will drop prosecution against 11 cab drivers charged with violating local automobile registration regulations in alleged "gray-market" deals.

He made the statement after he recommended that a conviction against Frank C. Weaver, cab driver, 313 11th st. se., be nullified in Municipal Court. Weaver was convicted of holding ownership to a new vehicle and keeping it in his custody for 120 hours without applying for a certificate of title in that period.

The conviction, if it had been upheld, carried a penalty of up to $300 fine and 10 days in jail.

Weaver, according to the evidence, was approached by a "Mr. Campbell" on April 20 and was offered $100 if he would purchase a new car at Kaplan and Crawford, 2329 Champlain st. nw. Weaver said Campbell knew Weaver was a driver with the Premier Cab Co. and had a priority on cars with the Kaplan-Crawford firm.

Weaver admitted purchasing the car and turning it and the accompanying manufacturer's sales papers to Campbell. Weaver said he never saw Campbell again but the automobile, a new Plymouth four-door sedan costing $1700, was next seen in Montgomery, Ala. That State does not have a title registration law.

Authorities said such actions place scarce automobiles in a growing gray market where prices are exhorbitant.

Subsequently 10 other cab drivers were charged with similar offenses.

King said he was authorizing nolle prosses for those charges for the following reasons:

1. There was no literal violation of the law.

2. A law should not be interpreted so as to require a useless act.

Spotted Fever Fatal to One, Strikes 2 More; Polio Up Four

A death by Rocky Mountain spotted fever was reported yesterday, together with two new cases of infantile paralysis.

The latest spotted fever victim was Joseph Galeano, 52, of 9005 Old Bladensburg rd., Silver Spring, Md., who died Tuesday at the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda. He was admitted to the hospital July 19.

A World War I veteran, Galeano came to Washington about 1911.

Yesterday's reported cases of spotted fever under treatment here brought to 10 the number of tick-bite victims admitted this year to District hospitals. Yesterday's cases included a 10-year-old girl from the 4400 block of S. Four Mile Run dr., Arlington, and another girl of the same age living on Worthington dr., in Friendship Heights, Md.

Earlier in the year, a Navy Department employe, Worth J. Sharpe, 32, of Falls Church, Va., was identified as a spotted fever victim.

One of yesterday's polio cases, in Gallinger Hospital, was indentified as a 4-year-old boy of the first block of E st. se.

Three other cases reported here yesterday came from Virginia, including a 4-year-old boy from the 4800 block of S. 28th st., Fairlington, Arlington County. The others included a 3-year-old boy from Catlett, Fauquier County, and a 21-year-old woman from Chincoteague.

Infantile paralysis cases were reported on the upswing in many States other than already hard-hit North Carolina, Texas and California, the Public Health Service reported yesterday. "Epidemic proportions," however were still ascribed to only those three States.

Public Health Service reported that for the week ended July 24, the Nation showed 983 new polio cases, as compared to 717 recorded for the previous week, and 154 for the corresponding week of last year. Besides the "epidemic" States, three other States have recorded more than 100 cases this year. They are: New York, 139; Ohio, 133; and Iowa, 117.

Virginia recorded nine new polio cases yesterday, including the three sent to District hospitals. The day's cases brought to 84 the number reported throughout the State since January 1.

The Washington area portion of Virginia was described as having the State's highest concentration of polio cases, with 11 recorded there.

D. C. Surgeon Ends Bursitis Pang by Knife

Dr. Pelland

The ailment, characterized by protracted stabbing pains in the arm, hip or leg, is frequently believed by its sufferers to be neuritis or rheumatism. Attacks last from 48 hours to three weeks.

A relatively simple operation requiring 24 hours hospitalization brings "dramatic" and apparently lasting relief, according to Dr. Pelland, associate in surgery at George Washington University School of Medicine.

Dr. Pelland reports out results in 38 operations for shoulder bursitis in the current, July issue of Medical Annals, monthly publication of the District Medical Society.

Of the cases reported, only two failures were recorded, and one of these was remedied by a second similar operation.

Bursitis, it was explained, is inflammation of the bursa, a self-lubricating sac that serves as a cushion between moving structures in the body. They are found in the shoulders, elbows, hips and knees.

The 38 cases reported all involved calcification in or around the shoulder bursa, or inflammation of the sac accompanied by the formation of calcium deposits. However, Dr. Pelland explained surgery in cases not involving calcification and operations on bursa elsewhere than in the shoulder have brought similar results.

Simply, the operation involves cutting through to the affected area, removing the calcium deposits, and cutting and draining the sac. No attempt is made to close the emptied bursa. Nor does it close and fill again of itself, said

Lists Results

Listing his results, Dr. Pelland found:

No cases of chronic disability or frozen shoulder (immobility that often results after non-operative treatment) have developed; there has been no postoperative morbidity or mortality; the vast majority of these patients requires an incision less than an inch long.

Dr. Pelland was assisted by his associate, Dr. William Hoffman, resident physician at GWU Hospital, in employing the pain-relieving, symptom-ending operations.

District Budget 'Theoretically' Now Balanced

$1000 Bond Set

Motorman Of Death Car To Be Tried

A streetcar motorman was placed under $1000 bond yesterday in Municipal Court on a negligent homicide charge growing out of the death of a 19-year-old youth who fell from the open center door of a moving tram.

The motorman, Ralph Gurganious, 25, of 610 Quackenbos st. nw., is to be tried by jury October 18. He was held for action of the court by a coroner's jury Tuesday.

The dead youth is Charles F. Wilson, 1333 10th st. nw. He was fatally injured on July 21 near Georgia ave. and Madison st. nw.

Meanwhile, Charles' mother, Mrs. Annie Mae Wilson, filed suit against the Capital Transit Co. in District Court, charging wrongful death and asked $10,000 damages.

According to evidence before the coroner's jury, Gurganious had told the Wilson youth and five companions to stop playing band instruments on the streetcar. Shortly afterward Charles fell out.

His companions said the operator was fingering a box containing automatic emergency brake equipment while the boys were at the exit. Gurganious denies that he turned off the switch controlling the emergency brakes.

Man and Child Hurt In Traffic Accidents

Two pedestrians were injured yesterday in traffic acidents involving a streetcar an an automobile.

They are Thomas Grose, 35, of 716 I st. nw., and Darleen Cooper, 6, of 1918 18th st. nw.

Grose received lacerations when he was struck by a streetcar while he was standing on a loading platform at 14th and I sts. nw. at 12:04 p. m. The car, operated by William N. Brown, 56, of 1918 6th st. sw., proceeded up 14th, according to police, after striking Grose, but stopped when Brown was notified by a passing motorist that he had struck someone. Grose was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Darleen Cooper received abrasions when she was struck by an automobile driven by Thomas B. Branch, 39, of 1202 Franklin st. ne. in front of her home. Police said Darleen ran out between two parked cars. She was admitted to Children's Hospital where her condition was described as not serious.

The District's current budget was "theoretically balanced" by yesterday's Senate Republican conference decision to consider only national emergency legislation during the special session, Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler revealed yesterday.

He expressed regret, however, that the city's financial equilibrium will be maintained at the expense of pay raises for District employes. The action by Senate Republicans virtually eliminates the pay boost at least until January.

Although budget officials estimate the city now will show a "paper" deficit of $1,600,000 by July 1, 1949, Fowler said this deficit was "authorized" in the fiscal 1949 budget.

This amount, he explained is part of money appropriated for capital improvements this year. It will not have to be expended until fiscal 1950, however, because some of the projects will not be finished by the end of the current fiscal year.

In No Worst Shape

"We don't have to worry about that," Fowler declared. "We are in no worse shape today than we were when Congress first adjourned."

He said, however, that any unforeseen circumstances—such as a Comptroller General's decision granting the $330-a-year Federal pay boost to additional Federal employes paid out of District funds—would bring the city again into a precarious financial position.

The Comptroller General ruled earlier this month that 15 employes of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and 134 at National Zoological Park are entitled to the raise. Budget officials said at least four other agencies may be in the same category.

If the latter agencies also are granted the pay hike, he said, "the Commissioners immediately would have to institute strict economy measures to insure financial stability." Major effect of such action would be to keep down appointment of new employes to fill vacant city jobs. It would not stop capital improvements, he said.

May Grant Retroactive Raise

Another cloud on the city's fiscal horizon, he said, is the possibility that Congress next January may grant District employes a pay boost retroactive to last July 1 without providing additional funds to meet it.

Even if the 2 per cent sales tax is passed at the same time, he said, it would require 60 days to set up sales tax machinery and the revenue it would produce would be too late to help the District this fiscal year. (District income during the last quarter of a fiscal year is applied to the following year, it was explained.)

This would leave the city with a deficit of at least $5,740,000 by next July 1, and the Commissioners would be forced to find new revenue sources or resort to borrowing to keep the District solvent, he said.

It would be legally impossible, he added, to obtain any more money by increasing the tax on real estate. Personal property and real tax rates for this fiscal year already have been set by the Commissioners at $2 per $100 assessed value and no change can be made until July 1, 1949.

Doesn't Fear Workers Quitting

Fowler said he doubted that yesterday's action banning a pay boost for District employes for the present would result in a mass exodus of city workers to more lucrative Federal jobs.

"Some may leave," he admitted, "but I think the majority believe Congress will give them equity, if not in January, than at a later date. They are perfectly willing to stay here and take a chance."

It may be more difficult to fill new jobs authorized in this year's budget, however, he said.

Victor A. Howard, secretary to the District Personnel Board, said he knew of only three city employes who left their jobs following passage of the Federal Pay Act at the last session of Congress.

Farm to Gain $15,000 Value in One Day

500 Men Will Put Modern Touch on 175 Acres of Land

By John Ball
Post Reporter

Mrs. Nellie V. Thrasher, a 53-year-old widow in Frederick County, Md., didn't answer a quiz program, but she has won a jackpot.

Her 175-acre farm, which she has been operating with her two teen-age children since the death of her husband in 1945, has been chosen for the Maryland farm conservation demonstration August 18.

On that day about 500 men with more than 200 machines will transform her farm into a modern conservation-farmed property. Between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. the farm's value will be increased between $15,000 and $18,000, including a fully equipped dairy barn of the type approved for the Washington milkshed.

L. H. Crickenberger, manager of the field day, outlined the plans to Mrs. Thrasher and her family yesterday, as about 40 news and radio men were given a preview of the field day program. Her farm was chosen, Crickenberger said, out of all farms in Frederick County, for the following reasons:

1. The owner is unable financially to make the improvements herself.

2. The farm is accessible to traffic, with parking spaces for 15,000 automobiles. A crowd of from 25,000 to 40,000 is expected.

3. The farm is surrounded by farms already in the conservation program.

4. It is a farm that has been well operated for years under the old-type of straight-row farming.

Since the death of her husband, Mrs. Thrasher has operated the farm with the aid of her son, George Edward, 17, who quit high school to help his mother, and her daughter, Jan Virginia, 15.

When the crews finish with their day's work, to demonstrate to visiting farmers the whole problem of conservation, the farm will be entirely made over. Modern agricultural practices will replace the old-time square planting.

Erosion ditches will be sodded and soil-saving plants seeded. Tons of lime and fertilizer will be spread. There will be two ponds, one near the house—a 1-acre pond—will be stocked with fish. A 5-acre wildlife refuge will be set up. The woodland will be planned for lumber production. All old fences will be removed and 600 rods of contour fencing erected. Strip-cropping with corn, hay, small grain, beans, etc., in alternated strips will replace the old square planting. All fields will be contoured.

In two places along the highways, living fences of multiflora rose will be installed. A new dairy barn will be built, and the house and other buildings repaired and painted. Tree surgeons will treat some old maples near the home. The grounds surrounding the house and farm buildings will be drained, and new roads built through the entire farm.

Diversion trenches to halt erosion will be constructed. The water, instead of running off into creeks, will be diverted into the ponds, or retained until it soaks into the ground.

Fifty-five organizations, including farm groups, industries, co-ops, etc., are uniting with the National Soil Conservation Service and State agencies in putting on the demonstration.

Gas Probed In Death of U. S. Lawyer

The coroner's office is investigating the death of Paul H. Saunders, 41, of 4550 Connecticut ave. nw., assistant chief counsel of the Interior Department's Geological Survey.

Saunders was found dead in his apartment yesterday at 4 p. m. by a janitor who told police he thought he smelled gas and opened the door with a pass key.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald ordered the body taken to the morgue for an autopsy. He said there were no suspicious circumstances.

Saunders was dressed as though ready to leave his bedroom when discovered. He was lying on the floor. Sunday papers had been taken into his apartment.

Neighbors said they had not seen Saunders since Sunday. Interior Department officials said Saunders came to work there in June, 1935. He previously had been employed by the Navy Department. Personnel records show Saunders attended George Washington University for two years and received an LL. B. degree from Washington College of Law. Police are seeking members of Saunders' family.

Shoplifting Suspect Picked Up in Court

A 17-year-old shoplifting suspect was arrested yesterday after he was spotted in a Municipal Court room by a department store detective.

The juvenile had come there, police said, to witness the arraignment of his companion, Leonard Taylor, 18, of 616 Callan st. ne. Taylor was subsequently held under $1000 bond for jury trial on charges of shoplifting, assault and carrying a knife.

During the proceeding, Detective Mark Roberts of Kann's department store saw the juvenile and said he recognized him as Taylor's companion on July 15, when a pair of trousers was stolen in the store and Taylor and the juvenile were picked up. The juvenile escaped while in the store.

Police led the juvenile from the courtroom. In Judiciary Square the boy attempted again to escape, but was unsuccessful. At police headquarters he was held, according to police, for investigation as a possible parole violator from the National Training School.

Rail Fire Loss Slight

Several hundred dollars' worth of Southern Railway testing equipment was destroyed yesterday in a fire in a basement storeroom of the company's office building in the 400 block of S. Henry st., Alexandria.

Firemen were unable to determine the cause of the fire. They said it had started in a room used for storing chemicals used to test railroad equipment.

2 Hurt by Cinder Blocks

Two workmen escaped serious injury yesterday when a freight car toppled over, spilling cinder blocks on them. The car was on a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad siding in Bethesda.

Charles W. Cleveland, 50, of 1346 Wylie st. ne., suffered a broken heel. Oscar McPhatter, 34, 1115 64th ave., Cedar Heights, Md., received minor face lacerations.

Both men were taken to Suburban Hospital by Bethesda Rescue Squad.

Auto Suit Reinstated

The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals yesterday granted a writ of error to Mrs. Betty Jane Via from a judgment of the Circuit Court of Fairfax County directing a verdict against her in an automobile injury suit.

Mrs. Via was injured seriously in an accident on the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway February 9, 1947, when she was a passenger with her husband in an automobile owned by Frank Parker and operated by Victor Parker. The car and a truck collided.

The trial court held that evidence submitted by Mrs. Via failed to sustain gross negligence on the part of Victor Parker and also failed to show recoverable negligence on the part of the truck driver.

New Names for 5 Streets

District Commissioners yesterday ordered names changed for five streets in the District effective immediately.

They are Gooch st. nw., between Charleston ter. and Brewer pl., changed to Indian Rock ter.; Orange st. se., for its entire length east of Nichols ave., changed to Lebaum st.; Congress rd. se., between Alabama ave. and Nichols ave., changed to Randle pl.; U pl. se., from Branch ave. west of Park dr., changed to Park dr.; 39th st. se., between 38th st. and Massachusetts ave. changed to Carpenter st.

No opposition to the changes was voiced at a public hearing July 12.

Zone Violation Charged

Montgomery County Attorney F. B. Welsh last night said he plans to file zoning violation charges against William D. Taylor, 909 Greenwood ave., Takoma Park.

Taylor, Welsh said, is operating a rooming house in a residential "A" zone, restricted to single family residences. Welsh said complaints were registered by 12 neighbors.

Miss. Beauty Queen Here

A Mississippi beauty queen visited Washington yesterday.

She is Miss Nell Howell of Ripley, Miss., who as "Miss Lady of the Lake" will reign over the 1948 water carnival at Sardis Dam Lake, Miss., on Seeptember 5 and 6.

With her mother, Mrs. J. A. Howell of Ripley, Miss Howell is on a tour of the East to boost the Sardis Lake pageant. She and her mother visited Mississippi members of Congress yesterday morning.

4 Deaf Children Demonstrate Lip-Reading Marvels at C. U.

The Washington Post

TEACHING THE DEAF—Patricia Broderick learns to talk through feeling the vibrations of Sister Rose Anita's lips

Four bright-faced, fun-loving, 5-year-old children from Buffalo, N. Y., last night demonstrated at Catholic University that patient remedial work can overcome the hardships of deafness.

Three of the children, Michael Seeger, Patricia Broderick and Marie Rados, are 100 per cent deaf. The fourth, Carole Van Scoter, has a 70 per cent handicap in her right ear and 60 per cent in her left. All were once mute because of their handicap.

But last night on a program under the leadership of the Rev. Francis T. Williams, C.S.V., director of a summer institute at the university for teachers of the deaf and hard-of-hearing, the children put on a demonstration that made the onlooker forget that they are not wholly normal.

The four made their demonstration under the guidance of their teachers, Sister Rose Anita, primary supervisor at St. Mary's School for the Deaf, at Buffalo, and her twin sister, Sister Rose Alice of the order of St. Joseph.

The children sat on chairs on the stage of McMahon auditorium.

"Patricia, Carole, Marie, Michael . . .," Sister Rose Anita introduced them. Each bobbed up at the call of her or his name and curtsied or bowed.

"They didn't hear a word I said, honestly," said Sister Rose Anita. The audience felt like pinching itself.

"When a child comes to the school he does not usually realize he has a name, that other children have names, and that objects have names, so our first objective is to build up a usable vocabulary," the Sister said.

On a large white placard were jumbled pictures of a dog, horse, ball, fan, house, man and other miscellaneous things.

"Door," she said. Michael pointed at the door. "Chair, spoon, fork, dress." Michael stumbled on that one, and there was great excitement among the girls. Patricia was allowed to point it out to him.

The girls went through the same routine.

Then there were exercises to develop flexibility of lips for saying words they cannot hear. Marie put her hands on the cheeks of Sister Rose Anita, who said "gug, gug." Marie repeated it, learning through vibration to imitate sounds.

In the fall the quartet will enter first grade.

Miss Ada Hill, vocational director of the American Hearing Society, in an opening address said "three million little children are liable to be hard of hearing if something is not done. I wonder how many children are called stupid because no one knows they really are hard of hearing?"

Mrs. Charles H. Hastings

Mrs. Charles H. Hastings, 84, died Tuesday afternoon at her home, 3600 Ordway st. nw., after a six-month illness.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m. at Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N st. nw. Burial will be private.

A native of Brunswick, Me., she was the former Alice D. Otis. In 1895 she was married to Charles H. Hastings, who retired five years ago after 40 years with the Library of Congress as chief of the card section. He is now employed at Brentano's Book Store

Mrs. Hastings was a member of the Unitarian Church at 16th and Harvard sts. nw. Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons, two daughters, Miss Helen Hastings of Washington and Mrs. Elizabeth Lawton of Indianapolis, Ind., and four grandchildren.

Miss Carolina B. Pond

Funeral services for Miss Caroline B. Pond, 84, who died Tuesday at her home at 1887 Newton st. nw., will be held today at 11 a. m. at her home. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Miss Pond

A native of Vermont, Miss Pond was a graduate of Bradford Academy, Mass. In 1888, she went to Santa Fe, N. Mex., where she was brought in touch with the Women's Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church.

For seven years, she and a woman friend conducted a school for Indian boys and girls, about 40 miles from Fort Wingate, N. M. In 1896, she became matron of the Dorland Institute in Hot Springs, N. C. Later she became a teacher at the school, but resigned in 1916 to be with her mother in Washington.

Miss Pond returned to the school in 1922, serving there again as a teacher until her retirement in 1931. She was awarded a service pin from the Women's Board of National Missions for her outstanding service. She was a member of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church here.

She is survived by a niece, Miss Virginia Pond of Evanston, Ill.

John Caruso, Jr.

Mass of the Angels will be said at 10 a. m. Friday at St Francis Xavier's Church, 28th and Pennsylvania ave. se., for John Caruso, jr., 4, who died Tuesday after a 250-pound turnstile fell on him at Anacostia swimming pool. Burial will be in Washington National Cemetery.

Besides his mother and father, John Caruso, the boy is survived by a brother, Vincent, 13, and his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Caruso, of New York City.

Son Celebrant Of Mass for John Reckert

The Rev. John G. Reckert S.J., of St. Aloysius Church, will say requiem mass for his father, John G. Reckert, 58, former purchasing agent for the Maritime Commission, at 10 a. m. today, at St. Anne's Church, Yuma st. and Wisconsin ave. nw. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. Reckert

Mr. Reckert died unexpectedly Monday of a cerebral hemorrhage at his home, 3810 Veazey st. nw.

A native Washingtonian, Mr. Reckert was educated at Holy Trinity Parochial School and Georgetown Preparatory School. Early in 1907, he started his career in the Federal service as an employe of the Government Printing Office. He remained in that organization until about 1918, when he transferred to the United States Shipping Board. When the Shipping Board was redesignated the United States Maritime Commission in 1936, Mr. Reckert, who rose through the ranks, was appointed chief purchasing agent. This position he retained until about May of this year, when he was appointed to the liquidation division of the commission.

He was a member of Washington council and a fourth degree Knight of Columbus, a member of the third order of St. Dominic and the Holy Name Society.

Arthur F. Cannon

Arthur F. Cannon, 67, native Washingtonian and for many years co-owner of a stand at the 12th and K st. ne. market, died early yesterday at his home, 900 Perry pl. ne., after a three-week illness.

Mr. Cannon

Mr. Cannon spent 35 years at the market, selling out in 1940. Since then he had been employed as a guard by Capital Transit Co.

Born in the District, he was graduated from Gonzaga High School and embarked upon his marketing career shortly after. He was a member of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, 1030 Lawrence st. ne., and was active in its Holy Name Society.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Sadie E. Cannon, of the Perry pl. address, Mr. Cannon is survived by six children. They are Robert P. Cannon, Mrs. Frnaces Henry, Mrs. Marie Fenlon, Leo Cannon, Mrs. Margy York and John A. Cannon all of Washington. Nine grandchildren also survive.

High requiem mass will be sung at 8:45 a. m. Saturday at St. Anthony's Church.

Reburial Rites Set Today for 2 D. C. Soldiers

Two Washington Army men who were killed in action in World War II will be reburied in services at Arlington Cemetery today.

Pfc. Owen

Reinterment services will be held at 2 p. m. for 19 soldiers and a sailor, among them Pfc. Kenneth D. Owen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus D. Owen, 1458 Columbia rd. nw., and Pvt. Harry Bort, jr., son of Mrs. Lillian P. Bort of 4870 Cordell ave., Bethesda, Md.

Pfc. Owen was serving with the Ninety-fourth Infantry Division in Germany when he was killed in March, 1945. A lieutenant colonel in the Central High Cadet Corps, he enlisted in 1943 and was overseas less than a year.

Private Bort, who enlisted in the Army in 1941, was killed in action in February, 1944, in the Mediterranean combat zone. He has participated in the invasions of North Africa, Sicily and Italy. He was a graduate of Bethesda High School.

Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson

Chicago, July 28 (AP).—Burial services were held in Graceland Cemetery today for Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson, editor and publisher of the Washington Times-Herald, who died Saturday.

The brief services were attended by relatives and executives of the Washington Times-Herald, the Chicago Tribune and the New York News, founded by her brother, the late Capt. Joseph Medill Patterson.

After the chapel services, immediate relatives accompanied the body to the graveside. Mourners included Mrs. Patterson's daughter, Felicia Gizycki, born of her first marriage to Count Joseph Gizycki; her granddaughter, Mrs. Ellen Cameron Pearson Arnold; her niece, Mrs. Alicia Patterson Guggenheim, and her cousin, Mrs. Peter Miller, publisher of the La Salle-Peru (Ill.) News-Tribune.

The cemetery chapel was banked with flowers, including a large wreath of white lilies from Mrs. Patterson's cousin, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, and Mrs. McCormick.

Colonel and Mrs. McCormick were held back in Europe because of last minute repairs required by their plane.

Col. John C. Bohan

Chicago, July 28 (AP).—Col. John C. Bohan, 56, soldier and construction engineer who built the Stevens Hotel and the Union Station here, died yesterday.

Colonel Bohan's construction firm also built the Federal Reserve Building in Chicago.

Susan Hyatt, Kin of Town's Founder, Dies

Miss Susan Beall Hyatt, 85, a granddaughter of Christopher Clark Hyatt after whom Hyattsville, Md., was named more than a century ago, died Tuesday night at her home, 1851 Columbia rd. nw. Her death was attributed to a heart attack, following an illness of nine weeks.

Miss Hyatt was born September 3, 1862, in her grandfather's house, today known as the Hyatt Mansion. The house has changed hands several times since it was sold by the Hyatt family to the late William Henry Perkins of Baltimore more than 40 years ago.

Miss Hyatt was the daughter of John Hyatt and Mrs. Marion Middleton Hyatt. She attended a young woman's seminary conducted by Mrs. Maria Louisa Thompson, which was known as the Neosho Seminary

Following the death of her father, Miss Hyatt, her mother and her sister, the late Mrs. Helen McCeney, lived in the mansion for a while and then moved to Washington.

She was a member of the Washington Club here and St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, Connecticut ave. and Bancroft pl. nw.

Miss Hyatt is survived by two nieces, Miss Anne C. McCeney and Mrs. Sidney M. Watkins, and two nephews, J. Hyatt McCeney and B. Houston McCeney, jr..

Eleanor Monk Dies, Aged 71; Rites Today

Mrs. Eleanor G. Monk died Tuesday at Washington Sanitarium, Takoma Park, after a long illness. She would have been 71 yesterday.

Born in Bristow, Va., she had lived in Greater Washington for about 45 years. She made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Virginia M. Kerlin at 11149 Viers Mill rd., Silver Spring.

Mrs. Monk was the daughter of Edmund Pendleton Gaines, Confederate soldier and one of the famed "Mosby's Men," who conducted daring raids on Union forces during the war.

Her husband, Thomas O. Monk, Washington newspaper man for many years, died in 1929.

In addition to her daughter, she is survived by a son, Sgt. Edmund G Monk, Fort Myer, Va., a sister, Miss E. Ola Gaines of Lynchburg, Va., and two granddaughters, Miss Marjorie Conn and Miss Jeanne Marie Monk, both of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rock Creek Parish. Burial will be in Rock Ceek Cemetery.

S. J. Simon

London, July 28 (U.P.).—S. J. Simon, 44, Russian-born international bridge expert and novelist, collapsed and died at his home here last night. His best known book was "Why You Lose at Bridge."

THE Beauty Of a Simple Ceremony

A SIMPLE ceremony that costs very little money may still possess a simple dignity and beauty that money alone could not give.

It depends, of course, not on the amount of money spent, but on the taste and care exercised by those you choose and trust to spend it.

We ourselves find special satisfaction in showing how much plain economy can achieve in lending loveliness and grace to a solemn occasion.

Robt. Newbegins Feted At Dominican Embassy

By Marie McNair

THE PARTY at the Dominican Embassy yesterday afternoon had something of the flavor of a college reunion, for many of the guests had been stationed together in Trujillo City, had gone their separate ways since, only to come together again in Washington.

The Dominican Ambassador and Senor de Thomen, were entertaining for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newbegin, whom they knew in the Dominican Capital when Mr. Newbegin was Charge d'Affaires of the United States Embassy.

Now, Mr. Newbegin, who's been on duty at the State Department, has been appointed Counselor of our Embassy in Colombia and after a short holiday in New England he and Mrs. Newbegin will take off for Bogota.

The two young Newbegins—Bobby and Dorothy, were on the sidelines yesterday and from Bobby I learned he's going to stay in boarding school in the USA.

Farewells Said

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Allard, Chester Young and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reed were all there yesterday to recall life in the Dominican Republic not so long ago and to say farewell to the Newbegins. The Reeds—she's Ecuadoran by birth—will be making their own adieux soon for Mr. Reed has been transferred to the American Embassy in Dublin.

I saw the Colombian Ambassador and Senora de Jaramillo and tiny Senora de Dillon, wife of the Ecuadoran Ambassador, in a cocoa and white print frock, a lovely hat of frothy white tulle.

Midsummer fashions in this town of ours favor colorful prints like the bright blue and white patterned frock which Senora de Thomen wore yesterday, the pale blue and white combination in Mrs. W. D. Whittemore's gown.

Mrs. Newbegin wore the smart combination of cocoa brown and black in a scroll design and with it a lacy natural colored straw bonnet set off with a stiff black bow.

Cummings Are Guests

Former Attorney General Homer Cummings was there with his petite, auburn-haired wife who wore a long black dinner gown. Mrs. George Neilson, wife of the Judge, caught all eyes in a backless slim cut black crepe, slashed to the waist in front and modestly held with pale blue sequin birds in flight.

On her smooth dark hair she wore a pale blue, brimmed straw ringed with pale pink roses.

Among others there were Dr. and Mrs. William A. Morgan, the latter hatless and wearing a spanking all white dress; the Paraguay Ambassador, Dr. Juan Felix Morales, was in a group which included Dr. Thomas Cajigas who had left Mrs. Cajigas busy with house guests at home.

Raul de Medina who's with the Pan American Union, now was there, and Senorita Minerva Bernardino who'll leave on Friday for Argentina as her first stop on a South American tour.

Adm. Carranza Is Honored On Visit Here

By Elizabeth Maguire

ACTIVITIES at the Argentine Embassy yesterday centered around Admiral Juan Carranza, visiting Chief of Naval Operation of the Argentine. The day started with a morning ceremony at the embassy in which Admiral Carranza conferred the Orden del Libertador San Martin on Admiral Louis Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations for the United States. Mrs. Carranza and Mrs. Denfeld were present.

Other guests at the ceremony were high officials of the Navy Department and War Department, including the Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal, Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, Vice Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Vice Admiral John D. Price, Vice Admiral William M. Fechteler, Rear Admiral Charles Wellborn, Rear Admiral Arthur D. Struble, Rear Admiral Thomas L. Sprague, Vice Admiral Earl W. Mills, Gen. C. B. Cates, USMC, Rear Admiral Robert Glover, Rear Admiral T. B. Inglis and many others.

An embassy luncheon followed, at which the Ambassador, Jeronimo Remorino was host. Among the luncheon guests were Admiral and Mrs. Carranza, the Argentine Minister and Mrs. Drago, Gen. and Mrs. Carlos von der Becke, the Military Attache of the Argentine and Mrs. Lucero, the Naval Attache of the Argentine and Mrs. Rumbo, the Assistant Air Attache of the Argentine and Mrs. Fervor, Admiral T. Colonna and Capt. Ramon Brunet.

Later in the day, between the hours of 7 and 9, Admiral and Mrs. Carranza were hosts to their many friends at a reception at the Mayflower. The party was a farewell, as the admiral and his wife are leaving today for the Argentine.

Ambassador Remorino assisted in the receiving line along with Admiral and Mrs. Denfeld, and Mrs. Rumbo, wife of the Naval Attache. The Ambassador has made few appearances at parties around town since his recent arrival. He is a dapper, handsome bachelor, and he prefers French to English in his conversation.

The host, Admiral Carranza, was partial to the Navy in his selection of guests yesterday. There were crisp white uniforms everywhere and a great deal of rank. Rear Admiral O. B. Hardison was there, and Capt. and Mrs. W. V. Dutermann.

Well over 300 attended the fete, which was held in the grand ballroom. A large buffet provided a superb supper of turkey, salads, hors d'oeuvres and ices. A striking couple at the party were the Military Attache of the Argentine and Mrs. Lucero, he in the colorful white and beige uniform of his country, and she in a black lace frock and white hat trimmed aigrette feathers.

Margaret Lynch Is Engaged to Lieut. Rowe of British Navy

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Lynch of Chevy Chase announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret, to Lieut. Barry Loraine Dudley Rowe, Royal Navy, son of Comdr. and Mrs. R. D. Rowe of London, England.

The bride-elect attended George Washington University and Florida Southern College. Her fiance graduated from the Royal Naval College in Dartmouth and studied at Cambridge University. He served the first part of the war on cruisers and destroyers and later joined the submarine branch of the Royal Navy. He is at present with the British Joint Services Mission (Navy Staff) in Washington.

The wedding will take place in the fall.

Jose Ferrer Feted By Roy St. Lewises

JOSE FERRER, who is playing the lead in "The Importance of Being Earnest" at Olney Theater, was honored last evening at an after-theater party by Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis at Rancho Mio, their estate in Ednor, Md. Members of the entire cast attended as well as the coproducers, Richard Skinner and Rex Allen.

Colored searchlights and small tables were set up on the lawn, and a buffet supper was served. Many of the younger guests drove up from Washington for the party.

Today Mr. and Mrs. St. Lewis are leaving for a vacation at Virginia Beach.

Have you seen the new Furs?

Important silhouette is the coat that sweeps its fullness to the back, leaving the front more slim and wearable. Reflecting this trend is the coat pictured above, in Beaver-dyed Mouton Lamb. Its three-flare back reaches a luxurious full length, its bloused sleeves are trimly cuffed. College and business girls may well consider this an ideal investment in a fur coat for dressy, casual, all-purpose wear!

Peruvians Mark Independence Day

IN CELEBRATION of Peruvian Independence Day, members of the Peruvian colony were received yesterday at the embassy by the Ambassador and Senora de Ferreyros. The reception hours were between 5 and 7 o'clock. Cocktails were served and there were light refreshments from a buffet.

In Lima the occasion is celebrated for three days, starting July 28, with fireworks, public entertainment and many private parties and dancers. The President of the Republic holds a reception for all who wish to congratulate him.

Independence Day in Peru dates back to July 28, 1821, when San Martin proclaimed Peru's independence from Spain.

Vincent Sheean Introduces His Indian Pal; Wallners To Be Off to Paris Soon

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

AUTHOR VINCENT SHEEAN, who for some esoteric reason is known to pals as Jimmy, signs letters James, is recouping between jaunts to Ghandiland at Dorothy Thompson's Twin Farms in South Pomfret, Vermont. This week Jimmy has contacted his Washington intimates, asked them to look up his recently arrived friend, Colonel Unni Nayar, who is here to act as Indian information officer.

The Colonel was assigned by Nehru to accompany Sheean on one of his journeys in India. They got on famously. Jimmy reports that Colonel Nayar also acts as military spokesman for his government, that he fought in both Italy and Burma, first as paratrooper, later as staff and public relations officer.

"Being an army officer," Jimmy finishes with flourish," he smokes, drinks, eats meat, etc., etc., all those wicked things so many Indians don't!" Madame Nayar, incidentally, is a doctor—medical, not philosophical!

Wallners to Vermont, Then Paris

THE WOODRUFF WALLNERS are leaving town in a few days for a New Hampshire vacation. September 3 they'll be off for Paris and our embassy where "Woody," who has been assistant chief of the Division of Western European Affairs of the State Department, will replace Douglas MacArthur 2d. In the general swing around Elim O'Shaughnessy will take over Woody's State Department chores and then MacArthurs will be transferred to our Brussels embassy. Mrs. MacArthur, a daughter of Senator Barkley, will come back for a brief visit to her famous parent before settling down in Belgium's capital.

Mr. W., just returned from a Far Eastern trip which included stopoffs at such romantic cities as Bangkok and Saigon, passed through Paris and managed to pick up both a house and baby's nurse—no mean achievement! Meanwhile they've sold their Decatur Place residence to society columnist Justine Cassini, who is marrying publisher William R. Hearst, Jr., down in Warrenton today.

France used to be home for lovely, red-head, English-born Monica Wallner who, then Mme. de Prorok, made a great hit in prewar Paris' most entertaining circles. Elim O'Shaughnessy incidentally, bought the Harry Hopkins house on N st. some months ago and after extensive revampings finally moved in.

Mrs. Patterson Wills Sables

OFTEN those with great means take friends for granted, never remember them in their wills. But publisher Mrs. "Cissy" Patterson was an exception and to handsome Mrs. "Chip" Robert, a long time and most loyal friend, she left her sable coat and her famous string of black pearls. This department couldn't think of anyone more suited to sables and black pearls than cozy Evie Robert who will wear such elegancies with nonchalance usually accorded muskrat and Micky-Moto beads!

The Opera Treat

COME AUGUST 4 Washington's devotees of music are due for an unexpected treat. New York's Lyric Opera Association, which is headed by Alfred Landi, head of a successful photography firm, will give a series of eight operas at the Watergate concert barge.

This will be the debut of a company which will later tour the Eastern seaboard. The association has earmarked a budget of $50,000 to cover the Watergate production and via ticket sales will attempt to diminish the certain deficit.

The operas, all Italian, include two performances of La Traviata, Aida, Madame Butterfly, Barbiere de Seviglia, Rigoletto and double bill Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci as finale. The Metropolitan Opera's conductor Pietro Cimaro, who stacks up with Bruno Walter and Erich Leinsdorf will wield the baton at some of the performances.

In each city visited the association plans to feature a local singer—not necessarily in stellar roles—and auditions, by competent authorities, will be given in advance. Right here The Washington Post's music critic, Paul Hume, played the accompaniments during tryouts for Katharine Hansel who'll appear as Micaela in Carmen. Eventually, if all goes well, the association hopes to foster well trained choruses and orchestras in the big spots so that all they will need to take along on tour will be the stars and a spot of scenery. Meanwhile some of Washington's most prominent musical minded will serve as patrons and patronesses for this nice plum dropped so unexpectedly and without entangling financial complications onto our Potomac shore.

Udel

Mrs. C. Edward McGuinness, who, before her marriage on July 17 at St. Andrews Chapel, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., was Miss Marguerite Stephanie Monocrusos. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Stephen Monocrusos of Baltimore and the late Mr. Monocrusos, and Lieutenant McGuinness, USMC, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bernard McGuinness of Parkersburg, W. Va. Following a Southern wedding trip the couple will reside at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Dr., Mrs. Kindler Are Entertained In Santiago

Dr. and Mrs. Hans Kindler have been the inspiration for a number of parties in Santiago, Chile, where Dr. Kindler is guest conductor of Santiago's symphony orchestra for three weeks.

The American Ambassador to Chile and Mrs. Claude Bowers invited 36 guests to luncheon in their honor; a formal dinner was given for them by the Music Department o' the University of Chile, and a reception by the Institute for Chilean and North American Cultural Relations.

From Chile the Kindlers go to Peru. They will return to the United States in time for Dr. Kindler to open the National Symphony Orchestra's eighteenth season in Constitution Hall on October 14.

British Designer Campaigns For More Ladylike Fashions

London, July 28 (U.P.)—Designer Hardy Amies, handsome former paratroop officer, started a one-man campaign today to make ladies of fashion more ladylike. His fall styles feature high and plain necklines, corsets and longer skirts.

Amies also prescribes capes, even with tweed suits, to hide their "masculinity." Shoulder padding was noticeably absent from his creations.

The fall crops of Amies' styles was shown today, the third day of Britain's Fall Fashion Week. Buyers from throughout the world attended the show.

Bianca Mosca, Italian-born couturier, also had a showing today. The Mosca creations included a red dress, weighing only 7 ounces, and a pink metallic silk cocktail dress with a collar like petals of a sunflower opening at dawn.

Mosca also showed dresses with high waistlines and the "princess line" in her 30-model fall collection. Fur shawls and red fox furs were featured for afternoon and evening wear.

Amies' models included short capes with snug necklines. The capes were either fitted on topcoats or put on over suits and evening dresses.

His skirts averaged 10½ inches from the ground, an inch longer than last year.

Material, most of it tweed, was used lavishly. Taffeta skirts had big puffs in the back.

Voters League Gives Reminder To Absentees

The Voteless D. C. League of Women Voters through its Absentee Voters Service is reminding Washington residents who vote in Kansas, Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Idaho and South Carolina to act now.

The Kansas primary will be held on August 3. Ballots should be requested from the county clerk by July 29 and returned to him by August 2. A United States Senator, six members of the House of Representatives and the Governor will be nominated.

The Virginia primary will also be held on August 3. Requests for ballots should be made to the registrar of the voter's precinct before July 29 and should be accompanied by 23 cents postage. The marked ballot must be returned to the registrar on or before Aug. 2.

The primary in Tennessee will be held on August 5. July 31 is the deadline for ballot requests which should be sent by registered mail to the chairman of the County Primary Board in which the voter is registered.

The date of the Kentucky primary is August 7. The request for a ballot must be made from the County Clerk before July 29 and the voted ballot returned to the clerk by the day before the primary. One Senator and nine Representatives are to be nominated.

Primary elections will be held in Idaho on August 10 and voters should write to their county clerk for a ballot in time to have the voted ballot returned to the clerk at least one day before the primary.

South Carolina's primary will take place on August 10. Voters should write their Democratic Political Club requesting the primary ballot enclosing three cents postage.

A primary election will be held in Missouri on August 3, but absentee voting will not be permitted.

Simple Methods Are Best For Storing Milk for Baby

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

When a mother gets accustomed to dealing with the baby's milk in certain specified ways—such as boiling and pouring it into individual bottles and storing it away—seemingly she is confused when she has to handle it otherwise.

Mrs. N. C. writes: "My baby is 11 months old and is drinking all his milk by cup. He takes evaporated milk and gets 12 ounces of that and 17 ounces of boiled water. I want to omit the job of sterilizing bottles and I don't know what kind of a container to use to hold the milk.

"The regulation milk bottles would have to be sterilized and evaporated milk is so difficult to wash off bottle caps that they would never seem fresh. I thought of an enameled, quart measuring jar, in which the water could be boiled and the milk added later, but what would I do for a cover? Could you suggest something to me?"

The simplest solution would be to use the regulation quart, glass, preserving jars with glass lids. Wash these in the usual way with soap, water and bottle brush and then rinse with clear water and boiling water. Such a jar is easy to store in the refrigerator.

Mrs. A. S. offers another suggestion for keeping an active child from slipping all over the bathtub. She writes, "I was interested in the suggestion in your column to hold a child with a white, cotton glove while bathing him. I should like to mention another way—though I shall certainly try the glove—and that is to use a rubber sink or bathtub mat, in the bottom of the tub.

"This won't prevent an active child from trying to climb out with the help of the faucets, but it does keep his buttocks from slipping around on the tub when he wants to splash his feet."

One can surmise that the perfect solution would be to put him on a rubber mat and hold him with a cotton glove. Try to get away from those two stickers, young man!

Miss Lucia Brown Will Be Guest For 'Foodcast'

Miss Lucia Brown, food editor of The Washington Post, will be guest editor over Foodcast (9:30 a. m., WOL) on Monday, August 2, when Meredith Young, director of women's programs over that station, will begin her summer holiday. Miss Brown will discuss food topics from the newspaperwoman's angle.

On Tuesday, August 3, Foodcast guest editors will be Charles Jackson, general manager of the National Fisheries Institute, and Miss Rose Kerr, head home economist of the test kitchens in the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of the Interior.

A representative of the American Meat Institute will discuss meat on Wednesday and on Thursday an international TWA hostess will tell of the food idiosyncrasies of peoples in various foreign countries.

Miss Lucille Holmes, information specialist with the Rural Electrification Administration of the Department of Agriculture, will cover on Friday

How to 'Plug Out' Neighbors

Can you tell me where in a Washington store one could buy ear plugs? I read a doctor's advice about what to do about noisy neighbors and he said "Buy ear plugs." I'm having my first experience in apartment house living, and it's hard getting used to people who do not retire until 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning. O. M. M.

At least one local drug firm carries ear plugs of this type, designed to keep out noise. The concern can be reached by telephoning Republic 4600.

Recently, there have been two of your readers who asked about drying flowers, making pictures of them, etc. Since I have done some of this work successfully, I will be glad to help them with further suggestions if they will call me during the day at Taylor 0007. R. J. E.

Thanks, R. J. E., for your kind offer.

In unpacking boxes of baby clothes, I find that the little shirts—a cotton, rayon, and 10 per cent wool mixture—are very yellow. How can I whiten them, as well as the 100 per cent wool booties? J. O. S.

One of the safest of bleaches is sodium perborate. It is especially nice to use on woolens because it leaves them soft and fluffy. Make up a solution of four tablespoons of the powdered perborate to 1 pint of soapy water. Soak the garments in this for half an hour, then rinse thoroughly. If this doesn't remove all the yellowing, repeat the treatment.

Can you tell me how to remove the film that collects on baby bottles, formula pitchers, etc., as a result of having been boiled in Washington's hard water? H. L.

The film can be removed by boiling the bottles in a solution of 2 teaspoons cream of tartar to 1 quart of water, or 1 cupful of vinegar to 1 quart of water. Boil bottles for a few minutes, then let them remain in the mixture overnight. Wash thoroughly the next day. Stubborn, hard-to-get-at film on the very bottom of bottles can sometimes be removed by putting a few grains of raw rice and a bit of water in the bottom of the bottle and swishing it around vigorously.

I will soon be moving into a new home, a two-story Colonial. Is it true that all windows facing the street are supposed to be curtained alike? Both dining room and living room windows face the street and I've always preferred draperies in the living room and ruffled-type curtains in the dining room. There is a small window in the stairway landing (in the living room). Should that be curtained the same as the large living room windows? D. C.

It is true that a house which has a similar type curtain at all of the front windows presents a neat appearance, but there is surely no rule that makes such treatment necessary. As a matter of fact, the reverse rule seems to be the most used one. In many homes these days, the kitchen is on the street side, with the living rooms opening on the more private back yards. In such houses it would be impractical to curtain the street side windows similarly. Because of these reasons and because you will view the curtains more often from the inside than the outside, I would surely urge you to curtain each room as you will take pleasure in seeing it curtained. And, if the house is otherwise neat and attractive, I'll wager that nary a passer-by will give it a thought. If the landing window is very small, use an inconspicuous glass curtain—no draperies. If it is large enough for draperies to look well, curtain it as you do the living room.

BISHOP-BRACKEN

I recently moved into a house where the former tenants kept a dog in the basement. In this hot, humid weather, there is a strong and extremely unpleasant odor that rises from the concrete floor and permeates the entire house. I've tried disinfectants to no avail. Have you any suggestions? A. K.

Have you tried sprinkling chloride of lime on the basement floor? This is a good general deodorant and should be helpful in getting rid of the unpleasant odor.

In a recent column, J. M. made inquiry about paper for duplicating patterns, I believe she would find that large paper garment bags that many cleaners return clothes in are sufficiently large, if split open, to be quite satisfactory for patterns. They are also tough but still pliable. W. M. R.

Can you tell me what will remove peach stains from the children's clothing effectively? M. H. M.

How can chewing gum be removed from a cotton dress or any material? M. L. P.

Scrape off excess with dull knife or spatula, then rub spot with ice until chewing gum rolls into a ball. Sponge with dry cleaning fluid.

Recently, you suggested a method for washing a circular cotton skirt which would prevent the bias from stretching. I have forgotten the instructions and wonder if you would repeat them. It was something about sewing on tape, but the rest eludes me. M. E. R.

Bias seams can be kept from stretching if, before you wash the skirt, you stitch narrow woven cotton tape to the seams on the wrong side. This comes on a spool and is available where threads and sewing accessories are on sale.

Streamlining by the Sea

Exercising on Beach Is Fun—and Slimming

By Ida Jean Kain

Any exercise is more fun done on the beach—even eating. Many folks don a swim suit and go to the beach just to put away a big picnic and doze under a gay umbrella. But that's not streamlining.

Here's a set of beach tone-ups for fun and streamlines. As added attractions—the ocean breeze provides comfort, and the shifting sands put muscles to work without effort.

Circling is first-rate arm exercise. Stretch face downward, weight supported on hands and toes, elbows straight.

Now, using the toes as a pivot and keeping them in the same spot, wheel all the way around "walking" on hands. Keep elbows straight. At the first sign of a slump in the middle, let down and relax. It's important to keep the back perfectly straight, and the middle muscles taut. Start with a semicircle—don't hurry.

Wheel Around

Go into reverse. Use the hands as the hub of the wheel and circle around on toes. Take wide side steps and circle clear around to the spot where the tracks start. Again you're wasting your time unless you hold the body in a straight line and keep the back from sagging.

Too rugged? Try this easy one. Make angel wings, like you used to do in the snow! Lying on back in sand—with cap on to protect hair—circle arms away up overhead on sand, then down in wide swoops to shape a pair of wings—and nice straight shoulders.

Still on back, legs straight down, separate legs as wide as possible, keeping them on sand. This is most effective because the sand puts up resistance.

Try Waist-Bender

This waist-bender is fun. Lie on back in sand, arms outstretched back overhead, legs together and straight down. Now start bending. Wriggle around, keeping arms and legs in contact with sand, and form an arc . . . bringing feet and hands as close together as possible. If that isn't very close, don't let it worry you—the exercise is limbering anyway. Now wriggle back to a straight line, then arc in the other direction.

Try some of your old standbys—the high bicycle or lying on side and swinging top leg to slim hips—you'll enjoy breezing through them in the sand.

Now for a swim, gals—last one in's an old maid!

Postlude

Watergate Hearers Set 1948 Record

After threatening rain late in the afternoon, clear skies and a perfect sunset brought a record crowd to the Watergate last night.

There, Claudio Arrau and Howard Mitchell provided the best concert of the season. It was interesting to note that a program of Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms drew the biggest audience so far this month.

Arrau played the E flat piano concerto of Beethoven, his fifth and last. Taking his cue from the music itself rather than from popular superstitions which have grown up around it, the soloist refused to bombard his way through the score. Instead we had poetry, delicacy, and shades of color too seldom heard from pianists today. Arrau employs his enormous prowess for purely musical and esthetically sound ends. It was a fine performance.

Equally fine was the orchestral support, molded to enhance the total structure. The orchestra led into piano passages and emerged from them in an artistic unity.

As for their reading of Brahms' first symphony it was unusual and completely commendable. Mitchell again showed his allegiance to the composer's cause, refusing to yield to mawkish retards, and overblown distortions. The final movement moved with a smooth flow in keeping with the composer's marking. And praise be! There was no drawing out of the last choral. It went in tempo as Toscanini takes it. What a change, and how right!

Friday: Final concert of the season, with Gladys Swarthout as soloist. Better come early!

Jews Lay Two Attacks to Arabs

Jerusalem, July 28 (AP).—Jews today accused Arabs of twice violating the Palestine cease-fire order. Arabs countered with the accusation that one incident was the fault of the Jews.

A spokesman for Israel said in Tel Aviv that a supply convoy bound for Jewish outposts in the southern desert was attacked by Egyptian forces last night. The fighting was believed to have been intensive, and U. N. observers were dispatched to the scene.

The spokesman said the Jews countered by attacking Egyptian communications near Falujah village.

In Jerusalem, a spokesman handed a memo to the truce commission charging that one Jewish soldier was killed and 12 others blew up a Jewish-occupied house, wounded when Arabs attacked just south of the old city wall, and Jewish positions on Mount Zion.

The Arabs charged the Jews threw mortar shells into the old city and that the demolition of the house was an "accidental explosion caused by Jews."

Flanagan Heads District PUC for 4th 2-Year Term

James H. Flanagan yesterday was reelected by his District Public Utilities Commission colleagues to serve his fourth two-year term as chairman.

Flanagan

The vote was taken at a PUC meeting yesterday afternoon at the District Building. The other two members of the commission are James Lauderdale and Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young.

Flanagan was appointed to the commission in 1942, by President Roosevelt.

He was elected chairman September 1, 1942, and has served continuously since that date.

Wayne Millner, Redskin Coach, Awarded Divorce

Wayne V. Miller, end coach of the Washington Redskins, was awarded a divorce in District Court yesterday on grounds of five-year voluntary separation from his wife, Anne Marie Millner of Salem, Mass.

The former Notre Dame All-American field his suit a few weeks ago and got quick action after he notified the court that his coaching duties kept him out of Washington for a good part of the year.

The suit states that there is a separation agreement by which Mrs. Millner gets $3120 a year for herself and two young daughters. When the daughters become 21 years of age, the sum will be cut down to $2640. The action was uncontested.

The Millners married in 1934 and separated in April 1942.

Death of Man After Arrest for Drinking Probed

The homicide squad and the coroner's office are investigating the death of Howell Omohundro, 53, of 603 3d st. nw., who died in Gallinger Hospital at 2:45 a. m. yesterday.

Police said Omohundro was arrested on a charge ob public drinking Tuesday at 11:15 a. m. by Pvt. William J. Cahill of the First Precinct. He was taken to Municipal Court, where he was sentenced to pay $5 or serve five days.

Police said Omohundro was then taken to the District Jail, where he complained of feeling ill. He was removed to Gallinger Hospital, where he died.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, said an autopsy yesterday afternoon showed that Omohundro had a fractured skull.

Navy's Air Giant To Be Christened At Noon Today

The Navy's largest airplane, the 92-ton Lockheed Constitution, will be christened today at noon by Mrs. John L. Sullivan, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, at Washington National Airport.

The ship, which can carry 168 passengers and a crew of 12, will be open to public inspection after the ceremony until 7 p. m. tonight.

The giant ship also will be on public display Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 7 p. m.

The craft made its first trip to the East Coast July 25, landing at the Patuxent River Naval Air Station, Md. It made the 26,000-mile flight from Moffet Field, Calif., in approximately 10 hours and 20 minutes.

Disney Acts to Correct an Error

NEW YORK.—When Walt Disney testified before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, he made an error in listing The League of Women Voters as a Red organization. He later issued a statement correcting this error. The league now is having a fund-raising drive and asked Disney to pose for a photo showing him making a contribution. Disney said he'd do more than that—he probably will make a cartoon-short about the work of the league . . . Pete Seeger, who wrote and sang the songs for the Wallace Convention, also wrote the "We Hate War" song attacking Roosevelt, and the songs used by the White House pickets, during the Soviet-Nazi pact . . . Eleanor is finishing the second volume of her autobiography.

Eugene O'Neill will resume his playwrighting this fall . . . Maxie Rosenbloom's first network series was to have begun over NBC last Friday. When he started the broadcast, he was warned by the engineers that the program wouldn't be heard. "They're being nice to us," Rosenbloom confided to his cast. "They don't want us to be nervous, so they're telling us it's not going out over the air." When it was over, Maxie learned that it really hadn't gone out over the air—because NBC decided, instead, to broadcast the Wallace Convention.

George Jean Nathan, the drama critic, doesn't believe in modern devices: He doesn't drive a car, doesn't use a typewriter, doesn't go to the movies, and doesn't even use a fountain pen. He believes that movies, television and radio are but second-rate perversions of the true art—the theatre . . . In the Stork Club he saw Ferenc Molnar do a radio broadcast with Arlene Francis, Louis Calhern and Sherman Billingsley. Later, as if he were addressing an infidel, Nathan said: "Didn't I tell you, 'Don't go on the Radio'?" . . . "When did you say that?" asked Molnar . . . "I distinctly remember warning you about it," replied Nathan, "45 years ago."

David Wark Griffith, the pioneer movie man who died last week said that he had made 10 million dollars profit in 10 years and spent 11 million dollars in 11 years. "I've been spending my life since then," he said, paying off that last million" . When Howard Hawkes offered Montgomery Clift, the Broadway actor who made his screen debut in "The Search," a role in the new Western movie, "Red River," the young actor asked: "Is it hard to act in a Western?" The producer told him: "Well, first you'll have to forget everything you learned from the Lunts." . . . The Lambs Club Carnival at the Lido Beach Club was for the benefit of the Damon Runyon Fund.

At the Henry Wallace press interview, when Wallace hedged on attacking Russia for failing to hold free elections in the satellite nations, Wallace said: "Well, it depends on what you mean by free." Elmer Davis whispered: "Does he want to compromise on that word, too?" . . . Bill Polk, brother of the late George Polk, whose letter prompted Wallace's discussion—during which the reporters questioned Wallace about the Guru letters—watched the candidate squirm miserably in his determination not to answer. And Polk, who is a friend of Wallace, said: "I think he should've answered that question."

In a forthcoming installment of the Hopkins story in Collier's, Bob Sherwood will tell of the President's State of the Union message to Congress, delivered January 7, 1943. In this message Roosevelt said: "I shudder to think of what will happen to humanity, including ourselves if this war ends in an inconclusive peace, and another war breaks out." Sherwood will reveal that when Roosevelt made this speech he knew that one month earlier, at Stagg Field in Chicago, the first self-maintaining nuclear chain reaction had been achieved.

ASCAP is appealing the ruling by Judge Leibell that its licensing of performing rights on musical composition in movie theaters violates the anti-trust law. Judge Knox made a different ruling, some time ago . . . Cecil Brown's radio coverage of the conventions brought him three bids from sponsors for shows in the fall . . . The only hotel Randolph Churchill was able to get into, during his stay in New York, was the Waldorf.

Churchill shrugged: "as the late Lord Birkenhead said of my father: 'Mr. Churchill is a man of very simple tastes. He is always prepared to put up with the best of everything.

George Jessel, the movie producer, flew back from Paris last week. Jessel is a man who dislikes to waste time or opportunity, and he never likes to be alone. As the plane neared Iceland, where there was to be a stop-over for lunch, Jessel asked the plane steward to send a message containing only three questions, to the airport director: "(1) Was a "Miss Iceland' selected this year? (2) Is she interested in a movie career? (3) Could she be free to come to the airport for lunch?"

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

'Barefoot Boy'

Perhaps it's only sentimental, but there seems to be something special about going barefoot. Scuffling along a dusty road with dust between the toes, sensing the coolness of early morning dew on the grass or even having to skip gingerly along a hot stretch of pavement are deeply satisfying for most youngsters.

How exciting is used to be when it got warm enough so that the more adventurous mother would permit her youngster to be the first to go out without shoes! Then it was easier to persuade our own mothers that it was time to go barefoot.

Times change, I suppose, but youngsters don't. Today's crop is as interested in going barefoot as we were. But if families live in the city, going barefoot may have to be limited to the park or to the times when the family goes on a picnic.

Some parents are "agin" the shoeless state. They fear stubbed toes, a cut foot or some other accident. One must be careful, of course. But children will learn to watch their step, and few of the injuries they incur will be serious.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Berlin Stand Vital to Germany

By Drew Pearson

When Gen. Lucius Clay testified before a closed-door session of the House Foreign Affairs Committee regarding Berlin, he was asked a question about the reconstruction of Germany. Before Clay could reply, Ambassador Robert Murphy, State Department representative in Germany, interruped to answer for him.

Murphy

Unfortunately Murphy said, it was impossible to get private capital interested in Germany. Though the banks are full of money, everyone in Europe fears that when the United States moves out of western Germany the Russians will move in, Murphy said. That would mean the confiscation of all private property.

Ambassador Murphy gave this as one of the chief reasons why the United States could not leave Berlin now.

"If we pull out of Berlin," Murphy told the Congressmen, "people will say 'that is exactly what will happen in western Germany later.' It would undermine all confidence in us."

When a German sets up a business enterprise in the American zone of Germany even today, Murphy told the Congressmen, a Russian agent is certain to come around and discreetly warn that if he continues his operation he will be put down in the Soviet black book. And when American troops move out and Russia moves in, he is told that he will be liquidated.

General Clay concurred with Murphy that this psychological factor was one of the biggest reasons why the United States had to stay in Berlin. To withdraw would mean the end of whatever confidence the U. S. A. had built up in Western Germany.

Messages to Russians

General public reaction to the idea of going over the head of the Kremlin by floating weather balloons from France and Germany over Russia with messages and gifts to the Russian people has been favorable.

Both Government and private metorological experts agree that the wind currents make the floating of such balloons entirely feasible. In fact, the Japs floated them all the way across the Pacific to Washington and Oregon. Their balloons, however, carried missiles of death; these would carry messages of friendship.

This columnist holds no brief for any particular means of reaching the Russian people. If any other way is better than balloons, fine. But I do maintain that as a Nation we are doing almost nothing to get behind the Iron Curtain and show the Russian people that we are not what the Moscow propagandists say we are.

Anyway here is a cross section of mail showing how the American people feel about it.

Balloons to Russia

Arthur B. Borden, Borden Mills, Inc., New York.—Thanks for your open letter to Secretary for Air Symington re information to Russian people. Having had the honor of serving under General Le May both in India and Guam believe his boys could really do the job you suggest. The Borden Mills, Inc., of 90 Worth Street, New York City, would like to make a cloth contribution . . . Mrs. Herman H. Hardison, Bat Cave, N. C.—At last here is a powerful suggestion of how we may perhaps prevent another war. Showing our strength, but, with that strength getting to the Russian people with messages containing facts about our country, and letting them know of our latent friendship . . . Emerson Rupert, consultant, Bradenton, Fla.—I agree heartily with your ideas on reaching the Russian people directly. Your current suggestion can be followed up with a dynamic program to sell peace, democracy and freedom to all men. We've got to exert every possible effort to avoid war . . . Edward Nielsen, Cozad, Nebr.—Your letter to Stuart Symington is best suggestion for peace I have yet heard. I am sure if the Russian people understood us, they would not fight us. If I can help you in any way, I will! . . . Arnold J. Nelson, Washington, D. C.— I have been reading newspaper columns for years, but yours today, suggesting using our B-29s to carry leaflets to the Russian people so impressed me that I am writing my first letter to a columnist . . . L. R. Dillingham, Portland, Oreg.—Your suggestion relative to the friendship balloons is a grand idea, especially if they were carrying such articles as you mention. It's these simple, convincing things that reach the heart of most people. The general tendency of all peoples is friendliness . . . M. S. Rackett, Richmond, Va.—This letter is being written simply to say that I approve most heartily of the line you are taking. Far from thinking you are "a terrible bore on the subject," I for one thrill with enthusiasm when you come out with these admirably constructive ideas.

Just You

My darling, when the day begins . . . And skies are gray or blue . . . I do not care for anything . . . Except to think of you . . . However bright the sun may be . . . Or wet the rain I feel . . . You are the only part of life . . . That I consider real . . . You are the everlasting dream . . . Of happiness I know . . . Whatever fortune may befall . . . Wherever I may go . . . And when at last the day is done . . . And silver stars appear . . . The world is always wonderful . . . Because you are so near . . . My darling, you are all I need . . .
